NATIONAL COAL STRIKE AVERTED

Bill To Cash Terminal Pay Passes House

Quick Approval By Senate Seen

WASHINGTON, July 7 — (AP) — The House unanimously passed and sent to the Senate today a bill permitting 9,000,000 holders of terminal leave pay bonds to cash them after next September 1.

The vote was 386 to 0.

Passage came after brief debate in which Republican leader Halleck of Indiana speculated that "we may meet another veto" from President Truman. The treasury department has opposed cashing the bonds as inflationary.

Treasury Opposed

Saying that the Democratic National Committee has chided Republicans for not acting on the bill, while the treasury has come out against it, Halleck continued:

"I don't know what side of the street Mr. Truman is working."

Senator Wherry (R-Neb.), Republican Whip, predicted quick Senate approval of the bill.

"I want to see it passed at this session," Wherry said. "I am speaking as an individual Senator but I expect the Senate leadership to agree to take it up and pass it."

The House-Approved Bill will go to the Senate Armed Service Committee, which will start hearings Wednesday.

Rep. Brooks (D-La.) estimated the legislation will save $200,000,000, or at the rate of $60,000,000 annually, in interest.

The legislation would permit—but not require former officers and enlisted men to cash the bonds at face value plus accrued interest through local banks anytime after Sept. 1. The estimated face value of the outstanding bonds is $1,-$00,000,000, and the House Armed Services Committee said it expects about $1,000,000,000 of them to be cashed.

The others would be held for the two and one-half per cent interest the government pays on them.

The bonds were issued under a 1946 act to compensate enlisted personnel for accrued leave time, up to 120 days, which they failed to obtain while in service. Officers had been getting the pay in cash all along, by remaining on the service payrolls on "terminal leave" after their return to civilian life.

But the 1946 act required holders of the bonds to retain them for five years from the date of issue, and made them non-negotiable.

Application Date Extended

The bill extends until September 1, 1948, the deadline for applying for terminal leave pay.

Halleck told the House that the Republicans had intended all along to pass the bill. Cashing of the bonds, he said, was one of the first priorities against savings effected by Congress in federal spending.

But Rep. Dwight L. Rogers (D-Fla.), author of one of the first bills this year to provide for the cashing, scolded Republicans for having waited so long.

Rogers said Republicans "got behind legislation when they saw how popular it is."

By unanimous voice vote, the House also passed and sent to the Senate a bill to abolish terminal leave. It would require payment in cash at that time of discharge for accrued leave time. The effect would be to prohibit officers from remaining on the payrolls on "terminal leave" following their discharge.

Opponents Of UMT Urge Faith In UN

WASHINGTON, July 7 (AP) — Opponents of universal military training urged Congress today to put more faith in the United Nations and in diplomacy, and to deemphasize military might.

Opening the attack after several days of testimony by advocates of peacetime training legislation were J. Henry Scattergood, Philadelphia businessman speaking for the Greater Philadelphia Committee against peacetime conscription, and Mrs. Alexander Stewart of Chicago, National co-chairman of the Women's Committee to Oppose Conscription.

They testified before the House Armed Services Committee. The committee also announced receipt of a statement from Josephus Daniels, Raleigh, N. C., publisher and former Secretary of the Navy, opposing the universal training program recommended by President Truman's Special Commission.

GOP Rushes Tax-Cut Bill For Fast Vote

Two-Thirds May Approve In House

WASHINGTON, July 7, (AP)—Republican leaders today rushed their new $4,000,000,000 tax-cut bill into position for a vote in the House tomorrow on a take-it-or-leave-it basis.

Forestalling any move to change the bill, the GOP-dominated Rules Committee barred last-minute amendments from the floor before the showdown tally.

Democrats Concede

Many Democrats conceded that the bill, sponsored by Chairman Knutson (R-Minn) of the House Ways and Means Committee, will pass its first test by more than the two-thirds majority needed to override a Presidential veto.

However, the question of mustering two-thirds in the Senate is still in doubt. Action there is expected late this week.

Fighting to the end, a number of Democrats launched a bold, if futile, drive to substitute a bill that would remove 10,000,000 low-income persons from the tax rolls completely and apply to all states the community property method of tax computation. This system, which materially reduces taxes in some cases by splitting a family's income between husband and wife, is now legal in 12 states.

Rep. Gary (D-Va) offered the substitute measure in the face of the Rules Committee's action providing that the Knutson Bill, granting tax cuts from 10.5 to 30 per cent, shall be voted up or down without changes. The amendment-barring rule is the usual procedure on tax bills in the House.

Permits One Motion

Under House rules, before the vote the Democratic minority will be permitted one motion to recommit or send the Knutson Bill back to the Ways and Means Committee along with instructions to the committee to write in any changes.

But the House is considered certain to kill this final motion.

The bill is identical with the legislation Mr. Truman vetoed June 16, except that the effective date of the tax relief has been changed from July 1, 1947 to January 1, 1948. The President described the first bill as "the wrong kind of tax reduction at the wrong time." He said it gave too little to low income and too much to high incomes.

Black Legion Men Say Jones Joined

WASHINGTON, July 7 (AP)—Two members of the Black Legion swore today that Rep. Robert F. Jones (R-Ohio) joined the hooded organization at a flashlight ceremony in 1938, but Jones flatly denied this and six character witnesses lauded him as a fair and tolerant man.

The conflicting testimony came at a Senate Subcommittee hearing on President Truman's nomination of Jones to be a member of the Federal Communications Commission.

One of the self-described Black Legion members was Frank A. Barber, police chief of Beaver Dam, Ohio. He testified under questioning that he was committed to a hospital for the insane for 61 days in 1922 but said this was the result of "a frameup." He acknowledged also that he once was jailed for "shooting a guy" in Hammond, Ill.

The other witness who said Jones became a member of the Legion, Glenn E. Webb of Lima, Ohio, testified that he (the witness) in 1942 forged 19 payroll checks totalling $653.86.

Senators questioned the witnesses closely on their own records.

An affidavit produced by Senator Brewster (R-Me) alleged that still another witness against Jones, 74-year old Virgil Effinger of Lima, was convicted of contempt of court in 1940 and sentenced to two months in jail and ordered to pay a $200 fine.

Just before the subcommittee concluded its open sessions, Jones took the stand to declare for the second time that he never joined the legion.

"There is absolutely no tie-up by me with any organizations that are subversive," said Jones, who has been elected to the House of Representatives five times.

He told the subcommittee he believes its members have "properly discounted" what he called efforts by Columnist Drew Pearson "to smear me."

Russian Split Over Marshall Plan Expected

Explosive Situation In U.N. Is Foreseen

LAKE SUCCESS, July 7 (AP)—The split between Russia and the Western powers over the Marshall Plan is expected to bring into the open within the next two weeks an explosive situation which has been smouldering for many months in the key economic organs of the United Nations.

Although U.N. officials were reluctant to comment on the outlook, there seemed to be little doubt that the enire economic program of the world organization was headed toward a major crisis.

The big blow-off was looked for at the opening of the economic and social council's summer session here July 19—if not before. It could come at the meeting of the U.N. Economic Commission for Europe now in progress in Geneva.

Gravity Emphasized

The gravity of the situation was emphasized by these developments:

1. Reports that Russia might boycott a meeting of the U.N. Asiatic and Far Eastern Economic Commission's Committee of the whole beginning here on Thursday.

2. Refusal of Russia to attend a special cereals conference, arranged by the Food and Agricultural Organization, in Paris Wednesday.

3. Absence of Russia from the International Trade Conference now going on in Geneva.

4. Withdrawal of Yugoslavia today from membership in the international labor office.

Some delegates, even before the collapse of the three-power conference in Paris last week, were seriously concerned by Russia's non-participation in the specialized agencies in the economic field. They now say privately that the situation has worsened.

On the other rand, there is a general feeling that the U.N. economic program has been hit hard by the British-French plan to go outside the organization to implement Secretary of State Marshall's program for European economic aid.

Russia already has served notice that she will attempt to push through a resolution, already defeated in the Economic and Employment Commission, specifying that international aid must be directed toward strictly economic ends and not toward meeting military needs or for political advantage.

Would Start Debate

Such a move would launch a general debate not only on the Marshall Plan, but on the "Truman Doctrine" as well. There was little chance that Russia could muster enough support to have her resolution adopted, but some delegates felt that a serious Russian defeat at this time might widen the breach between her and the Western Powers.

British officials disclosed that Sir Alexander Cadogan, British Delegate, had delivered an oral message from Foreign Secretary Ernest Bevin to Secretary-General Trygve Lie, just before Lie sailed for a European vacation, informing him of the Paris conference collapse.

Bevin was understood to have reiterated his promise to keep the U.N. informed on developments, but to have said it would be useless, in view of Russian opposition, to attempt to use U.N. machinery to implement the Marshall plan.

Dewey Majority In N. Y. Predicted

SAPULPA, Okla., July 7 (AP)—Texas supporters of Gov. Thomas E. Dewey for the Republican Presidential nomination predicted today the New Yorker would receive a "substantial" number of the state's 31 delegate votes at the 1948 national convention.

Texas has developed into a behind-scenes pre-convention battleground between forces of Dewey and Senator Robert A. Taft for the nomination.

George Hopkins, of Dallas, headed a steady stream of Republican political figures who visited Dewey today in his hotel suite.

The visit of Hopkins, who was accompanied by William C. Briggs, chairman of the local GOP Committee of Paducah, Texas, was disclosed by the Dewey staff after he had started back for Dallas.

Unified Armed Force Needed, Lodge Says

WASHINGTON, July 7 — (AP) — Senator Lodge (R-Mass.), a World War II Ground Forces Officer, told the Senate today that in the event of another war the United States would be "doomed" unless the armed forces are unified beforehand.

Joining Senator Gurney (R-S.D.), chairman of the Armed Forces Committee, in terrifying predictions of the way any future conflict will start, Lodge declared:

"Without unification we are doomed by the nature of future war, the first effect of which will be to disunite us tactically."

The two Republicans opened debate on the "National Security Act of 1947," which is on the Republican "must" program for this session of Congress.

BANDIT SUSPECT KILLED—Police inspect body of a man shot to death by a patrolman in a crowded bus at 42nd Street and the Avenue of the Americas, New York City, yesterday as he was fleeing from the scene of a $10,000 holdup. The policeman was wounded in the exchange of shots with the alleged holdup man.

Reporters Barred From Yacht Death Trial By Judge

Termed Aftermath Of Story On Juror

SANTA ANA, Calif., July 7. (AP)—Reporters for International News Service and the Los Angeles Examiners were barred from the Overell Yacht deaths trial today by Superior Judge Kenneth E. Morrison as the aftermath, he said, of publication and distribution of a story relating to one of the jurors.

INS was reinstated soon after when the judge was informed that the story had been killed. The Judge announced, after a conference with the Examiner's city editor, that the paper's privileges would be restored upon publication of a retraction tomorrow.

As court convened for the trial's seventh week this morning, the judge called reporters into his chambers and told an Examiner representative:

"I have played fairly with you fellows and I expect you to play the same way with me. You reported something as taking place in this court when it did not—that attorneys had asked that Mrs. Putnam be excused as a juror."

The Examiner's story said such a request had been made by the defense. Mrs. Uvon Putnam reported two weeks ago that an unidentified man entered her apartment, slapped her twice and threatened her "if you find those kids guilty."

On trial for the slayings of Financier and Mrs. Walter E. Overell aboard their cabin cruiser March 15 are the couple's only child, Louise, 18, and her boy friend, George Gollum, 21.

An Examiner executive said its Tuesday editions would carry a statement, reading in part:

". . . . The judge said that no qualification had been asked by anyone, either prosecution or defense, and that he did not 'have the matter under advisement.'

". . . . In view of Judge Morrison's denials these statements as published in Monday's Examiner must be deemed incorrect."

Thief Killed In Gun Duel Aboard Bus

40 Passengers Escape Injury

NEW YORK, July 7. (AP)—A 42nd Street bus loaded with 40 passengers was the scene today of a grim gun battle which brought death to a young jewelry store robber and serious bullet wounds to the patrolman who killed the swarthy gunman.

One of the passengers was used as a shield by the robber after he had dashed into an open door of the halted bus while fleeing from the patrolman, Daniel B. Murphy, 29. The passenger was not hurt.

The robber reportedly told Murphy "I'm going to let you have it," but in the 10-shot duel that followed, he received fatal chest and head wounds.

Murphy was taken to a hospital with wounds in the chest and abdomen. He emptied his six-cartridge revolver in the battle while the robber fired four times.

The passengers cowered in their seats during the duel. James Doherty, the bus driver, sounded his horn continuously to attract other policemen. Thousands of persons in the noon-hour mid-Manhattan crowds were attracted to the scene, a block from Times Square.

A $10,000 nine-karat diamond ring and two wedding rings in the robber's pocket were identified by two jewelry store owners as having been stolen from their establishment a short time before the shooting.

WARSAW, Poland, July 7. (AP)—A Soviet commission investigating German war crimes reported today it had found mass graves containing the bodies of 70,000 Russian prisoners in the village of Ostrow Mazowiecki, near Warsaw.

Negro Maid Says She Served Gov. While Being Held

Testifies In Trial On Slavery Charge

SAN DIEGO, Calif., July 7 (AP) — Negro maid Dora Jones testified today she served Governor Leverett Saltonstall (now United States Senator) of Massachusetts and other prominent New Englanders at the Lynn and Boston homes of Mr. and Mrs. Alfred Wesley Ingalls during the time the government charges they were reducing her to slavery.

Defense cross-examination also brought out that Dora at one time compared her position in the Ingalls' household to a magazine article account of a negress in the household of General MacArthur—proud to be considered a member of the family rather than a servant working for pay.

The witness admitted that she had referred to the prominent Ingalls' guests, which Defense Attorney Clifford Fitzgerald said also included "Senators, Representatives and such," in expressing resentment later at racial prejudice.

This prejudice, the defense attempted to show, was the reason she slept in the Ingalls car rather than in hotels when she traveled West with the couple last year.

Earlier, Dora testified that although pregnancy resulted from intimacies with Mrs. Ingalls' first husband, he never kissed her and "it wasn't as if he had run up against a glamorous woman."

The 58-year-old negress said the first husband, Walter Harmon of Washington, D. C., whom Mrs. Ingalls divorced in 1918 to marry Ingalls, pursued her while she was doing her early morning work and his wife still slept. "He never got in bed with me," she said.

Dora testified that she reported those details to the then Mrs. Harmon. The federal prosecutor charges the Ingalls threatened the negress with jail and hell throughout the years because of the old affair to make her their slave.

"Sometimes I thought," Dora told the jury "I'd rather go to jail." She said she worked from 4 a. m. to 10 p. m. at the Ingalls' homes in Lynn and Boston, Mass., and never had a day off.

Flying Disc Tales Swirl Like Saucers

[By The Associated Press]

The game of spotting "Flying Saucers" broadened yesterday (Monday) to include Massachusetts and Vermont as stories about the disks continued to swirl fully as rapidly as the objects themselves.

Explanations of the phenomena ranged from the theory that they were radio controlled flying missiles sent aloft by U. S. Military Scientists to the suggestion that they might be merely sun light reflected on wing tanks of jet-propelled planes.

A. B. Cross of Chattanooga, Tenn., a 34-year-old watchmaker, announced he invented the "flying saucer" and submitted it to the War Department in 1943 but his idea was rejected as not practical "at the present time."

Later, he said, he became convinced that the Department elaborated on his plan. His model was powered with a rubber band, Cross said, but he believed atomic power now is being used.

A Spokane, Wash., woman insisted the objects she saw were of such size that together they would take up the space of a five-room house if they landed. But a Clearwater, Fla., woman said the disks she observed resembled "pie pans."

At Rutland, Vt., a woman reported she and her husband witnessed a brilliant object in the night sky which she assumed to be a "flying saucer" although it was stationary.

But at Cambridge, Mass., a housewife said she saw "a group of white, flying saucers whirling around and going at a tremendous speed."

The Massachusetts and Vermont reports brought to 40 the number of states in which the objects have been observed.

HIGHER ALTITUDES IN FOG ARE URGED

WASHINGTON, July 7. (AP)—President Truman's Special Air Safety Inquiry Board recommended today that aircraft be required to fly higher over mountains when the weather is soupy. It also urged early installation of electronic devices to show the distance above the ground.

This double step was proposed only four days after a Civil Aronautics Board hearing on the June 13 accident in which a Capital Airline plane crashed into a cloud-covered Blue Ridge Mountain about 60 miles from Washington, killing 50 persons.

The recommendations appeared to be closely tied to the possible causes of that tragedy, just as the first report of the five-man board was related to evidence compiled while investigating the take-off crash of a United Air Lines plane in which 44 persons were killed at New York May 29.

Czechs Will Attend Paris Aid Meeting

Decision Reached Despite Red Stand

PARIS, July 7 (AP)—Czechoslovawas reported tonight to have decided, despite Russia's stand, on acceptance of a British-French invitation to attend the Paris conference which opens Saturday on the Marshall Aid-Europe Plan.

An Associated Press dispatch from Prague quoted semi-official circles as saying the decision had been reached at a closed session of the Czech government.

Other Nations Delay

While other countries in the Soviet sphere of influence delayed any immediate decision, sources here hailed the Prague report as a possible indication that "Eastern," as well as "Western," European nations would be present at the meeting, designed to start the Marshall Plan rolling.

The French Foreign Ministry said tonight it had decided to wait until replies had been received from all 22 invited nations, before making any further announcements of acceptances.

Earlier, the ministry said six nations had accepted formally, and eight others were expected to do so soon. The six are Belgium, Italy, Portugal, Eire, Greece and Turkey. Acceptances "in principle" have been received unofficially from Holland, Luxembourg, Austria, Denmark, Iceland, Norway, Sweden and Switzerland, the ministry added. Reports from The Hague said Holland definitely had accepted.

Russia Refuses

Russia refused last week, at the Three-Power Conference here, to participate in a British-French plan to implement the Marshall program. However, British and French sources said they still had not given up hope that the Soviets would attend Saturday's conference.

These hopes appeared slim, however, in view of a new Soviet attack against Britain and France, delivered in Geneva today by Valerian Zorin, Russian delegate to the United Nations-sponsored Economic Commission for Europe.

Zorin told a tense session of the conference that Britain and France planned to dominate the economy of Europe "behind the back of the Soviet Union." He added that Russia could not participate in what he called "an erroneous and wrong policy quite evidently aimed at interference in the internal affairs of European countries."

Petrillo Plans To Make Records

WASHINGTON, July 7 (AP)—James C. Petrillo, president of the American Federation of Musicians, said today the union plans to call a halt to members making phonograph records and broadcasting over radio networks.

Petrillo, called on the Congressional carpet for past actions, explained that his plans for the future are grounded on the belief that musicians don't get their fair share of entertainment money.

"As of now," he told a House Labor Subcommittee, he plans to end members' making records December 31. The ban on network broadcasting, if it stands, would take effect February 1.

And if it's legally possible, Petrillo said, the union itself may make and market musical recordings.

During the afternoon session, Petrillo softened his stand this much:

"I'm in hopes that somewhere along the line," he said, "we won't have to do the things I said we'd have to do this morning."

Petrillo was the first witness in an investigation into what Chairman Rep. Kearns (R-Pa.) called the "dictatorial powers" of Petrillo over his union and the music industry.

Kearns said in in a formal statement that Petrillo's union has:

"Required theater owners throughout the United States" to employ standby orchestras "they did not need, want or use."

"Dictated" to broadcasters the amount of money they should spend for music.

"Engaged in a concerted effort to hold back the technological improvements in radio and in television."

Kearns, a member of Petrillo's union as a singer and conductor, said also:

"Your federation has interfered with and restricted the inalienable right of the people of the United States to enjoy freedom of religion and education."

North, Captive Operators Will SignPactToday

Brief Suspension Certain To Occur

WASHINGTON, July 7 (AP) — A new national pattern wage contract for soft coal miners was ratified tonight by the United Mine Workers and the Northern Mine Operators.

The mine workers voted to resume work in the Northern and "Captive" Mines tomorrow after the pact, granting a basic 44½ cents an hour wage increase, is officially signed.

The threat of a nationwide strike was thus averted although brief suspension of work by 250,000 miners in areas not yet covered by the agreement is certain to occur.

The UMW described the new "national" contract as one that covers the nation and that before any operator in any section of the country can expect union members to work his mines, he must agree to terms of the national contract.

Hopes For "Industrial Peace"

Benjamin F. Fairless, president of United States Steel Corporation, declared he was hopeful that the agreement reached with John L. Lewis will bring "industrial peace in the bituminous coal industry for a long time to come."

Formal signature ceremonies by the United Mine Workers and soft coal operators will take place at the Union Headquarters tomorrow morning at 9 a. m. (EST).

The union agreement to the contract terms was announced after a meeting of the union's 200-man Policy Committee.

Although no formal word came from coal producers of the Midwest, Far West and South, their quick concurrence in the agreement negotiated by the Northern and Steel Mine Operators was freely predicted in industry circles.

The new contract, in addition to providing for a 44½ cent hourly wage increase, was said by industry representatives to include a clause that the miners would work when "willing and able."

Lewis had insisted on this provision as protection against Taft-Hartley Labor Act penalties for unauthorized strikes.

However, Lewis receded on his demand that a United Mine Workers representative, with veto power, serve as chairman of the board administering the Miners' Welfare Fund.

The fund henceforth will be financed by a ten-cent a ton royalty on coal mined, instead of the five cents a ton which heretofore has been collected.

Southern Group To Study

The Southern Coal Producers Association announced it would not be on hand for the signing ceremonies. Instead, the Association called a meeting for 2 p. m. (EST) tomorrow, to study the pact and reach a decision.

"We don't intend to be at John L. Lewis' front door tomorrow morning ready to sign," a spokesman said. "We are going to look at this thing carefully.

"We will give it every consideration, but we want to see it first."

Fairless, in a statement issued at the office of United States Steel here said the new contract "should prove to be highly beneficial to the whole economy of the nation."

"In my judgment a coal strike at this time would have paralyzed the industry of the entire country and might also have had an adverse effect upon the international situation."

The "big steel" president, was in the forefront of secret negotiations conducted with Lewis for the last ten days.

Fairless' statement said the negotiators unanimously recommended adoption of the contract by all companies represented by them, including the "captive" mines which are owned by steel companies, and employ 65,000 miners, many of them in the South.

3 Balkan Countries To Pass Aid Meeting

LONDON, TUESDAY, July 8, (AP) The Moscow radio, quoting continental dispatches from the Soviet News Agency Tass, said early today the Romanian, Polish and Yugoslav governments had decided not to participate in the Paris conference on the aid-to-Europe proposal.

The broadcast, heard here, said a Tass dispatch from Bucharest declared the Romanian government definitely would not take part.

Crippled Child Begins Lourdes Trip Hoping Hard For "Miracle"

PITTSBURGH, July 7. — (AP) — Twelve-year-old Sally Ann O'Leary, hoping hard for a "miracle" to straighten her crippled legs, today started on a 3,000-mile air journey to the Shrine of St. Bernadette at Lourdes, France.

Sally Ann was one of a group of 31 persons flying to Lourdes in an air pilgrimage to the shrine.

The group, under the leadership of the Rev. James Cox, will transfer to a TWA Constellation at New York later today. The plane will stop at Gander, Newfoundland, and Shannon, Ireland, arriving in Paris tomorrow.

Sally, crippled since birth, has been told by doctors she will never walk normally.

"I have faith that St. Bernadette will help me," the child said as she boarded the plane here. "I am going to Lourdes full of faith and I know that when I come back a few weeks later I'm going to be much better."

Her mother, who accompanied her, added: "We are all praying for a miracle."

Surgeon Holds Patient's Artery During Half-Hour Light Failure

PATERSON, N. J., July 7—(AP)—When a power failure plunged the operating room of St. Joseph's Hospital into darkness last night, a surgeon held a patient's severed abdominal artery for 30 minutes until the hospital's emergency lighting system was put into operation.

Dr. V. W. Giudice, who was performing an appendectomy, assisted by Dr. Francis J. Brogan, had made the incision in the patient's abdomen. Just as the operating room went dark, Dr. Giudice noticed that blood was spurting from the incision. Dr. Giudice located the artery in the darkness, holding it while nurses brought flashlights and candles. The light was still too dim to proceed with the operation. Working carefully so as not to halt the flow of blood in the patient's body entirely, the surgeon clasped the artery with his fingers to prevent further loss of blood.

The surgeons successfully completed the operation after the emergency lighting system was started, and the 65-year-old patient was said to have suffered no ill effects.

Bill To Cash Terminal Pay Passes House

Quick Approval By Senate Seen

WASHINGTON, July 7 — (AP) — The House unanimously passed and sent to the Senate today a bill permitting 9,000,000 holders of terminal leave pay bonds to cash them after next September 1.

The vote was 386 to 0.

Passage came after brief debate in which Republican leader Halleck of Indiana speculated that "we may meet another veto" from President Truman. The treasury department has opposed cashing the bonds as inflationary.

Treasury Opposed

Saying that the Democratic National Committee has chided Republicans for not acting on the bill, while the treasury has come out against it, Halleck continued:

"I don't know what side of the street Mr. Truman is working."

Senator Wherry (R-Neb.), Republican Whip, predicted quick Senate approval of the bill.

"I want to see it passed at this session," Wherry said. "I am speaking as an individual Senator but I expect the Senate leadership to agree to take it up and pass it."

The House-Approved Bill will go to the Senate Armed Service Committee, which will start hearings Wednesday.

Rep. Brooks (D-La.) estimated the legislation will save $200,000,000, or at the rate of $60,000,000 annually, in interest.

The legislation would permit—but not require former officers and enlisted men to cash the bonds at face value plus accrued interest through local banks anytime after Sept. 1. The estimated face value of the outstanding bonds is $1,-800,000,000, and the House Armed Services Committee said it expects about $1,000,000,000 of them to be cashed.

The others would be held for the two and one-half per cent interest the government pays on them.

The bonds were issued under a 1946 act to compensate enlisted personnel for accrued leave time, up to 120 days, which they failed to obtain while in service. Officers had been getting the pay in cash all along, by remaining on the service payrolls on "terminal leave" after their return to civilian life.

But the 1946 act required holders of the bonds to retain them for five years from the date of issue, and made them non-negotiable.

Application Date Extended

The bill extends until September 1, 1948, the deadline for applying for terminal leave pay.

Halleck told the House that the Republicans had intended all along to pass the bill. Cashing of the bonds, he said, was one of the first priorities against savings effected by Congress in federal spending.

But Rep. Dwight L. Rogers (D-Fla.), author of one of the first bills this year to provide for the cashing, scolded Republicans for having waited so long.

Rogers said Republicans "got behind legislation when they saw how popular it is."

By unanimous voice vote, the House also passed and sent to the Senate a bill to abolish terminal leave. It would require payment in cash at that time of discharge for accrued leave time. The effect would be to prohibit officers from remaining on the payrolls on "terminal leave" following their discharge.

Opponents Of UMT Urge Faith In UN

WASHINGTON, July 7 (AP) — Opponents of universal military training urged Congress today to put more faith in the United Nations and in diplomacy, and to deemphasize military might.

Opening the attack after several days of testimony by advocates of peacetime training legislation were J. They testified before the House Armed Services Committee. The committee also announced receipt of a statement from Josephus Daniels, Raleigh, N. C., publisher and former Secretary of the Navy, opposing the universal training program recommended by President Truman's Special Commission.

GOP Rushes Tax-Cut Bill For Fast Vote

Two-Thirds May Approve In House

WASHINGTON, July 7. (AP)—Republican leaders today rushed their new $4,000,000,000 tax-cut bill into position for a vote in the House tomorrow on a take-it-or-leave-it basis.

Forestalling any move to change the bill, the GOP-dominated Rules Committee barred last-minute amendments from the floor before the showdown tally.

Rep. Gary (D-Va) offered the substitute measure in the face of the Rules Committee's action providing that the Knutson Bill, granting tax cuts from 10.5 to 30 per cent, shall be voted up or down without changes. The amendment-barring rule is the usual procedure on tax bills in the House.

Permits One Motion

Under House rules, before the vote the Democratic minority will be permitted one motion to recommit or send the Knutson Bill back to the Ways and Means Committee along with instructions to the committee to write in any changes.

But the House is considered certain to kill this final motion.

The bill is identical with the legislation Mr. Truman vetoed June 16, except that the effective date of the tax relief has been changed from July 1, 1947 to January 1, 1948. The President described the first bill as "the wrong kind of tax reduction at the wrong time." He said it gave too little to low income and too much to high incomes.

Black Legion Men Say Jones Joined

WASHINGTON, July 7 (AP)—Two members of the Black Legion swore today that Rep. Robert F. Jones (R-Ohio) joined the hooded organization at a flashlight ceremony in 1938, but Jones flatly denied this and six character witnesses lauded him as a fair and tolerant man.

The conflicting testimony came at a Senate Subcommittee hearing on President Truman's nomination of Jones to be a member of the Federal Communications Commission.

One of the self-described Black Legion members was Frank A. Barber, police chief of Beaver Dam, Ohio. He testified under questioning that he was committed to a hospital for the insane for 61 days in 1922 but said this was the result of "a frameup." He acknowledged also that he once was jailed for "shooting a guy" in Hammond, Ill.

The other witness who said Jones became a member of the Legion, Glenn E. Webb of Lima, Ohio, testified that he (the witness) in 1942 forged 19 payroll checks totalling $653.86.

Senators questioned the witnesses closely on their own records.

An affidavit produced by Senator Brewster (R-Me) alleged that still another witness against Jones, 74-year old Virgil Effinger of Lima, was convicted of contempt of court in 1940 and sentenced to two months in jail and ordered to pay a $200 fine.

Just before the subcommittee concluded its open sessions, Jones took the stand to declare for the second time that he never joined the legion.

"There is absolutely no tie-up by me with any organizations that are subversive," said Jones, who has been elected to the House of Representatives five times.

He told the subcommittee he believes its members have "properly discounted" what he called efforts by Columnist Drew Pearson "to smear me."

Explosive Situation In U.N. Is Foreseen

LAKE SUCCESS, July 7 (AP)—The split between Russia and the Western powers over the Marshall Plan is expected to bring into the open within the next two weeks an explosive situation which has been smouldering for many months in the key economic organs of the United Nations.

Although U.N. officials were reluctant to comment on the outlook, there seemed to be little doubt that the enire economic program of the world organization was headed toward a major crisis.

The big blow-off was looked for at the opening of the economic and social council's summer session here July 19—if not before. It could come at the meeting of the U.N. Economic Commission for Europe now in progress in Geneva.

Gravity Emphasized

The gravity of the situation was emphasized by these developments:

1. Reports that Russia might boycott a meeting of the U.N. Asiatic and Far Eastern Economic Commission's Committee of the whole beginning here on Thursday.

2. Refusal of Russia to attend a special cereals conference, arranged by the Food and Agricultural Organization, in Paris Wednesday.

3. Absence of Russia from the International Trade Conference now going on in Geneva.

4. Withdrawal of Yugoslavia today from membership in the international labor office.

Some delegates, even before the collapse of the three-power conference in Paris last week, were seriously concerned by Russia's nonparticipation in the specialized agencies in the economic field. They now say privately that the situation has worsened.

On the other rand, there is a general feeling that the U.N. economic program has been hit hard by the British-French plan to go outside the organization to implement Secretary of State Marshall's program for European economic aid.

Russia already has served notice that she will attempt to push through a resolution, already defeated in the Economic and Employment Commission, specifying that international aid must be directed toward strictly economic ends and not toward meeting military needs or for political advantage.

Would Start Debate

Such a move would launch a general debate not only on the Marshall Plan, but on the "Truman Doctrine" as well. There was little chance that Russia could muster enough support to have her resolution adopted, but some delegates felt that a serious Russian defeat at this time might widen the breach between her and the Western Powers.

British officials disclosed that Sir Alexander Cadogan, British Delegate, had delivered an oral message from Foreign Secretary Ernest Bevin to Secretary-General Trygve Lie, just before Lie sailed for a European vacation, informing him of the Paris conference collapse.

Bevin was understood to have reiterated his promise to keep the U.N. informed on developments, but to have said it would be useless, in view of Russian opposition, to attempt to use U.N. machinery to implement the Marshall plan.

Dewey Majority In N. Y. Predicted

SAPULPA, Okla., July 7 (AP)—Texas supporters of Gov. Thomas E. Dewey for the Republican Presidential nomination predicted today the New Yorker would receive a "substantial" number of the state's 31 delegate votes at the 1948 national convention.

Texas has developed into a behind-scenes pre-convention battleground between forces of Dewey and Senator Robert A. Taft for the nomination.

George Hopkins, of Dallas, headed a steady stream of Republican political figures who visited Dewey today in his hotel suite.

"There is absolutely no tie-up by me with any organizations that are subversive," said Jones, who has been elected to the House of Representatives five times.

The visit of Hopkins, who was accompanied by William C. Briggs, chairman of the local GOP Committee of Paducah, Texas, was disclosed by the Dewey staff after he had started back for Dallas.

Unified Armed Force Needed, Lodge Says

WASHINGTON, July 7 — (AP) — Senator Lodge (R-Mass.), a World War II Ground Forces Officer, told the Senate today that in the event of another war the United States would be "doomed" unless the armed forces are unified beforehand.

Joining Senator Gurney (R-S.D.), chairman of the Armed Forces Committee, in terrifying predictions of the way any future conflict will start, Lodge declared:

"Without unification we are doomed by the nature of future war, the first effect of which will be to disunite us tactically."

The two Republicans opened debate on the "National Security Act of 1947," which is on the Republican "must" program for this session of Congress.

BANDIT SUSPECT KILLED—Police inspect body of a man shot to death by a patrolman in a crowded bus at 42nd Street and the Avenue of the Americas, New York City, yesterday as he was fleeing from the scene of a $10,000 holdup. Reporters Barred From Yacht Death Trial By Judge

Termed Aftermath Of Story On Juror

SANTA ANA, Calif., July 7. (AP)—Reporters for International News Service and the Los Angeles Examiners were barred from the Overell Yacht deaths trial today by Superior Judge Kenneth E. Morrison as the aftermath, he said, of publication and distribution of a story relating to one of the jurors.

INS was reinstated soon after when the judge was informed that the story had been killed. The Judge announced, after a conference with the Examiner's city editor, that the paper's privileges would be restored upon publication of a retraction tomorrow.

As court convened for the trial's seventh week this morning, the judge called reporters into his chambers and told an Examiner representative:

"I have played fairly with you fellows and I expect you to play the same way with me. You reported something as taking place in this court when it did not—that attorneys had asked that Mrs. Putnam be excused as a juror."

The Examiner's story said such a request had been made by the defense. Mrs. Uvon Putnam reported two weeks ago that an unidentified man entered her apartment, slapped her twice and threatened her "if you find those kids guilty."

On trial for the slayings of Financier and Mrs. Walter E. Overell aboard their cabin cruiser March 15 are the couple's only child, Louise, 18, and her boy friend, George Gollum, 21.

An Examiner executive said its Tuesday editions would carry a statement, reading in part:

". . . . The judge said that no qualification had been asked by anyone, either prosecution or defense, and that he did not 'have the matter under advisement.'

". . . . In view of Judge Morrison's denials these statements as published in Monday's Examiner must be deemed incorrect."

40 Passengers Escape Injury

NEW YORK, July 7. (AP)—A 42nd Street bus loaded with 40 passengers was the scene today of a grim gun battle which brought death to a young jewelry store robber and serious bullet wounds to the patrolman who killed the swarthy gunman.

One of the passengers was used as a shield by the robber after he had dashed into an open door of the halted bus while fleeing from the patrolman, Daniel B. Murphy, 29. The passenger was not hurt.

The robber reportedly told Murphy "I'm going to let you have it," but in the 10-shot duel that followed, he received fatal chest and head wounds.

Murphy was taken to a hospital with wounds in the chest and abdomen. He emptied his six-cartridge revolver in the battle while the robber fired four times.

The passengers cowered in their seats during the duel. James Doherty, the bus driver, sounded his horn continuously to attract other policemen. Thousands of persons in the noon-hour mid-Manhattan crowds were attracted to the scene, a block from Times Square.

A $10,000 nine-karat diamond ring and two wedding rings in the robber's pocket were identified by two jewelry store owners as having been stolen from their establishment a short time before the shooting.

Negro Maid Says She Served Gov. While Being Held

Testifies In Trial On Slavery Charge

SAN DIEGO, Calif., July 7 (AP) — Negro maid Dora Jones testified today she served Governor Leverett Saltonstall (now United States Senator) of Massachusetts and other prominent New Englanders at the Lynn and Boston homes of Mr. and Mrs. Alfred Wesley Ingalls during the time the government charges they were reducing her to slavery.

Defense cross-examination also brought out that Dora at one time compared her position in the Ingalls' household to a magazine article account of a negress in the household of General MacArthur—proud to be considered a member of the family rather than a servant working for pay.

The witness admitted that she had referred to the prominent Ingalls' guests, which Defense Attorney Clifford Fitzgerald said also included "Senators, Representatives and such," in expressing resentment later at racial prejudice.

This prejudice, the defense attempted to show, was the reason she slept in the Ingalls car rather than in hotels when she traveled West with the couple last year.

Earlier, Dora testified that although pregnancy resulted from intimacies with Mrs. Ingalls' first husband, he never kissed her and "it wasn't as if he had run up against a glamorous woman."

The 58-year-old negress said the first husband, Walter Harmon of Washington, D. C., whom Mrs. Ingalls divorced in 1918 to marry Ingalls, pursued her while she was doing her early morning work and his wife still slept. "He never got in bed with me," she said.

Dora testified that she reported those details to the then Mrs. Harmon. The federal prosecutor charges the Ingalls threatened the negress with jail and hell throughout the years because of the old affair to make her their slave.

"Sometimes I thought," Dora told the jury "I'd rather go to jail." She said she worked from 4 a. m. to 10 p. m. at the Ingalls' homes in Lynn and Boston, Mass., and never had a day off.

HIGHER ALTITUDES IN FOG ARE URGED

WASHINGTON, July 7. (AP)—President Truman's Special Air Safety Inquiry Board recommended today that aircraft be required to fly higher over mountains when the weather is soupy. It also urged early installation of electronic devices to show the distance above the ground.

This double step was proposed only four days after a Civil Aronautics Board hearing on the June 13 accident in which a Capital Airline plane crashed into a cloud-covered Blue Ridge Mountain about 60 miles from Washington, killing 50 persons.

The recommendations appeared to be closely tied to the possible causes of that tragedy, just as the first report of the five-man board was related to evidence compiled while investigating the take-off crash of a United Air Lines plane in which 44 persons were killed at New York May 29.

Flying Disc Tales Swirl Like Saucers

[By The Associated Press]

The game of spotting "Flying Saucers" broadened yesterday (Monday) to include Massachusetts and Vermont as stories about the disks continued to swirl fully as rapidly as the objects themselves.

Explanations of the phenomena ranged from the theory that they were radio controlled flying missiles sent aloft by U. S. Military Scientists to the suggestion that they might be merely sun light reflected on wing tanks of jet-propelled planes.

A. B. Cross of Chattanooga, Tenn., a 34-year-old watchmaker, announced he invented the "flying saucer" and submitted it to the War Department in 1943 but his idea was rejected as not practical "at the present time."

Later, he said, he became convinced that the Department elaborated on his plan. His model was powered with a rubber band, Cross said, but he believed atomic power now is being used.

A Spokane, Wash., woman insisted the objects she saw were of such size that together they would take up the space of a five-room house if they landed. But a Clearwater, Fla., woman said the disks she observed resembled "pie pans."

At Rutland, Vt., a woman reported she and her husband witnessed a brilliant object in the night sky which she assumed to be a "flying saucer" although it was stationary.

But at Cambridge, Mass., a housewife said she saw "a group of white, flying saucers whirling around and going at a tremendous speed."

The Massachusetts and Vermont reports brought to 40 the number of states in which the objects have been observed.

Czechs Will Attend Paris Aid Meeting

Decision Reached Despite Red Stand

PARIS, July 7 (AP)—Czechoslovawas reported tonight to have decided, despite Russia's stand, on acceptance of a British-French invitation to attend the Paris conference which opens Saturday on the Marshall Aid-Europe Plan.

An Associated Press dispatch from Prague quoted semi-official circles as saying the decision had been reached at a closed session of the Czech government.

Other Nations Delay

While other countries in the Soviet sphere of influence delayed any immediate decision, sources here hailed the Prague report as a possible indication that "Eastern," as well as "Western," European nations would be present at the meeting, designed to start the Marshall Plan rolling.

The French Foreign Ministry said tonight it had decided to wait until replies had been received from all 22 invited nations, before making any further announcements of acceptances.

Earlier, the ministry said six nations had accepted formally, and eight others were expected to do so soon. The six are Belgium, Italy, Portugal, Eire, Greece and Turkey. Acceptances "in principle" have been received unofficially from Holland, Luxembourg, Austria, Denmark, Iceland, Norway, Sweden and Switzerland, the ministry added. Reports from The Hague said Holland definitely had accepted.

Russia Refuses

Russia refused last week, at the Three-Power Conference here, to participate in a British-French plan to implement the Marshall program. However, British and French sources said they still had not given up hope that the Soviets would attend Saturday's conference.

These hopes appeared slim, however, in view of a new Soviet attack against Britain and France, delivered in Geneva today by Valerian Zorin, Russian delegate to the United Nations-sponsored Economic Commission for Europe.

Zorin told a tense session of the conference that Britain and France planned to dominate the economy of Europe "behind the back of the Soviet Union." He added that Russia could not participate in what he called "an erroneous and wrong policy quite evidently aimed at interference in the internal affairs of European countries."

Petrillo Plans To Make Records

WASHINGTON, July 7 (AP)—James C. Petrillo, president of the American Federation of Musicians, said today the union plans to call a halt to members making phonograph records and broadcasting over radio networks.

Petrillo, called on the Congressional carpet for past actions, explained that his plans for the future are grounded on the belief that musicians don't get their fair share of entertainment money.

"As of now," he told a House Labor Subcommittee, he plans to end members' making records December 31. The ban on network broadcasting, if it stands, would take effect February 1.

And if it's legally possible, Petrillo said, the union itself may make and market musical recordings.

During the afternoon session, Petrillo softened his stand this much:

"I'm in hopes that somewhere along the line," he said, "we won't have to do the things I said we'd have to do this morning."

Petrillo was the first witness in an investigation into what Chairman Rep. Kearns (R-Pa.) called the "dictatorial powers" of Petrillo over his union and the music industry.

Kearns said in in a formal statement that Petrillo's union has:

"Required theater owners throughout the United States" to employ standby orchestras "they did not need, want or use."

"Dictated" to broadcasters the amount of money they should spend for music.

"Engaged in a concerted effort to hold back the technological improvements in radio and in television."

Kearns, a member of Petrillo's union as a singer and conductor, said also:

"Your federation has interfered with and restricted the inalienable right of the people of the United States to enjoy freedom of religion and education."

North, Captive Operators Will SignPactToday

Brief Suspension Certain To Occur

WASHINGTON, July 7 (AP) — A new national pattern wage contract for soft coal miners was ratified tonight by the United Mine Workers and the Northern Mine Operators.

The mine workers voted to resume work in the Northern and "Captive" Mines tomorrow after the pact, granting a basic 44½ cents an hour wage increase, is officially signed.

The threat of a nationwide strike was thus averted although brief suspension of work by 250,000 miners in areas not yet covered by the agreement is certain to occur.

The UMW described the new "national" contract as one that covers the nation and that before any operator in any section of the country can expect union members to work his mines, he must agree to terms of the national contract.

Hopes For "Industrial Peace"

Benjamin F. Fairless, president of United States Steel Corporation, declared he was hopeful that the agreement reached with John L. Lewis will bring "industrial peace in the bituminous coal industry for a long time to come."

Formal signature ceremonies by the United Mine Workers and soft coal operators will take place at the Union Headquarters tomorrow morning at 9 a. m. (EST).

The union agreement to the contract terms was announced after a meeting of the union's 200-man Policy Committee.

Although no formal word came from coal producers of the Midwest, Far West and South, their quick concurrence in the agreement negotiated by the Northern and Steel Mine Operators was freely predicted in industry circles.

The new contract, in addition to providing for a 44½ cent hourly wage increase, was said by industry representatives to include a clause that the miners would work when "willing and able."

Lewis had insisted on this provision as protection against Taft-Hartley Labor Act penalties for unauthorized strikes.

However, Lewis receded on his demand that a United Mine Workers representative, with veto power, serve as chairman of the board administering the Miners' Welfare Fund.

The fund henceforth will be financed by a ten-cent a ton royalty on coal mined, instead of the five cents a ton which heretofore has been collected.

Southern Group To Study

The Southern Coal Producers Association announced it would not be on hand for the signing ceremonies. Instead, the Association called a meeting for 2 p. m. (EST) tomorrow, to study the pact and reach a decision.

"We don't intend to be at John L. Lewis' front door tomorrow morning ready to sign," a spokesman said. "We are going to look at this thing carefully.

"We will give it every consideration, but we want to see it first."

Fairless, in a statement issued at the office of United States Steel here said the new contract "should prove to be highly beneficial to the whole economy of the nation."

"In my judgment a coal strike at this time would have paralyzed the industry of the entire country and might also have had an adverse effect upon the international situation."

The "big steel" president, was in the forefront of secret negotiations conducted with Lewis for the last ten days.

Fairless' statement said the negotiators unanimously recommended adoption of the contract by all companies represented by them, including the "captive" mines which are owned by steel companies, and employ 65,000 miners, many of them in the South.

3 Balkan Countries To Pass Aid Meeting

LONDON, TUESDAY, July 8, (AP) The Moscow radio, quoting continental dispatches from the Soviet News Agency Tass, said early today the Romanian, Polish and Yugoslav governments had decided not to participate in the Paris conference on the aid-to-Europe proposal.

The broadcast, heard here, said a Tass dispatch from Bucharest declared the Romanian government definitely would not take part.

Crippled Child Begins Lourdes Trip Hoping Hard For "Miracle"

PITTSBURGH, July 7. — (AP) — Twelve-year-old Sally Ann O'Leary, hoping hard for a "miracle" to straighten her crippled legs, today started on a 3,000-mile air journey to the Shrine of St. Bernadette at Lourdes, France.

Sally Ann was one of a group of 31 persons flying to Lourdes in an air pilgrimage to the shrine.

The group, under the leadership of the Rev. James Cox, will transfer to a TWA Constellation at New York later today. The plane will stop at Gander, Newfoundland, and Shannon, Ireland, arriving in Paris tomorrow.

Sally, crippled since birth, has been told by doctors she will never walk normally.

"I have faith that St. Bernadette will help me," the child said as she boarded the plane here. "I am going to Lourdes full of faith and I know that when I come back a few weeks later I'm going to be much better."

Her mother, who accompanied her, added: "We are all praying for a miracle."

Surgeon Holds Patient's Artery During Half-Hour Light Failure

PATERSON, N. J., July 7—(AP)—When a power failure plunged the operating room of St. Joseph's Hospital into darkness last night, a surgeon held a patient's severed abdominal artery for 30 minutes until the hospital's emergency lighting system was put into operation.

Dr. V. W. Giudice, who was performing an appendectomy, assisted by Dr. Francis J. Brogan, had made the incision in the patient's abdomen. Just as the operating room went dark, Dr. Giudice noticed that blood was spurting from the incision. Dr. Giudice located the artery in the darkness, holding it while nurses brought flashlights and candles. The light was still too dim to proceed with the operation. Working carefully so as not to halt the flow of blood in the patient's body entirely, the surgeon clasped the artery with his fingers to prevent further loss of blood.

The surgeons successfully completed the operation after the emergency lighting system was started, and the 65-year-old patient was said to have suffered no ill effects.

In Police Court, Elvin D. Huffman, Elkins, W. Va., and Lester M. Hinkle, Flintstone, forfeited $10 bond each for careless driving over the holiday. Police said Huffman's car hooked the bumper of a cruiser car and ran through a red traffic light at Baltimore and Mechanic Streets Friday night.

Bedford County Towns Ask Local Option Balloting

Control of the sale of alcoholic beverages under local option law will be an issue in several boroughs and townships in Bedford County, Pa., at the primary election in September.

The Pennsylvania state law gives voters the right to express themselves on the subject every four years. Local option measures were last voted on in 1943 in Bedford County.

Petitions for a vote on the "wet or dry" issue are being circulated in Everett and Hyndman. These are two of the largest boroughs in the county.

In Everett, where both malt and brewed beverages and "hard" liquor are now legally sold, the petition is circulated by combined temperance groups which seek to outlaw all liquor licenses. In 1943 the "wets" won by a narrow margin. The vote permitting malt and brewed beverage sales was 383 for and 338 against, a margin for the wets of 45. The hard liquor vote was 413 for and 360 against, showing a margin of 53.

Hyndman was voted dry four years ago, the drys winning by small margins. The actual vote was—Malt and brewed beverages, 233 against and 227 for; liquor 243 against and 231 for. Petitions to have another vote taken at the September primaries are being circulated by the wets.

Other localities in which votes will be taken include Manns Choice Borough, Londonderry Township, Naiper Township, and possibly Saxton Borough.

The question is submitted to the voters when petitions are presented signed by 25 per cent of the votes cast for the leading candidate at the preceding general election.

ple in the county than any other employer, owned half the coal land and owned or controlled all the rail facitilies of the county.

The history as compiled by Thomas and Williams gives interesting accounts of early labor battles with Consolidation Coal Company pitting its power and influence against the Knights of Labor, the Federation of Miners and Mine Laborers, and later the United Mine Workers.

Coal was mined here for the Company at 40 cents a ton during one long period, and in the early 1880's the Knights of Labor struck against the Consol. The Company then introduced outside labor and imported Germans, Swedes, and Slavs, most of whom had no mining experience and generally turned to farming or other pursuits.

The Consolidation Coal Company was chartered in 1860 and the officers and board of directors were composed largely of New York citizens.

Found guilty of operating a motor vehicle with a revoked license Saturday, Robert Francis Forbeck, Winifred Road, was fined $100.75 and was sentenced by Magistrate Frank A. Perdew to 30 days in the County Jail in default of payment. He was apprehended by State Trooper William F. Baker on Oldtown Road, this city.

Bruce, Jr. A drunken driving charge was dropped by the arresting officers. Alkire's jeep struck the parked car of Lester H. Jewell, this city. No one was injured.

Magistrate Bruce also fined Herman E. Raley, 110 Bellevue Street, this city, $5.75 after he pleaded guilty to exceeding 30 miles per hour in the Narrows on Route 40 Sunday. He was apprehended by Trooper Robert Henline.

Two out of town drivers forfeited bonds. One, Williard E. Evans, Hazleton, Pa., forfeited $6.45 after he had been arrested Saturday in LaVale for following the car in front of him too closely. Russell N. Bleeke, Indianapolis, Ind., forfeited parking in LaVale, Saturday. Both were apprehended by Trooper Henline.

Other forfeitures included Eugene R. Greene, 11 Park Avenue, Frostburg, $11.45 for exceeding 50 miles per hour and $6.45 for driving without a license and George E. Langham, Barton, $6.45, for passing another vehicle when the way ahead was not clear. Both were arrested by Trooper Coddington.

Bedford County Towns Ask Local Option Balloting

Control of the sale of alcoholic beverages under local option law will be an issue in several boroughs and townships in Bedford County, Pa., at the primary election in September.

The Pennsylvania state law gives voters the right to express themselves on the subject every four years. Local option measures were last voted on in 1943 in Bedford County.

Petitions for a vote on the "wet or dry" issue are being circulated in Everett and Hyndman. These are two of the largest boroughs in the county.

In Everett, where both malt and brewed beverages and "hard" liquor are now legally sold, the petition is circulated by combined temperance groups which seek to outlaw all liquor licenses. In 1943 the "wets" won by a narrow margin. The vote permitting malt and brewed beverage sales was 383 for and 338 against, a margin for the wets of 45. The hard liquor vote was 413 for and 360 against, showing a margin of 53.

Hyndman was voted dry four years ago, the drys winning by small margins. The actual vote was—Malt and brewed beverages, 233 against and 227 for; liquor 243 against and 231 for. Petitions to have another vote taken at the September primaries are being circulated by the wets.

Other localities in which votes will be taken include Manns Choice Borough, Londonderry Township, Naiper Township, and possibly Saxton Borough.

Sewer Ordinance Amended By City

A city ordinance enacted in 1941 was re-enacted yesterday by the Mayor and City Council with some amendments, one requiring persons tapping the city sewage system to obtain permits from the city engineer.

Pertaining to tappage by residents living beyond the city limits, the ordinance requires persons tapping to pay $75 to the city and have separate taps for each building. The applicant must pay the expense of construction of a sewer line and is required to connect with the city sewer line under the supervision of the city engineer.

A bid of $1,000 was submitted by William H. Geppert for Lot No. 15, Block 28, Johnson's Heights Addition, located on Brookfield Avenue. The bidder would take care of all legal and surveying expenses.

A petition protesting a proposed dwelling and garage-apartment on a corner lot of Kent and Louisiana Avenues signed by residents of that area was presented to City Council. The petition states that residents do not want an apartment in that residential area. The petition was turned over to Ralph L. Rizer, city engineer.

John E. Matthews, 1405 Oldtown Road, appeared before council to ask if the city would help open Turner Street where he is planning a development of seven houses. Matthews said that House No. 1401 sets out in the street 15 feet and he seeks to enter Turner Street from the rear.

Thirty-four building permits, including 20 for new construction and 14 for additions and improvements, were granted during the past month the city engineer reported to the Council.

The new construction and improvements were estimated at $91,500 with fees collected totalling $490.30.

Police and Fire Comissioner William V. Keegan reported 430 arrests with fines totalling $840. Twenty-seven fire calls were answered with only a small property loss.

Soldier Waives Rights In Divorce Action

Mrs. Olive K. Duffy, Cresaptown, was granted an absolute divorce and the right to resume her maiden name, Olive K. Robinette, in a decree signed yesterday by Chief Judge William A. Huster, in Circuit Court. Testimony indicated the couple married at Hayn, Kansas, February 14, 1943, while he was in the Army. They separated in New York in January 1944.

Duffy, who is still in the Army, and stationed in Florida, signed a waiver to his rights under the Soldiers and Sailors Relief Act and allowed himself to be used as a private citizen in the action.

Divorce actions filed yesterday included one by Michael D. Perry against Juanita Wright Perry whom he married April 19, 1945, in San Bernardino, Calif. He claims they separated after only three days of married life.

Willa L. Whitehead seeks divorce from John T. Whitehead. The couple married March 24, 1945, and separated September 19, 1945. She asks the right to resume her maiden name of Willa Pirone.

William S. Samone seeks divorce from Mary Samone, whom he married in Baltimore, September 28, 1944. He claims they separated January 2, 1945. Her maiden name is given as Mary Protisck.

Helen Kergan entered suit against Robert C. Kergan, but no details were given.

Condition Still Critical

No change was reported yesterday in the critical condition of Osa C. Lawrence, 61, 411 Central Avenue, who was badly injured June 27 when the car in which he was riding collided with a tractor-trailer truck at Medina, Ohio. His son, Raymond F. Lawrence, 27 Detroit, was killed in the crash.

Successful tests have been made of a method to make refrigerated railroad shipments without the use of ice.

Sewer Ordinance Amended By City

A city ordinance enacted in 1941 was re-enacted yesterday by the Mayor and City Council with some amendments, one requiring persons tapping the city sewage system to obtain permits from the city engineer.

Pertaining to tappage by residents living beyond the city limits, the ordinance requires persons tapping to pay $75 to the city and have separate taps for each building. The applicant must pay the expense of construction of a sewer line and is required to connect with the city sewer line under the supervision of the city engineer.

A bid of $1,000 was submitted by William H. Geppert for Lot No. 15, Block 28, Johnson's Heights Addition, located on Brookfield Avenue. The bidder would take care of all legal and surveying expenses.

A petition protesting a proposed dwelling and garage-apartment on a corner lot of Kent and Louisiana Avenues signed by residents of that area was presented to City Council. The petition states that residents do not want an apartment in that residential area. The petition was turned over to Ralph L. Rizer, city engineer.

John E. Matthews, 1405 Oldtown Road, appeared before council to ask if the city would help open Turner Street where he is planning a development of seven houses. Matthews said that House No. 1401 sets out in the street 15 feet and he seeks to enter Turner Street from the rear.

Treasury Surplus Makes Tax Cut Virtually Certain

The Government surplus for the year ended June 30—first experience of its kind in seventeen years—has encouraged virtually all Republicans and some Democrats in Congress to pass another tax reduction bill, which the House is expected to do before another sun sets. And they have much reason on their side. They are able to point out that the nation is far better off financially than anyone thought it would be at this time.

Why not, then, let the people know now that next January they will receive the relief from high taxes which is clearly their due and for which they have been anxiously awaiting.

Fundamentally there is nothing the matter with this argument. It is in line with a pledge which the Republicans made when they sought votes last Fall and which they would have redeemed except for the President's veto. But there is the unquestioned fact that re-introduction of a tax bill will again encounter Mr. Truman's opposition.

The only difference between this new bill and the original measure, which Mr. Truman vetoed, is that the effective date is fixed at January 1 next, instead of the past July 1. That difference, we believe, is enough for plenty of Democratic members of Congress who voted against the first measure but who still want taxes reduced and who have expressed a desire for an opportunity to vote again on the measure—this time to pass it and override a veto.

By advancing the effective date of the tax cut by six months will mean adding about $2,000,000,000 to the present fiscal year's revenues, a substantial addition to the surplus already existing, and to be applied to the public debt. It will mean going through this calendar year on taxes already levied and being paid, and starting next year with lower taxes definitely promised.

It has been a long time since the American people have had an opportunity to plan their next year's business activities with the bright and definite prospect of lower taxes. It is an outlook calculated to stimulate greater enterprise, risk-taking and job-making—and quite likely to produce expanding revenues from an expanding business volume.

Of course, it should be remembered particularly that the President's refusal to approve the tax bill was based primarily on the thesis that the government must continue to take great gobs of the people's income so they will not spend the money foolishly and bring about inflation. This obviously may mean that despite the unexpected surplus he will resolutely fight against the enactment of the same measure now.

But it is our guess that if Congress passes the new Knutson tax cut, Mr. Truman will think twice before concluding that he can again turn thumbs down on the measure for that reason and at the same time convince the American people he is right. His principal objection to the old measure will no longer apply. And if he should veto it, there will be plenty of Democrats to help the Republicans override.

China Passes The Hat

It was to be expected that the Truman plan to check the advance of communism in Greece would stimulate other nations to seek American funds, ostensibly for the same purpose. Such a request has now come in, from Vice President Sun Fo in China. Dr. Sun says China may go communist unless the United States helps, and that Manchuria, China's main industrial potential, may come under Soviet domination.

In considering his request, it is necessary to note the significant differences between China and Greece. Not the least of these differences is the practical one of size. China's area and population are between 50 and 100 times as great as those of Greece, and the cost of effective aid to her—granting that such aid could be effective—would be proportionally greater.

There is less indication of Russian influence on Chinese than on Greek communists. The civil war between the Kuomintang and the Chinese communists began long before the war with Japan and seems to have changed little. If there has been widespread aid to the Chinese communists by Russia, Marshall and other American diplomats who have been on the scene have not divulged the fact.

The government of China may be no worse than that of Greece, but men like Generals Stilwell and Marshall, among others, have found it less willing to agree to reforms without which American aid would not be effective.

American taxpayers have a right to insist that any money this nation gives shall not be used to strengthen the grip of a one-party dictatorship, but to promote greater economic recovery. If the Chinese government will work out a constructive plan, American taxpayers might not be violently opposed to tossing a few millions in China's hat, but they are tired of paying wartime taxes for handouts to other nations.

Disaster Aftermath

Memories of the Winecoff Hotel tragedy in Atlanta are stirred by the decision of the Supreme Court of Georgia which dismissed indictments against the hotel operators for failure to provide outside fire escapes. The court held unconstitutional the 1910 fire escape act as "class legislation," insofar as it required escapes on hotels charging $2 or more a day for rooms and made no provision for the protection of guests in cheaper hotels.

The court had to pass on the law as it stood, and existing law in Georgia apparently was as antiquated and inadequate to public safety as any hotel without modern fire protection for guests. It is indeed startling that the law was written to afford protection only to a better-paying class of hotel guests and had no regard to the cheaper type of hostelry which might be assumed to hold greater fire hazards.

In effect, it seemed to warn the public that the ample size of his pocketbook was a hotel guest's best available fire protection.

Bad laws may present a greater menace to the public welfare than unsafe buildings. The decision in the Georgia case should arouse public interest everywhere to the measure of protection afforded by laws affecting public safety.

Brides are urged by a home economics expert to make cooking a gay and amusing experience. He overlooks the slight detail that the bridegroom is supposed to eat her cooking.

HOW TO KEEP WELL

By Dr. Theodore R. Van Dellen

To the limit of space, questions pertaining to the prevention of disease will be answered. Personal replies will be made, under proper limitations, when return stamped envelope is enclosed. Dr. Van Dellen will not make diagnoses or prescribe for individual diseases.

OUT OF THIS WORLD

DAYDREAMING is innocuous so long as it does not interfere with normal activities or occupy too much time. Most of us have difficulty in coming back to earth and continuing with the tasks of the day.

In a certain type of mental illness—schizophrenia, formerly called "dementia precox" — the story is different. The victim lapses into a perpetual daydream from which he does not return unless treated successfully. It is characteristic for such sufferers to escape reality and live in a world of their own. Their actions depend upon what is going on in their own sphere and, as a result, their odd behavior is obvious.

Schizophrenia is most likely to appear in early adult life. In the majority, changes occur by degrees so that the condition may not be recognized for months or years. As they crawl into a shell, they lose interest gradually in friends, relatives, and loved ones. Soon they become indifferent to matters which formerly concerned them and situations which ordinarily would arouse them to anger or fear are now encountered with complete calm. A family catastrophe might be met with a shrug of the shoulders or an utterance, "Too bad." Meanwhile all sense of pride in appearance disappears; those who were immaculate now become dirty and untidy in dress.

In this dream state, everything centers about themselves. Consequently statements over the radio, articles or cartoons in newspapers or magazines, are interpreted as pointing to them. The response may be good or bad, depending upon the context of what is heard or seen. In addition, conversations are held with individuals in their land of make-believe. The voices they hear are real to them and the same can be said of distortions of taste, smell, and vision.

Delusions exist also but are usually transitory and somewhat fantastic. People are persecuting them and trying to get information from them; thus they become suspicious of the radio or believe that microphones or other electrical gadgets are hidden thruout the house for spying purposes.

There are various forms of the disease. In the simple variety, indifference predominates. Hebephreniacs display incoherence and silliness of thought, action, and speech. The catatonic gets into a stupor during which he is speechless and scarcely moves; unless tube fed, may die of starvation. Sometimes every command that is given will be obeyed; others refuse to do anything. The paranoid generally suffers from persecutions and as such may prove dangerous. Delusions and hallucinations are marked.

Medicine has much to offer. With shock therapy and other psychiatric treatment, more and more are brought back to reality where they can rejoin their families and live as useful citizens. An operation is available for the less fortunate. By severing certain nerves in the brain, the surgeon hopes to bring the patient out of his life of fantasy. If tension or excitement are present, they are relieved and the sufferer is happier and more easily managed.

POLYPS RECUR

P. S. writes: Several years ago I was operated on for nasal polyps but the trouble has returned. What is the cause of this?

REPLY

Polyps have some of the characteristics of a bad penny—they frequently recur. They form in the first place because of longstanding inflammation or allergic reactions in the nose; should these conditions persist, new lesions will grow. Removal is done chiefly to aid breathing.

READING LIGHT

G. W. writes: If a person reads by flashlight, will it impair the vision?

REPLY

The light must be adequate whether it comes from a flashlight fireplace, or electric bulb. The latter is preferred as it is less likely to induces strain. Children sometimes read in bed by flashlight when they should be sleeping. This practice is condemned especially if it goes on for several hours. The batteries grow weaker without the reader realizing it.

It Says Here

By BOB HOPE

I understand they're experimenting with the idea of shooting our daily mail to us by rocket. They're having a little trouble, though, trying to decide whose picture to put on the rocket stamp . . . President Truman's or Buck Rogers.

The old saying was, "The postman always rings twice." Now it's "Duck, Herman . . . Here comes a special delivery."

The special delivery service is even faster, of course. It reaches its destination by regular rocket and then a postman takes it from there by jet-propelled roller skates.

Yessir, now it'll only take seventeen minutes to send a letter. Of course there's one thing that's even faster than these rockets. That's the stamp collectors who chase 'em.

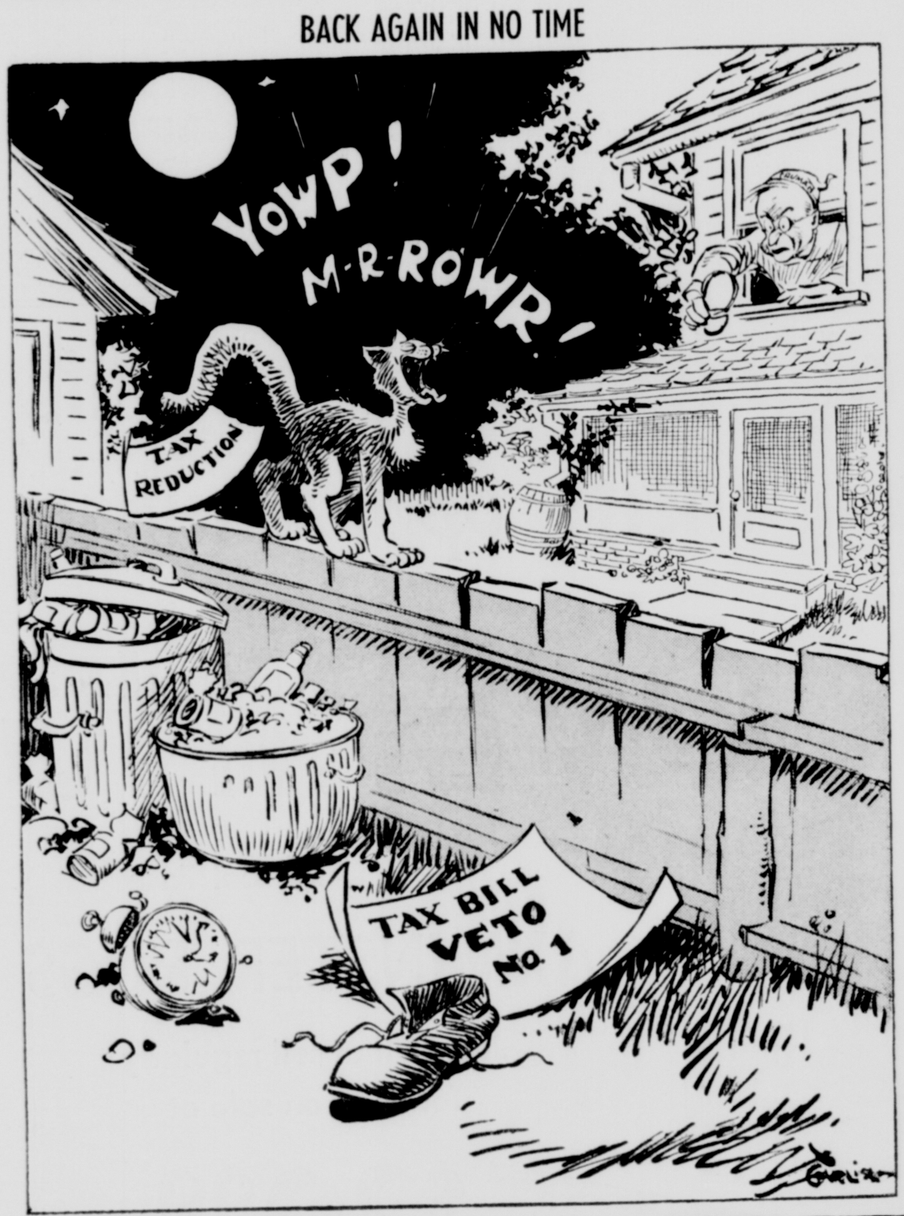

All this speed bothers me and I'm beginning to agree with the song, "Everything is going too fast."

You pick up the weekly magazines and they even tell you how fast to read the stories. It's driving me crazy! It says, "reading time: thirty seconds." And twice they dropped my subscription because I couldn't make it in less than thirty-two!

It's even affecting the clocks. When it's six p. m. the cuckoo only has time to step out for a short coook. Maybe I'm old-fashioned but I'm against too much speed. It's nerve-wracking, dangerous, and besides I get paid by the hour.

The Washington Merry-Go-Round

Says DREW PEARSON

WASHINGTON—The Government probe into dapper Bugsy Siegel, slain Nevada gangster, reveals that he had some amazing contacts, high and low, bizarre and unique. He raised money in all sorts of interesting places, some apparently from his girl friend, Virginia Hill, and at one time several years ago from Charles Ward, one of the leading businessmen of the northwest.

In 1938, U. S. agents, then investigating Siegel, found that he had received $20,000 from Ward, now head of Brown and Bigelow, well-known St. Paul, Minn., stationery firm. The money was accompanied by a letter telling Siegel that this was all Ward could raise at the time. Later Ward sent Siegel a check for $80,000, raising the total payment to $100,000. Apparently Ward was not anxious to hide the transaction, or he would not have made the payment by check.

Asked by this columnist about the payments, Mr. Ward said that he had borrowed some money from Siegel and was paying it back.

Though it illustrates Siegel's far-flung associates, this payment is not figuring in the current investigation.

Mission to Paris

However, what does arouse the curiosity of Government agents is the departure of Virginia Hill, together with a Chinese woman doctor, Dr. Chung, and a French wine merchant for Paris a few weeks before Bugsy as bumped off. Miss Hill said she was going to France to establish a champagne agency, and considering the fact that her champagne bill at Ciro's on one night alone was $7,000, her desire to import her own champagne is understandable.

At about the same time Miss Hill departed for Paris, another associate of Siegel's — Billy Wilkerson, publisher of the Hollywood Reporter—also left Hollywood for France. Wilkerson was nominal owner and builder of the Flamingo Hotel, ornate gambling casino in Las Vegas, though the real owner was Siegel.

Siegel is reported to have run into financial difficulties with the Flamingo and to have been anxious to borrow $1,500,000 shortly before his death. The Flamingo, incidentally, had cost a minimum of $3,000,000 to build.

Virginia Hill has been one of the most lavish entertainers in Hollywood, spending an estimated $200,000 a year. It was at her Beverly Hills home that Bugsy Siegel was killed. A gold key to her house was found in his pocket.

Marshall Pleads

It was not entirely coincidence that on the day the Big Three Marshall Plan Conference broke up in Paris, Secretary of State Marshall went up to the Capitol, pleaded with the Senate almost on bended knee to pass the Mundt Bill authorizing the State Department to conduct foreign propaganda.

For, while Marshall was pleading with the Senate not to muzzle the State Department's "Voice of America," Russian propaganda was blaring forth the Molotov version of why the Paris conference failed.

That version was that the USA wanted to meddle with the sovereignty of small European nations, wanted to dominate Europe, wanted to tell each country who it could or could not have in power.

Actually the chief disrupter, dominator and meddler in Europe has been not the USA but the USSR—as witness Hungary, Bulgaria, Yugoslavia, Rumania and to some extent Austria and Greece.

However, when people are told one thing and told it often enough, they get to believe it. And a large part of Europe has come to believe the Soviet propaganda machine—simply because the State Department hasn't had sufficient means to give the other side of the story.

A little over a year ago, for instance, the Russians sent a wheat-laden ship to Marseilles to relieve French hunger. When it arrived, the streets of Marseilles were bedecked with the sickle and hammer, an official holiday was declared, the populace paraded through the streets to welcome the Soviet vessel.

What the French people didn't know was: 1. That they had to pay Russia for the wheat—and in dollars, not francs; 2. That simultaneously several U. S. ships were arriving in Havre with wheat which was a free gift from the American people.

However, the United States had no adequate propaganda machine to publicize its gifts to France, and the Russians, backed by a virile Communist party got all the credit.

Baruch's "Cold War"

Best description of what's going on in Europe today was given by elder statesman Bernie Baruch when he said we were in a "cold war" (Actually Baruch gives credit to ghost-writer Herbert Bayard Swope for coining the phrase.)

What the Swope-Baruch team meant, of course, was that we are in a war of nerves, politics, and labor movements. If the USA can woo and win certain political groups in France and Italy, it can keep Western Europe from going Communist. If, on the other hand, Russia can woo and win them, Europe will definitely go Communist.

During the war, the Office of Strategic Services spent millions smuggling U. S. labor leaders behind enemy lines to make contacts with German, Italian, Austrian, French, Norwegian labor leaders, thus undermining Axis politics and industry. In today's cold war the same thing is even more necessary—but with not one cent being spent on it.

In contrast, the Russians have agents in U. S. factories, in U. S. labor unions, even some in U. S. Government offices.

And to get money from Congress so we won't have to sweat out this cold war with our mouth gagged and one arm tied behind our back, General Marshall literally has to get down on his knees before Congress. Even then he doesn't get what he really needs.

Note—Though the shrewd British are pulling almost everything out of Greece for "economy" reasons, they aren't reducing their propaganda operations there. British "information" to Greek schools and newspapers costs around $2,000,000 annually; ours did cost $125,000—until Congress cut it out. We spend $150,000,000 on food and arms for the Greek Army, but not one per cent of that to educate the Greeks on the difference between our democracy and Russian Communism.

THESE DAYS By George E. Sokolsky

The Communist Cases

ALL IN ONE DAY, the Communist alien, Gerhart Eisler, the Communist in the State Department, Carl A. Marzani, the head of the Communist party in America, Eugene Dennis, and 16 officers of a Communist Front organization — the Joint Anti-Fascist Refugee Committee—were sentenced by federal courts. Also, the State Department dismissed ten employees apparently because they are Communists. With the exception of Marzani and the State Department dismissals, all these cases involved contempt of the Congress of the United States, by refusal to testify in order before the House Committee on UnAmerican Activities. These men even refused to take the oath in advance of testimony.

Eisler was particularly contemptuous to the end. He undoubtedly is accustomed to European political courts in which the witnesses are often permitted to make political speeches denouncing the government, the courts, the world. His principal complaint is that he was not permitted to make a speech. He was required to conform to American rules of procedure, which did not serve him.

The Communists have taken the position that they need not testify before the House Committee on UnAmerican Activities because this Committee is unconstitutional, as one of its members, Congressman John E. Rankin of Mississippi, was not legally elected to Congress. The objection to Rankin is that his State uses the Poll Tax and that therefore he was improperly elected. Should their position be upheld by the courts, every Congressman from such a State would sit unconstitutionally. They ignore the clear provisions of the Constitution which state in Article I, "Section 4. The times, places, and manner of holding elections for Senators and Representatives shall be prescribed in each State by the Legislature thereof; but the Congress may at any time by law make or alter such regulations, except as to the places of choosing Senators."

Further, "Section 5. Each House shall be the judge of the elections, returns, and qualifications of its own members. . ."

In accordance with these provisions of the Constitution, John Rankin's tenure as a member of the House of Representatives cannot be questioned and as a matter of fact, the Supreme Court has no authority in the matter as the Communists will in time discover, if they do not know it already. The Supreme Court may not invade the specific authority of Congress.

The fact is that the Communists are using these cases for propaganda purposes to establish persecution in the minds of the public. They have in all countries gained liberal support by cry-babying "persecution" when they are out of power. Once in power, with liberal assistance, they kill the liberals. All that these men who now stand convicted needed to do was to testify before the Committee in accordance with procedure, which better men than they have done, as distasteful as it may have been. The Communists themselves state the case as follows:

"Shall the House Committee on UnAmerican Activities continue to violate the Constitution by invoking a usurped police power against progressives, liberal trade unions and Communists?"

It is curious that they speak of usurping "police power" when all that the Congressional Committee sought was information in the general welfare of the United States—information that Congress has a right to have. The Pujo, Black, and LaFollette Commitees sought similar information from business men an dobtained it. Judge Ferdinand Pecora, as counsel for a Congressional Committee, obtained such information from J. P. Morgan and other bankers and as a result of his searches, the SEC came into existence. If the power to investigate were taken from Congress, it could not pass legislation except blindly, without data, without facts. This is an utterly untenable proposition.

The Communists invariably shout "red-baiting", which is beginning to sound like "Stop Thief!" shouted by the pickpocket. The Courts will undoubtedly so hold. In Soviet Russia, the Communist leaders list their sentences as men in this country do honorary degrees, decorations and citations. It is a mark of distinction. Maybe some of their American proto-types plan to establish that as a new fashion here. They can suit themselves, but it is not red-baiting to insist on due process of the law and traditional American procedure. All Americans are equal in this respect.

Action Of Church Groups On Legislation Hit By Writer

By DAVID LAWRENCE

WASHINGTON, July 7. — The action of large church organizations in permitting their names to be used for or against pending legislation has its embarrassing moments. Printed copies of the recent hearings on the reciprocal trade and tariff issues before the House Ways and Means Commitee, which have just become available, reveal an interesting colloquy between Charles P. Taft, president of the Federal Council of the Churches of Christ, and Representative Daniel A. Reed of New York, Republican.

Mr. Taft in his personal capacity is an expert on trade relations, having recently served very efficiently in the Department of State. So far as his political and economic backgound is concerned he is perhaps as far toward the "left" as his brother, the senator from Ohio, is to the "right."

Charles Taft testified first in his personal capacity and made an able witness and this correspondent agrees with him on the views presented, so the point being made here has no reference to the merits of the subject under study by the Ways and Means Committee. It was when Mr. Taft testified as a representative of the Federal Council of the Churches of Christ, an organization of Protestant churches, that Representative Reed asked some searching questions. He wanted to know how many members were in the organization and Mr. Taft said about 27,000,000, but stated he was not speaking for any such number. He was then asked if the Methodists were a part of the group and whether, in endorsing the operation of the reciprocal trade agreements law, they were really familiar with what had been happening. The witness said he presumed they were not.

Not For Prohibition

Mr. Taft said that the Federal Council at its Seattle convention passed a resolution about temperance activities but he added: "the churches today in the Federal Council at least do not stand officially for prohibition." Thereupon Representative Reed inquired:

"However, did they take an interest in the trade agreements with Canada in 1936 and 1939 by which they lowered the duty on liquor—that is whisky—from $5 per gallon to $2.50?"

Mr. Taft replied that he did not think they took any steps. Representative Reed went on to say:

"Well, you are representing the churches here; I know you must be speaking for them here. Of course it is a loss of revenue of almost $1,000,000 as a result of lowering these taxes. A very interesting thing to me is—I know the churches must have some interest—the fact that they have on the list, over there in Geneva, to lower still further the tax on whisky, brandy, gin, rum, and other distilled spirits, champagne, vermouth, and other wines, with certain exceptions, beer and ale and malt products. I can't tell to what extent. Of course, they had no particular referendum, with fine church organizations and the like, on this item."

Mr. Taft commented: Their experience with prohibition has led them, to a very considerable degree, to the position that the promotion of temperance must be an educational process and it cannot be done by law—that is my conviction, sir."

Representative Reed then inquired: "They are using this method of letting in more liquor to sort of educate people not to use it, is that the idea?"

Mr. Taft thought not and that it was merely a "source of dollars to the British" in world trade exchange. Mr. Reed promptly put into the record a long list of figures showing the recent imports of alcoholic beverages into the United States. The incident illustrates how distrustful members of Congress are of statements by committees purporting to represent the views of large church organizations.

No Need For Risks

Thus, for instance, there are members of Congress who do not believe that the recent statement issued by the Social Action Department of the National Catholic Welfare Conference arguing for presidential veto of the Taft-Hartley Labor Bill was ever submitted to any large group of Catholics to pass upon but represented the view of a handful of "left wingers" who tried to use the name of a large and splendid organization to achieve a political action.

This is the kind of danger encountered when church units insist on dabbling in politics. Congress long ago recognized this trend when it passed a law which authorizes the Bureau of Internal Revenue to withdraw tax exemption from any church organization, religious body, charitable institution or foundation which becomes active in attempting "to influence legislation by propaganda or otherwise."

When a tax-exempt organization insists on the right to engage in political propaganda, the fact that moral issues are involved does not immunize the organization from tax difficulties. Those individuals who contribute funds, moreover, run the risk of having deductibility on tax returns denied them because political contributions are not deductible for income-tax purposes.

There is no need to run these risks. For there are plenty of legitimate propaganda opportunities for clergymen, acting in their individual capacity, to take good care of the field of morality as it affects or is affected by government policy on political and economic questions.

Vital Decision Confronting Czechoslovakia On U. S. Plan

By MARK SULLIVAN

During this week, by Saturday or before, America will hear decisive news. It will come from a small country, Czechoslovakia, but it will reveal the attitude of a large country, Russia, toward us and our Marshall plan for the restoration of Europe.

By the Marshall plan, we advised the countries of Europe that they should get together for cooperative use of their own resources for self-help toward over-all recovery. We said that as soon as this is done we will contribute money and food and goods and machinery and every other possible help to recovery.

Britain and France received the Marshall plan with approval, Brittain with special enthusiasm, and their Foreign Ministers conferred at Paris with Foreign Minister Molotov of Russia. Molotov tried to bully them, warned them not to go on with the plan. But Britain and France went on nevertheless. They sent invitations to 22 European countries, for a meeting to be held July 12th. The answers to these invitations will tell a momentous story—how many nations and what ones are willing to go on with the Marshall plan; what ones are so under awe of Russia that they feel constrained to take her attitude. Those "we accepts" and "we regrets" next Saturday will be an epochal line-up, a division of the world into two.

Czech's Reply Awaited

Of all the responses, the one from Czechoslovakia will give most light. That country is not among the ones so completely subservient to Russia that their answers can be known in advance, such as Yugoslavia and Bulgaria. At the same time Czechoslovakia is so situated that it can by no means escape showing some deference to Russia. Its head, Premier Gottwald and Foreign Minister Jan Masaryk, as soon as they received the invitation from Britain and France, hurried off to Moscow, troubled men on a somber errand.

In Washington, observers and officials feel that the answer Czechoslovakia gives next Saturday will reflect the precise shading of Russia's attitude. They think it possible that Russia, after a week of reflection since it abruptly flouted the Marshall plan, may have modified its attitude. If the Czech answer is an acceptance, it will be interpreted as meaning that the Russian attitude is not completely recalcitrant, that it is still possible to avoid utter division of the world into two. If the Czech answer is a refusal, that will be interpreted as meaning that Russia is prepared to go to extremes in refusal to cooperate, that the division of the world into two is definitely under way.

One feels sympathy for Czechoslovakia, a small country caught in the middle as two worlds begin to grind. In coming to decision between the two, Czechoslovakia is by her vital circumstances pulled both ways. Geographically she is a bridge between the two, economically a link between them, with no desire more poignant than to be allowed to live at peace with both. Geographically she is literally in the middle, almost surrounded by Russia and the lands Russia dominates, yet on one front in contact with the Western world. Economically a small land-locked manufacturing country, she is dependent for most of her market and much of her materials on both Russia and the Western world.

Loan May Depend on Attitude

At this moment the pull upon Czechoslovakia to go along with Russia is balanced by a circumstance that draws her toward accepting the English-French invitation and cooperating with the Marshall plan and the United States. Some time ago she applied to the World Bank for a loan of approximately a quarter billion dollars. With this she could get her industry into high gear, without it she will be hard pressed. Whether the World Bank grants the loan must depend in large part on how Czecholovakia decides this week. If she accepts the English-French invitation and cooperates in European recovery, she is likely to get the loan, for recovery is the object of the Bank's loans. It is difficult to conceive the loan being granted if she does not accept.

The poignant picture of a small country trying to get along with great ones and with contending worlds is illustrated by a story told in Washington, whether or not an actual incident or one invented to epitomize a situation. Some years ago Foreign Minister Masaryk came to Washington to see Cordell Hull, then Secretary of State. The Czechs had just signed a treaty of alliance and mutual aid with Russia. Mr. Hull reproachfully asked Masaryk why his country signed the treaty. As reply, Masaryk leaned over, took a piece of blank paper from the desk, and carefully signed his name at the bottom. "Mr. Secretary" he said "I have just signed a treaty of friendship and mutual aid with the United States. Will you fill in above my signature whatever you think the terms should be?"

The story sounds like Masaryk. He is a pungent person. Once he said "My country is a bridge between East and West—and you know what people use bridges for."

NEWSgrams

The straw poll began as an intermittent practice of United States journalism in 1824. In that year the Harrisburg Pennsylvanian sent out reporters to inquire among citizens whether they were going to vote for Henry Clay, Andrew Jackson, John Quincy Adams or William H. Crawford for president.

Dr. Hugh H. Bennett, Chief of the U. S. Soil Conservation Service, says that in the last two hundred years the United States has ruined 100 million acres of cropland by soil erosion and severely damaged another 100 million acres.

Grain export quotas for August, 1947, total 52,899,000 bushels, of which almost 41,000,000 bushels will be wheat or its flour equivalent and 5,410,000 bushels will be corn.

Treasury Surplus Makes Tax Cut Virtually Certain

The Government surplus for the year ended June 30—first experience of its kind in seventeen years—has encouraged virtually all Republicans and some Democrats in Congress to pass another tax reduction bill, which the House is expected to do before another sun sets. And they have much reason on their side. They are able to point out that the nation is far better off financially than anyone thought it would be at this time.

Why not, then, let the people know now that next January they will receive the relief from high taxes which is clearly their due and for which they have been anxiously awaiting.

Fundamentally there is nothing the matter with this argument. It is in line with a pledge which the Republicans made when they sought votes last Fall and which they would have redeemed except for the President's veto. But there is the unquestioned fact that re-introduction of a tax bill will again encounter Mr. Truman's opposition.

The only difference between this new bill and the original measure, which Mr. Truman vetoed, is that the effective date is fixed at January 1 next, instead of the past July 1. That difference, we believe, is enough for plenty of Democratic members of Congress who voted against the first measure but who still want taxes reduced and who have expressed a desire for an opportunity to vote again on the measure—this time to pass it and override a veto.

By advancing the effective date of the tax cut by six months will mean adding about $2,000,000,000 to the present fiscal year's revenues, a substantial addition to the surplus already existing, and to be applied to the public debt. It will mean going through this calendar year on taxes already levied and being paid, and starting next year with lower taxes definitely promised.

It has been a long time since the American people have had an opportunity to plan their next year's business activities with the bright and definite prospect of lower taxes. It is an outlook calculated to stimulate greater enterprise, risk-taking and job-making—and quite likely to produce expanding revenues from an expanding business volume.

Of course, it should be remembered particularly that the President's refusal to approve the tax bill was based primarily on the thesis that the government must continue to take great gobs of the people's income so they will not spend the money foolishly and bring about inflation. This obviously may mean that despite the unexpected surplus he will resolutely fight against the enactment of the same measure now.

But it is our guess that if Congress passes the new Knutson tax cut, Mr. Truman will think twice before concluding that he can again turn thumbs down on the measure for that reason and at the same time convince the American people he is right. His principal objection to the old measure will no longer apply. And if he should veto it, there will be plenty of Democrats to help the Republicans override.

China Passes The Hat

It was to be expected that the Truman plan to check the advance of communism in Greece would stimulate other nations to seek American funds, ostensibly for the same purpose. Such a request has now come in, from Vice President Sun Fo in China. Dr. Sun says China may go communist unless the United States helps, and that Manchuria, China's main industrial potential, may come under Soviet domination.

In considering his request, it is necessary to note the significant differences between China and Greece. Not the least of these differences is the practical one of size. China's area and population are between 50 and 100 times as great as those of Greece, and the cost of effective aid to her—granting that such aid could be effective—would be proportionally greater.

There is less indication of Russian influence on Chinese than on Greek communists. The civil war between the Kuomintang and the Chinese communists began long before the war with Japan and seems to have changed little. If there has been widespread aid to the Chinese communists by Russia, Marshall and other American diplomats who have been on the scene have not divulged the fact.

The government of China may be no worse than that of Greece, but men like Generals Stilwell and Marshall, among others, have found it less willing to agree to reforms without which American aid would not be effective.

American taxpayers have a right to insist that any money this nation gives shall not be used to strengthen the grip of a one-party dictatorship, but to promote greater economic recovery. If the Chinese government will work out a constructive plan, American taxpayers might not be violently opposed to tossing a few millions in China's hat, but they are tired of paying wartime taxes for handouts to other nations.

Disaster Aftermath

Memories of the Winecoff Hotel tragedy in Atlanta are stirred by the decision of the Supreme Court of Georgia which dismissed indictments against the hotel operators for failure to provide outside fire escapes. The court held unconstitutional the 1910 fire escape act as "class legislation," insofar as it required escapes on hotels charging $2 or more a day for rooms and made no provision for the protection of guests in cheaper hotels.

The court had to pass on the law as it stood, and existing law in Georgia apparently was as antiquated and inadequate to public safety as any hotel without modern fire protection for guests. It is indeed startling that the law was written to afford protection only to a better-paying class of hotel guests and had no regard to the cheaper type of hostelry which might be assumed to hold greater fire hazards.

In effect, it seemed to warn the public that the ample size of his pocketbook was a hotel guest's best available fire protection.

Bad laws may present a greater menace to the public welfare than unsafe buildings. The decision in the Georgia case should arouse public interest everywhere to the measure of protection afforded by laws affecting public safety.

HOW TO KEEP WELL

OUT OF THIS WORLD

DAYDREAMING is innocuous so long as it does not interfere with normal activities or occupy too much time. Most of us have difficulty in coming back to earth and continuing with the tasks of the day.

In a certain type of mental illness—schizophrenia, formerly called "dementia precox" — the story is different. The victim lapses into a perpetual daydream from which he does not return unless treated successfully. It is characteristic for such sufferers to escape reality and live in a world of their own. Their actions depend upon what is going on in their own sphere and, as a result, their odd behavior is obvious.

Schizophrenia is most likely to appear in early adult life. In the majority, changes occur by degrees so that the condition may not be recognized for months or years. As they crawl into a shell, they lose interest gradually in friends, relatives, and loved ones. Soon they become indifferent to matters which formerly concerned them and situations which ordinarily would arouse them to anger or fear are now encountered with complete calm. A family catastrophe might be met with a shrug of the shoulders or an utterance, "Too bad." Meanwhile all sense of pride in appearance disappears; those who were immaculate now become dirty and untidy in dress.

In this dream state, everything centers about themselves. Consequently statements over the radio, articles or cartoons in newspapers or magazines, are interpreted as pointing to them. The response may be good or bad, depending upon the context of what is heard or seen. In addition, conversations are held with individuals in their land of make-believe. The voices they hear are real to them and the same can be said of distortions of taste, smell, and vision.

Delusions exist also but are usually transitory and somewhat fantastic. People are persecuting them and trying to get information from them; thus they become suspicious of the radio or believe that microphones or other electrical gadgets are hidden thruout the house for spying purposes.

There are various forms of the disease. In the simple variety, indifference predominates. Hebephreniacs display incoherence and silliness of thought, action, and speech. The catatonic gets into a stupor during which he is speechless and scarcely moves; unless tube fed, may die of starvation. Sometimes every command that is given will be obeyed; others refuse to do anything. The paranoid generally suffers from persecutions and as such may prove dangerous. Delusions and hallucinations are marked.

Medicine has much to offer. With shock therapy and other psychiatric treatment, more and more are brought back to reality where they can rejoin their families and live as useful citizens. An operation is available for the less fortunate. By severing certain nerves in the brain, the surgeon hopes to bring the patient out of his life of fantasy. If tension or excitement are present, they are relieved and the sufferer is happier and more easily managed.

POLYPS RECUR

P. S. writes: Several years ago I was operated on for nasal polyps but the trouble has returned. What is the cause of this?

REPLY

Polyps have some of the characteristics of a bad penny—they frequently recur. They form in the first place because of longstanding inflammation or allergic reactions in the nose; should these conditions persist, new lesions will grow. Removal is done chiefly to aid breathing.

READING LIGHT

G. W. writes: If a person reads by flashlight, will it impair the vision?

REPLY

The light must be adequate whether it comes from a flashlight fireplace, or electric bulb. The latter is preferred as it is less likely to induces strain. Children sometimes read in bed by flashlight when they should be sleeping. This practice is condemned especially if it goes on for several hours. The batteries grow weaker without the reader realizing it.

It Says Here

By BOB HOPE

I understand they're experimenting with the idea of shooting our daily mail to us by rocket. They're having a little trouble, though, trying to decide whose picture to put on the rocket stamp . . . President Truman's or Buck Rogers.

The old saying was, "The postman always rings twice." Now it's "Duck, Herman . . . Here comes a special delivery."

The special delivery service is even faster, of course. It reaches its destination by regular rocket and then a postman takes it from there by jet-propelled roller skates.

Yessir, now it'll only take seventeen minutes to send a letter. Of course there's one thing that's even faster than these rockets. That's the stamp collectors who chase 'em.

All this speed bothers me and I'm beginning to agree with the song, "Everything is going too fast."

You pick up the weekly magazines and they even tell you how fast to read the stories. It's driving me crazy! It says, "reading time: thirty seconds." And twice they dropped my subscription because I couldn't make it in less than thirty-two!

It's even affecting the clocks. When it's six p. m. the cuckoo only has time to step out for a short coook. Maybe I'm old-fashioned but I'm against too much speed. It's nerve-wracking, dangerous, and besides I get paid by the hour.

The Washington Merry-Go-Round

Says DREW PEARSON

WASHINGTON—The Government probe into dapper Bugsy Siegel, slain Nevada gangster, reveals that he had some amazing contacts, high and low, bizarre and unique. He raised money in all sorts of interesting places, some apparently from his girl friend, Virginia Hill, and at one time several years ago from Charles Ward, one of the leading businessmen of the northwest.

In 1938, U. S. agents, then investigating Siegel, found that he had received $20,000 from Ward, now head of Brown and Bigelow, well-known St. Paul, Minn., stationery firm. The money was accompanied by a letter telling Siegel that this was all Ward could raise at the time. Later Ward sent Siegel a check for $80,000, raising the total payment to $100,000. Apparently Ward was not anxious to hide the transaction, or he would not have made the payment by check.

Asked by this columnist about the payments, Mr. Ward said that he had borrowed some money from Siegel and was paying it back.

Though it illustrates Siegel's far-flung associates, this payment is not figuring in the current investigation.

Mission to Paris

However, what does arouse the curiosity of Government agents is the departure of Virginia Hill, together with a Chinese woman doctor, Dr. Chung, and a French wine merchant for Paris a few weeks before Bugsy as bumped off. Miss Hill said she was going to France to establish a champagne agency, and considering the fact that her champagne bill at Ciro's on one night alone was $7,000, her desire to import her own champagne is understandable.

At about the same time Miss Hill departed for Paris, another associate of Siegel's — Billy Wilkerson, publisher of the Hollywood Reporter—also left Hollywood for France. Wilkerson was nominal owner and builder of the Flamingo Hotel, ornate gambling casino in Las Vegas, though the real owner was Siegel.

Siegel is reported to have run into financial difficulties with the Flamingo and to have been anxious to borrow $1,500,000 shortly before his death. The Flamingo, incidentally, had cost a minimum of $3,000,000 to build.

Virginia Hill has been one of the most lavish entertainers in Hollywood, spending an estimated $200,000 a year. It was at her Beverly Hills home that Bugsy Siegel was killed. A gold key to her house was found in his pocket.

Marshall Pleads

It was not entirely coincidence that on the day the Big Three Marshall Plan Conference broke up in Paris, Secretary of State Marshall went up to the Capitol, pleaded with the Senate almost on bended knee to pass the Mundt Bill authorizing the State Department to conduct foreign propaganda.

For, while Marshall was pleading with the Senate not to muzzle the State Department's "Voice of America," Russian propaganda was blaring forth the Molotov version of why the Paris conference failed.

That version was that the USA wanted to meddle with the sovereignty of small European nations, wanted to dominate Europe, wanted to tell each country who it could or could not have in power.

Actually the chief disrupter, dominator and meddler in Europe has been not the USA but the USSR—as witness Hungary, Bulgaria, Yugoslavia, Rumania and to some extent Austria and Greece.

However, when people are told one thing and told it often enough, they get to believe it. And a large part of Europe has come to believe the Soviet propaganda machine—simply because the State Department hasn't had sufficient means to give the other side of the story.

A little over a year ago, for instance, the Russians sent a wheat-laden ship to Marseilles to relieve French hunger. When it arrived, the streets of Marseilles were bedecked with the sickle and hammer, an official holiday was declared, the populace paraded through the streets to welcome the Soviet vessel.

What the French people didn't know was: 1. That they had to pay Russia for the wheat—and in dollars, not francs; 2. That simultaneously several U. S. ships were arriving in Havre with wheat which was a free gift from the American people.

However, the United States had no adequate propaganda machine to publicize its gifts to France, and the Russians, backed by a virile Communist party got all the credit.

Baruch's "Cold War"

Best description of what's going on in Europe today was given by elder statesman Bernie Baruch when he said we were in a "cold war" (Actually Baruch gives credit to ghost-writer Herbert Bayard Swope for coining the phrase.)

What the Swope-Baruch team meant, of course, was that we are in a war of nerves, politics, and labor movements. If the USA can woo and win certain political groups in France and Italy, it can keep Western Europe from going Communist. If, on the other hand, Russia can woo and win them, Europe will definitely go Communist.

During the war, the Office of Strategic Services spent millions smuggling U. S. labor leaders behind enemy lines to make contacts with German, Italian, Austrian, French, Norwegian labor leaders, thus undermining Axis politics and industry. In today's cold war the same thing is even more necessary—but with not one cent being spent on it.

In contrast, the Russians have agents in U. S. factories, in U. S. labor unions, even some in U. S. Government offices.

And to get money from Congress so we won't have to sweat out this cold war with our mouth gagged and one arm tied behind our back, General Marshall literally has to get down on his knees before Congress. Even then he doesn't get what he really needs.

Note—Though the shrewd British are pulling almost everything out of Greece for "economy" reasons, they aren't reducing their propaganda operations there. British "information" to Greek schools and newspapers costs around $2,000,000 annually; ours did cost $125,000—until Congress cut it out. We spend $150,000,000 on food and arms for the Greek Army, but not one per cent of that to educate the Greeks on the difference between our democracy and Russian Communism.

THESE DAYS

By George E. Sokolsky

The Communist Cases

ALL IN ONE DAY, the Communist alien, Gerhart Eisler, the Communist in the State Department, Carl A. Marzani, the head of the Communist party in America, Eugene Dennis, and 16 officers of a Communist Front organization — the Joint Anti-Fascist Refugee Committee—were sentenced by federal courts. Also, the State Department dismissed ten employees apparently because they are Communists. With the exception of Marzani and the State Department dismissals, all these cases involved contempt of the Congress of the United States, by refusal to testify in order before the House Committee on UnAmerican Activities. These men even refused to take the oath in advance of testimony.

Eisler was particularly contemptuous to the end. He undoubtedly is accustomed to European political courts in which the witnesses are often permitted to make political speeches denouncing the government, the courts, the world. His principal complaint is that he was not permitted to make a speech. He was required to conform to American rules of procedure, which did not serve him.

The Communists have taken the position that they need not testify before the House Committee on UnAmerican Activities because this Committee is unconstitutional, as one of its members, Congressman John E. Rankin of Mississippi, was not legally elected to Congress. The objection to Rankin is that his State uses the Poll Tax and that therefore he was improperly elected. Should their position be upheld by the courts, every Congressman from such a State would sit unconstitutionally. They ignore the clear provisions of the Constitution which state in Article I, "Section 4. The times, places, and manner of holding elections for Senators and Representatives shall be prescribed in each State by the Legislature thereof; but the Congress may at any time by law make or alter such regulations, except as to the places of choosing Senators."

Further, "Section 5. Each House shall be the judge of the elections, returns, and qualifications of its own members. . ."

In accordance with these provisions of the Constitution, John Rankin's tenure as a member of the House of Representatives cannot be questioned and as a matter of fact, the Supreme Court has no authority in the matter as the Communists will in time discover, if they do not know it already. The Supreme Court may not invade the specific authority of Congress.

The fact is that the Communists are using these cases for propaganda purposes to establish persecution in the minds of the public. They have in all countries gained liberal support by cry-babying "persecution" when they are out of power. Once in power, with liberal assistance, they kill the liberals. All that these men who now stand convicted needed to do was to testify before the Committee in accordance with procedure, which better men than they have done, as distasteful as it may have been. The Communists themselves state the case as follows:

"Shall the House Committee on UnAmerican Activities continue to violate the Constitution by invoking a usurped police power against progressives, liberal trade unions and Communists?"

It is curious that they speak of usurping "police power" when all that the Congressional Committee sought was information in the general welfare of the United States—information that Congress has a right to have. The Pujo, Black, and LaFollette Commitees sought similar information from business men an dobtained it. Judge Ferdinand Pecora, as counsel for a Congressional Committee, obtained such information from J. P. Morgan and other bankers and as a result of his searches, the SEC came into existence. If the power to investigate were taken from Congress, it could not pass legislation except blindly, without data, without facts. This is an utterly untenable proposition.

The Communists invariably shout "red-baiting", which is beginning to sound like "Stop Thief!" shouted by the pickpocket. The Courts will undoubtedly so hold. In Soviet Russia, the Communist leaders list their sentences as men in this country do honorary degrees, decorations and citations. It is a mark of distinction. Maybe some of their American proteges plan to establish that as a new fashion here. They can suit themselves, but it is not red-baiting to insist on due process of the law and traditional American procedure. All Americans are equal in this respect.

Action Of Church Groups On Legislation Hit By Writer

By DAVID LAWRENCE

WASHINGTON, July 7. — The action of large church organizations in permitting their names to be used for or against pending legislation has its embarrassing moments. Printed copies of the recent hearings on the reciprocal trade and tariff issues before the House Ways and Means Commitee, which have just become available, reveal an interesting colloquy between Charles P. Taft, president of the Federal Council of the Churches of Christ, and Representative Daniel A. Reed of New York, Republican.

Mr. Taft in his personal capacity is an expert on trade relations, having recently served very efficiently in the Department of State. So far as his political and economic backgound is concerned he is perhaps as far toward the "left" as his brother, the senator from Ohio, is to the "right."

Charles Taft testified first in his personal capacity and made an able witness and this correspondent agrees with him on the views presented, so the point being made here has no reference to the merits of the subject under study by the Ways and Means Committee. It was when Mr. Taft testified as a representative of the Federal Council of the Churches of Christ, an organization of Protestant churches, that Representative Reed asked some searching questions. He wanted to know how many members were in the organization and Mr. Taft said about 27,000,000, but stated he was not speaking for any such number. He was then asked if the Methodists were a part of the group and whether, in endorsing the operation of the reciprocal trade agreements law, they were really familiar with what had been happening. The witness said he presumed they were not.

Not For Prohibition

Mr. Taft said that the Federal Council at its Seattle convention passed a resolution about temperance activities but he added: "the churches today in the Federal Council at least do not stand officially for prohibition." Thereupon Representative Reed inquired:

"However, did they take an interest in the trade agreements with Canada in 1936 and 1939 by which they lowered the duty on liquor—that is whisky—from $5 per gallon to $2.50?"

Mr. Taft replied that he did not think they took any steps. Representative Reed went on to say:

"Well, you are representing the churches here; I know you must be speaking for them here. Of course it is a loss of revenue of almost $1,000,000 as a result of lowering these taxes. A very interesting thing to me is—I know the churches must have some interest—the fact that they have on the list, over there in Geneva, to lower still further the tax on whisky, brandy, gin, rum, and other distilled spirits, champagne, vermouth, and other wines, with certain exceptions, beer and ale and malt products. I can't tell to what extent. Of course, they had no particular referendum, with fine church organizations and the like, on this item."

Mr. Taft commented: Their experience with prohibition has led them, to a very considerable degree, to the position that the promotion of temperance must be an educational process and it cannot be done by law—that is my conviction, sir."

Representative Reed then inquired: "They are using this method of letting in more liquor to sort of educate people not to use it, is that the idea?"

Mr. Taft thought not and that it was merely a "source of dollars to the British" in world trade exchange. Mr. Reed promptly put into the record a long list of figures showing the recent imports of alcoholic beverages into the United States. The incident illustrates how distrustful members of Congress are of statements by committees purporting to represent the views of large church organizations.

No Need For Risks

Thus, for instance, there are members of Congress who do not believe that the recent statement issued by the Social Action Department of the National Catholic Welfare Conference arguing for presidential veto of the Taft-Hartley Labor Bill was ever submitted to any large group of Catholics to pass upon but represented the view of a handful of "left wingers" who tried to use the name of a large and splendid organization to achieve a political action.

This is the kind of danger encountered when church units insist on dabbling in politics. Congress long ago recognized this trend when it passed a law which authorizes the Bureau of Internal Revenue to withdraw tax exemption from any church organization, religious body, charitable institution or foundation which becomes active in attempting "to influence legislation by propaganda or otherwise."

When a tax-exempt organization insists on the right to engage in political propaganda, the fact that moral issues are involved does not immunize the organization from tax difficulties. Those individuals who contribute funds, moreover, run the risk of having deductibility on tax returns denied them because political contributions are not deductible for income-tax purposes.

There is no need to run these risks. For there are plenty of legitimate propaganda opportunities for clergymen, acting in their individual capacity, to take good care of the field of morality as it affects or is affected by government policy on political and economic questions.

Vital Decision Confronting Czechoslovakia On U. S. Plan

By MARK SULLIVAN

During this week, by Saturday or before, America will hear decisive news. It will come from a small country, Czechoslovakia, but it will reveal the attitude of a large country, Russia, toward us and our Marshall plan for the restoration of Europe.

By the Marshall plan, we advised the countries of Europe that they should get together for cooperative use of their own resources for self-help toward over-all recovery. We said that as soon as this is done we will contribute money and food and goods and machinery and every other possible help to recovery.

Britain and France received the Marshall plan with approval. Britain with special enthusiasm, and their Foreign Ministers conferred at Paris with Foreign Minister Molotov of Russia. Molotov tried to bully them, warned them not to go on with the plan. But Britain and France went on nevertheless. They sent invitations to 22 European countries, for a meeting to be held July 12th. The answers to these invitations will tell a momentous story—how many nations and what ones are willing to go on with the Marshall plan; what ones are so under awe of Russia that they feel constrained to take her attitude. Those "we accepts" and "we regrets" next Saturday will be an epochal line-up, a division of the world into two.

Czech's Reply Awaited

Of all the responses, the one from Czechoslovakia will give most light. That country is not among the ones so completely subservient to Russia that their answers can be known in advance, such as Yugoslavia and Bulgaria. At the same time Czechoslovakia is so situated that it can by no means escape showing some deference to Russia. Its head, Premier Gottwald and Foreign Minister Jan Masaryk, as soon as they received the invitation from Britain and France, hurried off to Moscow, troubled men on a somber errand.

In Washington, observers and officials feel that the answer Czechoslovakia gives next Saturday will reflect the precise shading of Russia's attitude. They think it possible that Russia, after a week of reflection since it abruptly flouted the Marshall plan, may have modified its attitude. If the Czech answer is an acceptance, it will be interpreted as meaning that the Russian attitude is not completely recalcitrant, that it is still possible to avoid utter division of the world into two. If the Czech answer is a refusal, that will be interpreted as meaning that Russia is prepared to go to extremes in refusal to cooperate, that the division of the world into two is definitely under way.

One feels sympathy for Czechoslovakia, a small country caught in the middle as two worlds begin to grind. In coming to decision between the two, Czechoslovakia is by her vital circumstances pulled both ways. Geographically she is a bridge between the two, economically a link between them, with no desire more poignant than to be allowed to live at peace with both. Geographically she is literally in the middle, almost surrounded by Russia and the lands Russia dominates, yet on one front in contact with the Western world. Economically a small land-locked manufacturing country, she is dependent for most of her market and much of her materials on both Russia and the Western world.

Loan May Depend on Attitude

At this moment the pull upon Czechoslovakia to go along with Russia is balanced by a circumstance that draws her toward accepting the English-French invitation and cooperating with the Marshall plan and the United States. Some time ago she applied to the World Bank for a loan of approximately a quarter billion dollars. With this she could get her industry into high gear, without it she will be hard pressed. Whether the World Bank grants the loan must depend in large part on how Czecholovakia decides this week. If she accepts the English-French invitation and cooperates in European recovery, she is likely to get the loan, for recovery is the object of the Bank's loans. It is difficult to conceive the loan being granted if she does not accept.

The poignant picture of a small country trying to get along with great ones and with contending worlds is illustrated by a story told in Washington, whether or not an actual incident or one invented to epitomize a situation. Some years ago Foreign Minister Masaryk came to Washington to see Cordell Hull, then Secretary of State. The Czechs had just signed a treaty of alliance and mutual aid with Russia. Mr. Hull reproachfully asked Masaryk why his country signed the treaty. As reply, Masaryk leaned over, took a piece of blank paper from the desk, and carefully signed his name at the bottom. "Mr. Secretary" he said "I have just signed a treaty of friendship and mutual aid with the United States. Will you fill in above my signature whatever you think the terms should be?"

The story sounds like Masaryk. He is a pungent person. Once he said "My country is a bridge between East and West—and you know what people use bridges for."

NEWSgrams

The straw poll began as an intermittent practice of United States journalism in 1824. In that year the Harrisburg Pennsylvanian sent out reporters to inquire among citizens whether they were going to vote for Henry Clay, Andrew Jackson, John Quincy Adams or William H. Crawford for president.

Dr. Hugh H. Bennett, Chief of the U. S. Soil Conservation Service, says that in the last two hundred years the United States has ruined 100 million acres of cropland by soil erosion and severely damaged another 100 million acres.

Grain export quotas for August, 1947, total 52,899,000 bushels, of which almost 41,000,000 bushels will be wheat or its flour equivalent and 5,410,000 bushels will be corn.

PITCHING HORSESHOES by Billy Rose

A gentleman of the old school came into my office this afternoon. Or, rather, was wheeled in in an invalid's chair.

He was wearing a grey derby and the expression of a man who doesn't particularly care for this particular world. As he kicked aside a blanket marked "Pullman," I could see he was attired in mauve pajamas embroidered with blue forget-me-nots. There was a long scratch on his cheek and his right eye was beginning to close.

Billy Rose

"Don't stand there gawking!" roared the man in the wheel chair. "Force some whiskey down my throat!"

My old friend, Major Timothy Morgan, fanned himself with his derby as I went to get the bottle. "It's good to be among friends again," he murmured. When I brought out the bourbon, the self-commissioned Major poured a little into a glass, dipped a corner of his handkerchief into it, delicately moistened his lips, and then upended the bottle. "It's like mother's milk to me," he gurgled.

"What are you made up for?" I asked him. "And who stuck a thumb in your eye?"

"You see before you a victim of the transportation system," announced the Major. "Rooked by a railroad. But before I pour my story into those large, flapping ears, would you consider unbelting with a twenty-dollar note to cover the cost of mending my poor broken bones?"

"You'll have to show me the X-rays first," I snapped.

The old confidence man sighed. "Ah, Billy, your quick generosity touches me." He started to wheel himself out of the office. I said nothing. He stopped.

"Since you press me, I'll tell you the story," he said briskly. "And for an extra fiver, I'll thro in this sport model conveyance and the all-wool, moth-resistant blanket.

"It's one of the harrowing tales of modern times. I was returning from Chicago, whither I had gone on a little matter of business. Unfortunately for me, the widow married her lawyer while they were still throwing dirt in her husband's face. Passing through Buffalo on the way back, someone in the smoking car suggested a friendly game of cards."

"Someone named Morgan?"

"Exactly," smiled the Major. "By midnight, I was several hundred dollars ahead. As I raked in the big pot of the evening, by coincidence a migraine headache hit me and I begged to be excused from the game.

"I retired to my lower, several cars down, and donned these handsome mauve pajamas. I couldn't help thinking of the lady who had given them to me, beautiful Olga, the weight-lifter. I knew she'd be at the station next morning, happily flexing her muscles as she waited for me to come through the gate.

"Suddenly I remembered I had left my derby in the smoking car. Since it was late, I decided to risk going after it without dressing. My bonny bowler was not on the rack where I had put it. I figured the porter had picked it up, and I went wandering through the cars looking for him. A lot of starting and stopping, screeching of brakes, and switching back and forth of the cars was going on. I finally found the porter and reclaimed my derby.

"When I returned to my berth, it wasn't there. My Pullman had been switched off at Syracuse by some cloth-headed idiot in the switchyard. There I was, speeding through the night, penniless, pantsless and helpless. Worst of all, I had lost my good-luck piece, the first silver dollar I ever sto—earned."

"Embarrassing situation," I told the Major, "but not disastrous."

"Apparently," said the moldy mountebank, "you have not had the pleasure of meeting the beautiful Olga. An exceedingly jealous woman. One hot night in Georgia she saw me coming out of a snake charmer's trailer with nothing more incriminating than my celluloid collar ajar. In a transport of jealousy, Olga nearly strangled me with a python. No, my old friend, I knew if I walked out on the platform at Grand Central in pajamas, my lady friend might start throwing me around like an Indian club.

"And then I saw this rubber-tired dingus outside the porter's room. Call me ruthless if you will, but I kidnapped the conveyance and moved it into the club car at the end of the train.

"When we pulled into Grand Central this morning, I wheeled myself onto the platform and down to the gate where Olga was waiting. I figured the bedsheet with which I had bandaged my leg would touch her sentimental Slavic heart. I was right. Olga sobbed as I told her how my leg had been injured by a falling trunk."

"Then how come the bruises, contusions and lacerations?" I asked my favorite con man.

"My gentlemanly instincts proved my undoing," said Morgan. "As we got to the exit leading to the taxis, I instinctively jumped out of the wheel chair and held the door open for my lady friend. Olga's not a very bright girl, but she got it. She stopped sobbing and started swinging. Now, as one gentleman to another, doesn't this saga of sadness appeal to your most charitable impulses?"

"It certainly does," I dead-panned. I picked up the telephone and got the manager of my theatre on the wire. "I have a gentleman of the old school up here," I told him. "The poor old fellow can't get around very well. Will you send up two of your strongest porters to throw the bum out?"

Advice To The Lovelorn

Young Man Advised To Straighten Out Affairs Before Marriage

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

Famous Authority on Problems of Love and Marriage

Dear Miss Fairfax:

My girl friend and I are of different faiths. We want to get married, but I am unable to get my father's consent and my girl friend's parents object to their daughter marrying me without it.

However, my greatest problem is not social but financial. I have rented an apartment and bought all the furniture, which I paid for through DVA, only to find that I had overdrawn my account by $900. Now, the law is after me.

Mary Lou and I have only each other. Surely they can't break that up, too. Would you please advise me what to do. NOEL

Dear Noël:

I advise you, and strongly, to put all thought of marrying aside until you get your tangled affairs straightened out. You sound to me like a pretty irresponsible young man, and I am afraid if you attempt to plow through your problems in the precipitate way you seem to be doing, you are going to end up in serious trouble.

I have no knowledge of how your Department of Veterans' Affairs works, and so I am not in a position to advise you on your financial difficulties. I should think the obvious thing would be to consult the proper person in that department. But it strikes me as very odd that you should overdraw your account to such an extent before finding it out.

I also think you had better not brush aside so lightly the matter of your different faiths and your parents' attitudes toward your marriage. More complications lurk in such situations than you appear to realize.

If Mary Lou is really in love with you, she'll wait till you straighten yourself out. But I think she should wait, too, until you develop less hasty ways and a greater sense of responsibility.

Now! LIFE INSURANCE EXPERTS PROVE THAT FORD TRUCKS LAST up to 19.6% LONGER

NOW, for the first time, the methods used by life insurance companies in computing rates have been used to figure out life-expectancy tables for Ford Trucks.

4,967,000 Trucks Studied . . .

Wolfe, Corcoran and Linder, leading New York life insurance actuaries, assembled the records of all trucks of the five sales leaders registered from 1933 through 1941 . . . 4,967,000 trucks in all. Then they prepared truck life-expectancy tables in the same way they prepare human life-expectancy tables for life insurance companies.

Ford Trucks On Top!

The result? Ford Trucks Last Longer! Up to 19.6% longer than the other 4 sales leaders! Why? Because Ford Trucks are built stronger. They're built to last longer!

See us today. You'll see why it'll pay you to place your order for a Ford!

Ford

What Longer Truck Life Means to You . . . Why It Pays to Wait for a New Ford Truck!

It stands to reason the longer you use a truck, the less it costs to own. That's why Ford Trucks are the top truck value. And, logically, Ford longevity means lower maintenance costs . . . less time in the shop. Any way you figure, you'll get more for your money with a Ford . . . because Ford trucks last longer.

Certified Proof

FORD TRUCKS LAST LONGER!

The life-expectancy of a Ford Truck is:
13.1% longer than that of Truck "B"
3.2% longer than that of Truck "C"
7.6% longer than that of Truck "D"
19.6% longer than that of Truck "E"

OFFICIAL ACTUARIAL CERTIFICATE

Based on the application of sound and accepted actuarial methods to the actual experience as measured by truck registrations, we hereby certify that, in our opinion, the accompanying table fairly presents the relative life-expectancy of the trucks involved.

LUCKY STRIKE presents THE MAN WHO KNOWS—

THE TOBACCO AUCTIONEER!

"I'M A TOBACCO MAN . . . born and raised in the tobacco business, and season after season, I've seen the makers of Lucky Strike buy tobacco that's mild, ripe and mellow . . . fine tobacco that tastes good and smokes good."

of Reidsville, North Carolina
(29 YEARS A LUCKY STRIKE SMOKER)

FINE TOBACCO is what counts in a cigarette

DEWEY HUFFINES IS RIGHT!...And like him, scores of other experts . . . who really know tobacco . . . have seen the makers of Lucky Strike buy tobacco that's "mild, ripe and mellow."

After all, that's what you want in a cigarette . . . the honest, deep-down enjoyment of fine tobacco.

So remember... L.S./M.F.T.

Chance To See Golf Aces

By C. V. BURNS

Meet Officer No. 35 of the Cumberland Police Department.

Why certainly, he's none other than Joseph P. Niland, of Bash Boulevard, who was regarded as one of Cumberland's outstanding young amateur boxers until he hung up the mittens for a nice blue uniform, a shiny badge, a whistle and a night-stick.

Officer Niland is the latest addition to the local police force and he's on the march on the 1 to 9 a. m. shift.

Jolting Joe, a middleweight, figured in ten matches since boxing was revived here in October 1945 and his record was seven victories and three losses over less than a two-year period.

His most impressive performance was given the night he whipped Johnny Mason of the Southwest A.C., of Washington, D. C. He lost a hairline decision to Al Wentz, the Johnstown (Pa.) scrapper who had been flattening most opponents about that time, and his last triumph was over the hard-hitting Bill Mann of the Rocket A.C.

John Henry Stitcher, the fight matchmaker, and James E. Kelley, Jr., the referee, were former boxers who were successful as police officers. Stitcher is one of the veterans of the local department and Kelley, formerly of the city force, is now a member of the Celanese Police Department.

Officer Joseph Niland

Here's hoping Joe Niland the best of success in the role of a gendarme.

Robert Emmett Flynn, who was named acting chief of police yesterday by the mayor and city council, was one of Cumberland's outstanding pitchers back in the 1920's.

"Em" and his cross-fire delivery really had batsmen baffled and he hurled Frank Birmingham's Western Maryland Railway team to several league and independent baseball championships. Walter Drumm was Flynn's batterymate in those days.

And B. Frank Gaffney, who was named acting assistant chief of police yesterday, is the father of Jim Gaffney, backfield star of the Washington Redskins, and local softball and baseball star.

Bob Crump, the Mt. Savage southpaw, who knocked the Westvaco Club out of first place by beating the Papermakers in Westernport Sunday by the score of 6-2, is probably the youngest pitcher in the Bi-State League this season.

Bob is only 17 years old and was regular first sacker of Beall High School's teams the past two seasons.

After losing some tough games at the start of the current campaign, Bob has come through with flying colors in his last three starts, defeating Barton 4-3 and Queen City 7-6 prior to the Westvaco conquest. He let the Westernport team down with six singles and that's good pitching when you can hurl nine innings against Frankie Sullivan's team without yielding an extra base wallop.

Jimmie Crump, centerfielder of the Mt. Savage team, is the pitcher's brother and they're both the sons of "Tippy" Crump, one of Mt. Savage's solid citizens.

We get it via the grapevine that Max Stowell, the Mt. Savage pitcher, struck out 17 batsmen in a Bi-State League game in Midland on July 4.

This is probably a strikeout record for the current season in the ten-team circuit.

Boxers of the Diamond Athletic Club, handled by Jim Klosterman and Garford Albright, will trade wallops with St. Mary's boxers in the majority of bouts tonight at St. Mary's Athletic Club smoker at St. Mary's arena, Oldtown road.

"Bobby" Green and "Zip" Hutson will be in the corners of St. Mary's boys in the two-round exhibition bouts.

There's bad news out of New York about Charley Keller, Marylander (Middletown) with the New York Yankees.

According to Dan Parker, the slugger is practically a cripple as a result of his back injury and may be out for the rest of the year.

Al Mackey, who used to follow his dad around when Leo managed the Cumberland Colts in the Middle Atlantic League, is now pitching for the Uniontown (Pa.) Coal Barons of the same circuit.

Albert was a little fellow back in 1931 and 1932 but he's developed into a lanky right-handed twirler in 15 years.

Local golf followers who would like to see Bobby Locke and Lew Worsham in action have an opportunity to do so on Sunday, July 20 when the South African star, and National Open champion who is pro at Oakmont, appear in an exhibition match at the South Hills Country Club, Pittsburgh.

Other competitors will include Sam Parks, Jr., former U. S. Open titleholder, and Ted Luther, Pittsburgh.

And don't forget to save your money if you want to invest in the thoroughbreds.

They'll be rarin' to go at Fairgo just six weeks from today.

It won't be long now.

Bobby Locke Holds Three-Stroke Edge Over Porky Oliver

South African Posts Four-Under-Par 68

By CHARLES CHAMBERLAIN

Chicago, July 7, (AP) — Bobby Locke, playing his shots like a machine, clicked a four-under-par 68 today to fashion a three-stroke lead over Ed "Porky" Oliver at the end of the first round of their 36-hole playoff for the Tam O'Shanter $7,000 professional title prize.

Some 3,000 spectators followed the international golf show around the 6,825-yard course.

Locke, the South African seeking his fifth tournament triumph in 10 meets since landing in the U. S., fashioned five birdies, and went over par on only one hole in authoring a pair of 34's against par 36-36.

Only once did his tee shots drift into the rough, while Oliver, of Wilmington, Del., caught the tall grass on at least five holes in posting 37-34—71.

In taking a three-stroke lead at the turn, the knickered Johannesburg visitor pulled one of the most amazing recovery shots of the entire tournament on the ninth. His third shot on the 520-yard hole was half buried in a deep sand trap at the side of the green. He blasted one inch from the cup to match Oliver with par 5.

While Oliver was matching par, Locke gained a five-stroke lead with a four-foot birdie putt on the long 10th for a 4, and 3 footer for a birdie on the 13th after unleashing another of his consistently-accurate iron shot approaches which throughout the round more than compensated for being outdistanced by Oliver's drives.

Oliver gained on the 15th with a birdie four after holing a 20 foot putt.

Oliver blew a chance to gain on the 215-yard 16th by missing a 4½ foot putt as each made par 3's. But the chubby gallery favorite shaved Locke's advantage back to three strokes on the 18th, by planting his approach two feet off the flag and ramming it down for a birdie 3.

Locke will face Oliver in the closing 18 holes tomorrow starting at 2 p. m. (CDT).

TAKES LEAD — Bobby Locke posted a four-under-par 68 to take a three-stroke lead over Ed "Porky" Oliver in the first 18 holes of the 36-hole playoff in the All-American pro golf tourney yesterday at the Tam O' Shanter Club in Chicago. The South African and Wilmington (Del.) pro will play the closing 18 holes today.

St. Louis Awarded 1948 All-Star Tilt

Frick Re-Elected Prexy In National

CHICAGO, July 7 (AP) — The American and National League club owners, in a joint meeting today, awarded the 1948 All-Star baseball game to the St. Louis Browns, and forestalled the Pacific Coast League's perennial plea for major league recognition.

In a separate session, the National League re-elected Ford Frick, 52-year-old former New York newspaperman and radio commentator, as president of the senior circuit for a four-year term.

Frick, who had joined the National League as publicitor in 1934, became its president later that same year, succeeding John A. Heydler who resigned because of ill health. Frick, whose salary was not disclosed, also serves as secretary-treasurer of the league.

Despite a two-hour session, the awarding of next year's all-star contest to the St. Louis American League club was the only major action taken. The date of the game will not be set until later.

The big league magnates referred to baseball's executive council several other proposals, including the Pacific Coast League's petition that it be given a three-to-five year trial as a major league.

Greenberg May Need Operation On His Arm

BALTIMORE, July 7 (AP) — Hank Greenberg of the Pittsburg Pirates may eventually need an operation on his arm but it can be postponed at least until winter and should not interfere with his playing this year, Dr. George Bennett said today.

Greenberg, taking advantage of three open days because of the All-Star game set for tomorrow, flew in this afternoon from Pittsburgh with Mrs. Greenberg.

Maccabees Sign Four

Manager John Mangus, Sr., yesterday announced that the Maccabees of the City Softball League have signed John Mangus, Jr., who was released by the Legion, Dick Parsons, Ronnie Cage and Eddie Martin.

The Bees are scheduled to play the Legion today at Community Park.

An All-Star U. S. Program

This being All-Star day in baseball, the moment seems to be about ripe to face a number of queries that have arrived in the last few months.

Here is the problem: What are the major all-time efforts, or contributions, leading stars have given the game in this country, over a period of years? Who have been the outstanding stars? Who have turned in the outstanding performances over an extended period of time? This includes all sport.

Here is our ranking, which is certain to be ripped apart by more than a few critics:

No. 1. Ty Cobb — who led the American League in 11 of 12 consecutive seasons, against such rivals as Joe Jackson, Nap Lajoie, Tris Speaker, Sam Crawford, Bobby Veach—who played in over 3,000 games and made over 4,100 base hits, while stealing close to 900 bases. Time period—24 years.

No. 2. Babe Ruth—who, in addition to being a brilliant lefthanded pitcher, and a star outfielder, piled up over 700 home runs in his 20-year campaign.

No. 3. Cy Young—Who pitched in over 800 ball games, and won 511 contests in both leagues, over a period of 22 years.

No. 4. Bobby Jones—Who as an amateur, ran 1-2 in the U. S. Open in seven out of eight years, from 1923 to 1930—and who, in that time, won thirteen national and international championships, against such competitors as Walter Hagen, Gene Sarazen, Harry Vardon, Jim Barnes, Tommy Armour, Jock Hutchinson, Mac Smith and many other stars. Jones, at the age of 28, retired before his peak and prime.

No. 5. Willie Hoppe—Who won the world's 18.1 balk-line championship in 1906, and was still world's champion in 1946—40 years later.

No. 6. Joe Louis—Who, in the run of 10 years, defended his crown against 23 challengers—and is still on top of the pack with no challenger in sight.

No. 7. Walter Hagen—Who, from 1923 through 1928, won four P.G.A. championships, including 28 victories in 30 starts, plus 2 U. S. and 4 British Opens.

No 8. Walter Johnson—Pitching for a weak team, won 413 games, that included 113 shut-outs, with more than 3,000 strike-outs.

Room For Argument

This leaves a wide open landscape for argument.

There will be those who will claim that billiards is not an active competition, but a matter of technical skill and nerve control. This is true. But a championship touch in skill and nerve control that lasts for over 40 years is something to consider.

In our opinion, Ty Cobb's record in leading the American League nine straight years, plus a run of 12 out of 13 years at bat, against terrific competition—I mean great hitters and brilliant pitching— is as close to the top as one can get.

This is no attempt to compare Cobb and Ruth. They belonged to different fields.

Ruth, a brilliant pitcher, a fine outfielder and a home-run hitter, was the top appeal for the crowds. He was the most popular and the most spectacular ballplayer of all time. The Babe's main asset was power. Cobb's double asset was skill and speed. And Ruth had his share of skill.

For that matter, no one can compare Cobb and Ruth directly with 80-year-old Cy Young, who won more ball games than most pitchers ever pitched.

Cobb lasted longer at top speed, concluding a .323 average in his 24th year, .367 for 24 seasons. Those who insist on lifting Ruth over Cobb will find no argument here.

In our opinion, Cobb's nine-year span at the top, his record of leading great hitters for 12 out of 13 years, plus his .367 mark for 24 years, against such pitchers as Walter Johnson, Addie Joss, Smoky Joe Wood, Babe Ruth, Ed Walsh, Herb Pennock, Eddie Plank, Chief Bender, Jack Combs, Rube Waddell—on and on indefinitely, is something slightly beyond the phenomenal.

No one can question Bobby Jones' 9-year rating in golf, the toughest game of them all when it comes to consistency. Such great golfers as Nelson and Hogan have had trouble in picking up an odd title here and there. Considering the fact that Jones ran 1-2 for eight out of nine years, against such competition as Hagen, Sarazen, Mac Smith, Armour Hutchinson, Barnes—the pick of the British—plus his Grand Slam mop-up in 1930, about closes out this debate with Walter Hagen in second place.

What about Jack Dempsey? One of the greatest — possibly the greatest — of the heavyweights. His opposition was only average.

What about Joe Louis? The same goes for Joe. A great record against the best in sight, where the best was none too hot.

And rabid fan who cares to change the order we have set up has our complete permission, minus any argument. There are too many arguments clogging up the world today, most of which lead nowhere.

Martinsburg Golf Team To Play CCC Linksmen Sunday

Cumberland Is Host To Opequeon At 1:30

The Cumberland Country Club's golf team will be angling for its second victory of the season when it meets the team representing the Opequeon Country Club of Martinsburg, W. Va., on Sunday afternoon at 1:30 o'clock over the local course.

It will be the first of a home-and-home series between the two clubs.

The C.C.C. team celebrated the opening of the season several weeks ago by defeating the Fountain Head Country Club of Hagerstown here by the decisive score of 52½ to 11½ points.

Martinsburg plans to bring twenty two-men teams here for the match.

Members of the Cumberland Country Club interested in participating in the match are requested to notify Carroll Boggs, pro, or his assistants at the club.

In the Martinsburg-Cumberland match on Sunday Boggs will team up with Charles S. "Bill" Catherman, Jr., to play Dave Henry and John Crissy, the West Virginians' pro-amateur combination.

Boggs and Catherman expect to compete in the Maryland Open tournament to be held Tuesday, July 15, over the Rolling Road Country Club course at Baltimore. The tourney is a one-day affair of 36 holes medal play.

Women golfers of the Cumberland Country Club will invade Hagerstown today to play the Fountain Head Country Club team in the opener of a home-and-home series. The inter-city match is scheduled to get under way this morning.

Lacy's Claim Game By Forfeit; Legion To Play Bees Today

Lacy's Delicatets, first half champions, claimed their opening game of the second half race in the City Softball League, via the forfeit route.

The Delicatets were scheduled to play Virginia Avenue Merchants at Taylor Field and before game time it was presumed that the field was too wet to play.

Lacy Cifala states that Manager Weaver of the Merchants insisted that the game be played. The field was put in shape and Lacy's team was ready to play at 6:15. Only the manager and two Virginia Avenue players remained so Lacy's claimed the game by forfeit.

"We don't like to win games this way but in view of the fact that Weaver insisted that we play and we went to LaVale to get enough players to start the game we feel we are entitled to claim this game," Cifala declared.

All other games were postponed on account of wet grounds.

The American Legion-Maccabees game will be staged today at 6 p. m. at Community Park. Martin and Kreitzburg will be the umpires.

Legionnaires Favored To Win Eighth In Row

Undefeated since June 10, Fort Cumberland Post, American Legion, is favored to win its eighth consecutive game when it plays the Junior Association of Commerce's winless team in a Rocking Chair Softball League game today at Fort Hill. The Jaycees have lost 16 games in a row.

The B.P.O. Elks, tied with the Legion for the topnotch berth, will battle it out with the Loyal Order of Moose at Campobello, the K. of C. will oppose the Outdoor Club at East Side field and Potomac Edison will battle Texcel on the Rolling Mill diamond.

Chapman, Verban Rowe Are Jolted In Rail Collision

B. & O.'s Shenandoah Hits Switch Engine

CHICAGO, July 7 (AP)—About 25 passengers were injured slightly and 200 others—including several major league baseball stars—were shaken up late today in a railroad train collision near Chicago's Grand Central Station.

Pitcher Lynwood (Schoolboy) Rowe and Second Baseman Emil Verban of the Philadelphia National League club were jolted severely but expected to play in tomorrow's All-Star game at Wrigley Field.

The Baltimore and Ohio railroad's "Shenandoah", westbound from New York to Chicago, collided with a switch engine pulling empty Pere Marquette coaches about 400 yards south of the station as The Shenandoah approached at about 30 miles an hour to unload its passengers. The station is just south of the downtown section.

Twenty-five passengers were taken to St. Luke's Hospital. Five were admitted and 20 were released after treatment. Physicians said no one was seriously hurt.

Verban Numbed In Legs

Rowe was knocked unconscious for a brief period and suffered bumps on his arms and legs, and Verban was shaken up and was "numbed in the legs," Verban said, but neither required hospital treatment. Verban said the two would play tomorrow.

Also in the Philadelphia club group were Manager Ben Chapman and Mrs. Chapman. Mrs. Chapman was thrown over a seat but a hospital physician said her injury was slight. Chapman was only shaken up.

Mrs. Chapman, however, remained at the hospital for treatment for shock, a physician said.

Suffers Strained Back

The Phillies' manager was released at the hospital. A hospital spokesman said Chapman had "a strained back" but the injury was not considered serious enough to require hospitalization. Chapman himself could not be reached immediately.

The Shenandoah's Diesel engine, the switch engine and one of the empty coaches left the rails, but none of the Shenandoah coaches was derailed. About 150 feet of track was damaged but traffic was resumed within two hours, the B. and O. said.

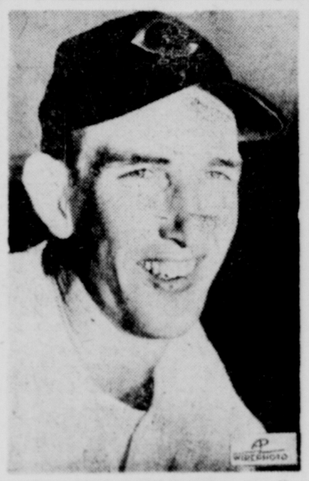

The Shenandoah, the B. and O.'s No. 7 train, left New York last night at 6:05 (EST) and made stops at Baltimore, Washington, Pittsburgh and other eastern points. It was due in Chicago at 2:40 p. m. (CST) but was an hour late.

Interstate Loop Will Send $66 To Fleming

John J. Long, president of the Interstate Baseball League, announced yesterday that fans contributed $66 at two of the four games staged on Sunday, June 29, which was designated as "Phil Fleming Day."

Reports were not received from two other games, Long said.

A check for $66 will be forwarded to Fleming at Deshon General Hospital, Butler, Pa., as a birthday gift. The Interstate League vice president will mark his birthday on Thursday.

STARTING PITCHERS—Ewell Blackwell (left) of the Cincinnati Reds, and Spud Chandler, (right) of the New York Yankees, will be the starting pitchers in today's all-star game at Wrigley Field, Chicago, the managers of the respective National and American League clubs announced yesterday.

Chandler To Open Against Blackwell At Wrigley Field

43,000 Are Expected To See Contest Today

By JACK HAND

CHICAGO, July 7 (AP) — Ewell Blackwell, Cincinnati's animated bean pole, tries his sidearm magic on the American League sluggers tomorrow as the National League's starting ace against Spud Chandler of the New York Yankees in the 14th All-Star game at Wrigley Field.

Bolstered by the home run slugging of New York's Walker Cooper and Johnny Mize, Blackwell, a 14-2 winner with 12 straight, and his successors appear to rate an even chance. However, the Americans are a slight favorite on the strength of nine wins in 13 previous meetings.

Neither Manager Eddie Dyer of the Nationals nor Joe Cronin of the Americans would divulge any further pitching selections other than to observe they would "make changes as the course of the game dictated."

Dyer would have a well-rested Harry (The Cat) Brecheen or George Munger of his own St. Louis Cards to follow Blackwell's three-inning stint. Johnny Sain of Boston, who hasn't worked since July 4, is ready for the other three. Warren Spahn of the Braves, Ralph Branca of Brooklyn and Schoolboy Rowe of the Phillies pitched either Saturday night or Sunday and are not expected to see action.

Cronin's nomination of Chandler came as somewhat of a surprise, as many had expected to see Lefty Hal Newhouser of Detroit get the call.

Cronin Picks Chandler

"Chandler is my starter," said Cronin, who piloted the Boston Red Sox against Dyer's St. Louis Cards in the 1946 world series.

Newhouser, who worked two "warmup" relief innings Sunday, is due to see action. Joe Page of the Yanks, who struck out eight men in 3⅔ innings of relief duty yesterday, is a possibility in the late stages if a lefty is needed.

Cronin can pick his own hurlers from Walt Masterson of Washington, who recently pitched a stretch of 34 scoreless innings, Dizzy Trout of Detroit, Jack Kramer of St. Louis; Early Wynn of Washington and Frank Shea of the Yanks. All are well rested.

In any event, the expected capacity crowd of 43,000 expects to see no repeat performance of last year's 12-0 romp by the slugging Americans.

Teddy Williams of Boston, whose two homers helped humiliate the Nationals last summer at Fenway Park, is back again in left field but the senior loop thinks it discovered how to stop Teddy in the 1946 series. The Dyer Shift no doubt will be in operation again.

Americans Have Power

Despite the excitement about the Giants' home run hitting and the imposing homer total of 24 by Mize and 18 by Cooper, the Americans lineup bristles with power, from Williams around the outfield with Joe DiMaggio of the Yanks in center and Washington's efficient Buddy Lewis in right, George McQuinn of the Yanks on first, Joe Gordon of Cleveland on second, Lou Boudreau of Cleveland at short and George Kell of Detroit on third all can hit that long ball, as can Catcher Buddy Rosar of Philadelphia.

Once past Mize and Cooper, the Americans have more distance hitters scattered down their lineup than the National's starting nine of Mize at first, Emil Verban of the Phils at second, Marty Marion of St. Louis at short, Frank Gustine of Pittsburgh at third, Enos Slaughter of St. Louis in left and the Walker Brothers, Harry of the Phils in center and Dixie of the Dodgers in right, Cooper and Blackwell.

Miller Reports "Sore Arm"

Gustine and Mario replace respectively Bob Elliott of Boston, who injured a hand in a game at Brooklyn Saturday, and Eddie Miller of Cincinnati, who reported a "sore arm" although he had played all of the Reds' 75 games.

A Fish Petter:

Canaan Man Has Strangest Hobby, Rears Trout That Can't Be Caught

Rainbow 8 Years Old; One Is 30 Inches Long

By HELEN COLLETT

PARSONS, July 7—Amid a setting of pines two hundred years old lies a small stream which to any fisherman would be a dream but from which stream no fish are ever caught.

The natural water stream coming from the mountain and through rocks at the home of Eugene Graham in Canaan Valley holds a temperature the year around of 45 degrees and is only eighteen feet wide and sixty feet long but in it are blue ribbon prizes for any fisherman with trout ranging in length from 11 inches to thirty inches.

The strange hobby of Eugene Grahams dates back as far as his memory with his father pursuing the same hobby of petting fish.

Largest 30 Inches Long

The stream which 25 years ago was dammed with native rock by a brother is only two feet deep and at the present time holds fifteen trout, brown brook and one rainbow trout which is eight years old, sixteen inches long and is king of the brook with no other fish intruding on him. The largest trout in the pond is 30 inches long, and one brown trout that measures only 13 inches long is four inches wide and two inches thick. Another brown trout measures 24 inches. The large brown trout was placed in the pond when 11 inches long after being caught with a hook and line as all of the other large ones were caught.

The rainbow trout and one brook trout are the only two fish that will feed when strangers are watching and the brook trout is the only one that is allowed to feed in front of the rainbow, who was placed in the pond when only seven inches long.

Above the stream is the milk house the father erected fifty years ago and in the small water area the fish are first placed and there petted and tamed. The two brown trout in there now are three and four years old and they eat stale bread crumbs, cottage cheese, worms and cream from the hands of their tamer and will swim into his hands whenever he places his hands in the water.

Above the milk house a small water enclosure the size of a bathtub holds many small trout under four inches long and also two rainbows and brown trout about seven inches long. The enclosure is surrounded with wire to keepp the small fish from going under the rocks where the stream heads, and to keep them from working down stream to the larger fish who would soon devour them.

Knows iHstory Of Each Fish

Mr. Graham after spending the working hours with his 26,000 cauliflower plants, two horses, thirty head of sheep and thirty head of cattle on his 320 acres of farm lands returns to feed and play with his fish as his pastime. He can tell the history of each fish, when caught and knows the disposition of each one of them.

Several years ago Mr. Graham had another pond which is more than one half an acre in diameter which he had stocked with 700 trout but they were soon caught by fishermen after dusk, so now he keeps only those in the stream which is beside the house. He says that he spends several hours each week showing fishermen and interested visitors his strange hobby which is also the pride and joy of Tucker county state game protector, Fielding Kyer.

42 Boys Attend Camp Cliffside

Four Weeks' Season Is Now Under Way

The Camp Cliffside Boys' Camp on the South Branch of the Potomac near Springfield, W. Va., has opened for its fourth season with forty-two boys in attendance for the first week of the four week session. The youngsters are busily engaged in the various activities which the program calls for and are all having the time of their lives.

Such sports as swimming, canoeing, softball, basketball, ping pong, horse shoes, fishing, etc., keep them occupied from first call in the morning till taps at night. Eating is another sport that is most popular and when the bugle sounds "mess call' they are all "Johnny on the spot" to sample the offerings of Sterling and Georgia Method, the camp chefs.

Boys who entered camp for the first week include Tommy Gross, Jerry Lancaster, Ramsey Tobias, Harry Little, Louis Spoerl, Mickey McLane, George and John Menke, Bobby Hott, Robert W. and James H. Sportsmen To Meet Game Commission

Baltimore Session Set For Tomorrow

A committee representing the Western Maryland Wildlife Federation, which comprises eleven sportsmen's organizations in Garrett, Allegany and Washington counties, will confer with members of the State Game and Inland Fish Commission at the latter's offices in the Munsey building, Baltimore, tomorrow relative to change designed to improve fish and game conditions in the state.

Recommendations approved at a recent session of the federation here will be presented to the commission and discussed in open meeting.

The federation feels that by contacting each member of the commission personally more can be accomplished than sending resolutions to the state group which is headed by Garner Denmead. Fulcher P. Smith, of Garrett county, represents Western Maryland on the state game commission.

George Walters, of Eckhart, president of the Federation; Fred Crowe, of Frostburg, and Clyde Michaels, Westernport, are among members of the committee who plan to attend the Baltimore session.

Charles-Ray Bout Winner May Land Crack At Louis

Ezzard And Elmer To Clash July 25

By SID FEDER

NEW YORK, July 7, (AP)—Jacobs Beach climbed off the merry-go-round long enough today to pass up both Olle Tandberg and Joe Baksi as challengers for Joe Louis, and to start working, instead, on a title bout between The Bomber and the winner of Ezzard Charles' coming clambake with Elmer (The Violent) Ray.

The complete switch in the heavyweight title production was outlined by Sol Strauss, acting director for the 20th Century Sporting Club, even while the Bash Boulevardiers were still spinning from the victory the swatting Swede chalked up over Baksi yesterday in Stockholm, just when everyone thought Baksi would cakewalk in and then come home to tangle with Louis in September.

Most of the spinning was occasioned, not so much by the defeat, itself, as by the fact that Baksi, with a payday of $50,000 to $100,000 waiting for a title shot, would take a chance, for comparative small change, against any opponent who might make an accident happen. The fact that Tandberg, himself, figured he earned no better than a draw, and that ringsiders generally were saying it was too bad the officials were suffering from poor vision, didn't change the opinion th Baksi wasn't exactly a genius in taking on this bout.

The rhubarb the surprise package created caused Strauss to pop up with the following shifts:

1—A return match between Olle and Pennsylvania Joe on August 22 in Madison Square Garden, just to see if yesterday's rabbit really did pop out of the hat, and is prepared to stay out.

2—A September 19 Yankee Stadium title bout between Louis and the winner of the July 25 tussle here between long-armed Ezzard Charles, a light-heavy out of Cincinnati, and Elmer (The Violent) Ray, from Florida by way of Minneapolis, provided, Sol insisted that the winner turns the trick "decisively."

Meet Officer No. 35 of the Cumberland Police Department.

Why certainly, he's none other than Joseph P. Niland, of Bash Boulevard, who was regarded as one of Cumberland's outstanding young amateur boxers until he hung up the mittens for a nice blue uniform, a shiny badge, a whistle and a nightstick.

Officer Niland is the latest addition to the local police force and he's on the march on the 1 to 9 a. m. shift.

Jolting Joe, a middleweight, figured in ten matches since boxing was revived here in October 1945 and his record was seven victories and three losses over less than a two-year period.

His most impressive performance was given the night he whipped Johnny Mason of the Southwest A.C., of Washington, D. C. He lost a hairline decision to Al Wentz, the Johnstown (Pa.) scrapper who had been flattening most opponents about that time, and his last triumph was over the hard-hitting Bill Mann of the Rocket A.C.

John Henry Stitcher, the fight matchmaker, and James E. Kelley, Jr., the referee, were former boxers who were successful as police officers. Stitcher is one of the veterans of the local department and Kelley, formerly of the city force, is now a member of the Celanese Police Department.

Officer Joseph Niland

Here's hoping Joe Niland the best of success in the role of a gendarme.

Robert Emmett Flynn, who was named acting chief of police yesterday by the mayor and city council, was one of Cumberland's outstanding pitchers back in the 1920's.

"Em" and his cross-fire delivery really had batsmen baffled and he hurled Frank Birmingham's Western Maryland Railway team to several league and independent baseball championships. Walter Drumm was Flynn's batterymate in those days.

And B. Frank Gaffney, who was named acting assistant chief of police yesterday, is the father of Jim Gaffney, backfield star of the Washington Redskins, and local softball and baseball star.

Bob Crump, the Mt. Savage southpaw, who knocked the Westvaco Club out of first place by beating the Papermakers in Westernport Sunday by the score of 6-2, is probably the youngest pitcher in the Bi-State League this season.

Bob is only 17 years old and was regular first sacker of Beall High School's teams the past two seasons.

After losing some tough games at the start of the current campaign, Bob has come through with flying colors in his last three starts, defeating Barton 4-3 and Queen City 7-6 prior to the Westvaco conquest. He let the Westernport team down with six singles and that's good pitching when you can hurl nine innings against Frankie Sullivan's team without yielding an extra base wallop.

Jimmie Crump, centerfielder of the Mt. Savage team, is the pitcher's brother and they're both the sons of "Tippy" Crump, one of Mt. Savage's solid citizens.

We get it via the grapevine that Max Stowell, the Mt. Savage pitcher, struck out 17 batsmen in a Bi-State League game in Midland on July 4.

This is probably a strikeout record for the current season in the ten-team circuit.

Boxers of the Diamond Athletic Club, handled by Jim Klosterman and Garford Albright, will trade wallops with St. Mary's boxers in the majority of bouts tonight at St. Mary's Athletic Club smoker at St. Mary's arena, Oldtown road.

"Bobby" Green and "Zip" Hutson will be in the corners of St. Mary's boys in the two-round exhibition bouts.

There's bad news out of New York about Charley Keller, Marylander (Middletown) with the New York Yankees.

According to Dan Parker, the slugger is practically a cripple as a result of his back injury and may be out for the rest of the year.

Al Mackey, who used to follow his dad around when Leo managed the Cumberland Colts in the Middle Atlantic League, is now pitching for the Uniontown (Pa.) Coal Barons of the same circuit.

Albert was a little fellow back in 1931 and 1932 but he's developed into a lanky right-handed twirler in 15 years.

Local golf followers who would like to see Bobby Locke and Lew Worsham in action have an opportunity to do so on Sunday, July 20 when the South African star, and National Open champion who is pro at Oakmont, appear in an exhibition match at the South Hills Country Club, Pittsburgh.

Other competitors will include Sam Parks, Jr., former U. S. Open titleholder, and Ted Luther, Pittsburgh.

And don't forget to save your money if you want to invest in the thoroughbreds.

They'll be rarin' to go at Fairgo just six weeks from today.

South African Posts Four-Under-Par 68

By CHARLES CHAMBERLAIN

Chicago, July 7, (AP) — Bobby Locke, playing his shots like a machine, clicked a four-under-par 68 today to fashion a three-stroke lead over Ed "Porky" Oliver at the end of the first round of their 36-hole playoff for the Tam O'Shanter $7,000 professional title prize.

Some 3,000 spectators followed the international golf show around the 6,825-yard course.

Locke, the South African seeking his fifth tournament triumph in 10 meets since landing in the U. S., fashioned five birdies, and went over par on only one hole in authoring a pair of 34's against par 36-36.

Only once did his tee shots drift into the rough, while Oliver, of Wilmington, Del., caught the tall grass on at least five holes in posting 37-34—71.

In taking a three-stroke lead at the turn, the knickered Johannesburg visitor pulled one of the most amazing recovery shots of the entire tournament on the ninth. His third shot on the 520-yard hole was half buried in a deep sand trap at the side of the green. He blasted one inch from the cup to match Oliver with par 5.

While Oliver was matching par, Locke gained a five-stroke lead with a four-foot birdie putt on the long 10th for a 4, and 3 footer for a birdie on the 13th after unleashing another of his consistently-accurate iron shot approaches which throughout the round more than compensated for being outdistanced by Oliver's drives.

Oliver gained on the 15th with a birdie four after holing a 20 foot putt.

Oliver blew a chance to gain on the 215-yard 16th by missing a 4½ foot putt as each made par 3's. But the chubby gallery favorite shaved Locke's advantage back to three strokes on the 18th, by planting his approach two feet off the flag and ramming it down for a birdie 3.

Locke will face Oliver in the closing 18 holes tomorrow starting at 2 p. m. (CDT).

TAKES LEAD — Bobby Locke posted a four-under-par 68 to take a three-stroke lead over Ed "Porky" Oliver in the first 18 holes of the 36-hole playoff in the All-American pro golf tourney yesterday at the Tam O' Shanter Club in Chicago. The South African and Wilmington (Del.) pro will play the closing 18 holes today.

Martinsburg Golf Team To Play CCC Linksmen Sunday

Cumberland Is Host To Opequeon At 1:30

The Cumberland Country Club's golf team will be angling for its second victory of the season when it meets the team representing the Opequeon Country Club of Martinsburg, W. Va., on Sunday afternoon at 1:30 o'clock over the local course.

It will be the first of a home-and-home series between the two clubs.

The C.C.C. team celebrated the opening of the season several weeks ago by defeating the Fountain Head Country Club of Hagerstown here by the decisive score of 52½ to 11½ points.

Martinsburg plans to bring twenty two-men teams here for the match.

Members of the Cumberland Country Club interested in participating in the match are requested to notify Carroll Boggs, pro, or his assistants at the club.

In the Martinsburg-Cumberland match on Sunday Boggs will team up with Charles S. "Bill" Catherman, Jr., to play Dave Henry and John Crissy, the West Virginians' pro-amateur combination.

Boggs and Catherman expect to compete in the Maryland Open tournament to be held Tuesday, July 15, over the Rolling Road Country Club course at Baltimore. The tourney is a one-day affair of 36 holes medal play.

Women golfers of the Cumberland Country Club will invade Hagerstown today to play the Fountain Head Country Club team in the opener of a home-and-home series. The inter-city match is scheduled to get under way this morning.

St. Louis Awarded 1948 All-Star Tilt

Frick Re-Elected Prexy In National

CHICAGO, July 7 (AP) — The American and National League club owners, in a joint meeting today, awarded the 1948 All-Star baseball game to the St. Louis Browns, and forestalled the Pacific Coast League's perennial plea for major league recognition.

In a separate session, the National League re-elected Ford Frick, 52-year-old former New York newspaperman and radio commentator, as president of the senior circuit for a four-year term.

Frick, who had joined the National League as publicitor in 1934, became its president later that same year, succeeding John A. Heydler who resigned because of ill health. Frick, whose salary was not disclosed, also serves as secretary-treasurer of the league.

Despite a two-hour session, the awarding of next year's all-star contest to the St. Louis American League club was the only major action taken. The date of the game will not be set until later.

The big league magnates referred to baseball's executive council several other proposals, including the Pacific Coast League's petition that it be given a three-to-five year trial as a major league.

Greenberg May Need Operation On His Arm

BALTIMORE, July 7 (AP) — Hank Greenberg of the Pittsburg Pirates may eventually need an operation on his arm but it can be postponed at least until winter and should not interfere with his playing this year, Dr. George Bennett said today.

Greenberg, taking advantage of three open days because of the All-Star game set for tomorrow, flew in this afternoon from Pittsburgh with Mrs. Greenberg.

Maccabees Sign Four

Manager John Mangus, Sr., yesterday announced that the Maccabees of the City Softball League have signed John Mangus, Jr., who was released by the Legion, Dick Parsons, Ronnie Cage and Eddie Martin.

The Bees are scheduled to play the Legion today at Community Park.

Lacy's Claim Game By Forfeit; Legion To Play Bees Today

Lacy's Delicatets, first half champions, claimed their opening game of the second half race in the City Softball League, via the forfeit route.

The Delicatets were scheduled to play Virginia Avenue Merchants at Taylor Field and before game time it was presumed that the field was too wet to play.

Lacy Cifala states that Manager Weaver of the Merchants insisted that the game be played. The field was put in shape and Lacy's team was ready to play at 6:15. Only the manager and two Virginia Avenue players remained so Lacy's claimed the game by forfeit.

"We don't like to win games this way but in view of the fact that Weaver insisted that we play and we went to LaVale to get enough players to start the game we feel we are entitled to claim this game," Cifala declared.

All other games were postponed on account of wet grounds.

The American Legion-Maccabees game will be staged today at 6 p. m. at Community Park. Martin and Kreitzburg will be the umpires.

Legionnaires Favored To Win Eighth In Row

Undefeated since June 10, Fort Cumberland Post, American Legion, is favored to win its eighth consecutive game when it plays the Junior Association of Commerce's winless team in a Rocking Chair Softball League game today at Fort Hill. The Jaycees have lost 16 games in a row.

The B.P.O. Elks, tied with the Legion for the topnotch berth, will battle it out with the Loyal Order of Moose at Campobello, the K. of C. will oppose the Outdoor Club at East Side field and Potomac Edison will battle Texcel on the Rolling Mill diamond.

An All-Star U. S. Program

This being All-Star day in baseball, the moment seems to be about ripe to face a number of queries that have arrived in the last few months.

Here is the problem: What are the major all-time efforts, or contributions, leading stars have given the game in this country, over a period of years? Who have been the outstanding stars? Who have turned in the outstanding performances over an extended period of time? This includes all sport.

Here is our ranking, which is certain to be ripped apart by more than a few critics:

No. 1. Ty Cobb — who led the American League in 11 of 12 consecutive seasons, against such rivals as Joe Jackson, Nap Lajoie, Tris Speaker, Sam Crawford, Bobby Veach—who played in over 3,000 games and made over 4,100 base hits, while stealing close to 900 bases. Time period—24 years.

No. 2. Babe Ruth—who, in addition to being a brilliant lefthanded pitcher, and a star outfielder, piled up over 700 home runs in his 20-year campaign.

No. 3. Cy Young—Who pitched in over 800 ball games, and won 511 contests in both leagues, over a period of 22 years.

No. 4. Bobby Jones—Who as an amateur, ran 1-2 in the U. S. Open in seven out of eight years, from 1923 to 1930—and who, in that time, won thirteen national and international championships, against such competitors as Walter Hagen, Gene Sarazen, Harry Vardon, Jim Barnes, Tommy Armour, Jock Hutchinson, Mac Smith and many other stars. Jones, at the age of 28, retired before his peak and prime.

No. 5. Willie Hoppe—Who won the world's 18.1 balk-line championship in 1906, and was still world's champion in 1946—40 years later.

No. 6. Joe Louis—Who, in the run of 10 years, defended his crown against 23 challengers—and is still on top of the pack with no challenger in sight.

No. 7. Walter Hagen—Who, from 1923 through 1928, won four P.G.A. championships, including 28 victories in 30 starts, plus 2 U. S. and 4 British Opens.

No 8. Walter Johnson—Pitching for a weak team, won 413 games, that included 113 shut-outs, with more than 3,000 strike-outs.

Room For Argument

This leaves a wide open landscape for argument.

There will be those who will claim that billiards is not an active competition, but a matter of technical skill and nerve control. This is true. But a championship touch in skill and nerve control that lasts for over 40 years is something to consider.

In our opinion, Ty Cobb's record in leading the American League nine straight years, plus a run of 12 out of 13 years at bat, against terrific competition—I mean great hitters and brilliant pitching— is as close to the top as one can get.

This is no attempt to compare Cobb and Ruth. They belonged to different fields.

Ruth, a brilliant pitcher, a fine outfielder and a home-run hitter, was the top appeal for the crowds. He was the most popular and the most spectacular ballplayer of all time. The Babe's main asset was power. Cobb's double asset was skill and speed. And Ruth had his share of skill.

For that matter, no one can compare Cobb and Ruth directly with 80-year-old Cy Young, who won more ball games than most pitchers ever pitched.

Cobb lasted longer at top speed, concluding a .323 average in his 24th year, .367 for 24 seasons. Those who insist on lifting Ruth over Cobb will find no argument here.

In our opinion, Cobb's nine-year span at the top, his record of leading great hitters for 12 out of 13 years, plus his .367 mark for 24 years, against such pitchers as Walter Johnson, Addie Joss, Smoky Joe Wood, Babe Ruth, Ed Walsh, Herb Pennock, Eddie Plank, Chief Bender, Jack Combs, Rube Waddell—on and on indefinitely, is something slightly beyond the phenomenal.

No one can question Bobby Jones' 9-year rating in golf, the toughest game of them all when it comes to consistency. Such great golfers as Nelson and Hogan have had trouble in picking up an odd title here and there. Considering the fact that Jones ran 1-2 for eight out of nine years, against such competition as Hagen, Sarazen, Mac Smith, Armour Hutchinson, Barnes—the pick of the British—plus his Grand Slam mop-up in 1930, about closes out this debate with Walter Hagen in second place.

What about Jack Dempsey? One of the greatest — possibly the greatest — of the heavyweights. His opposition was only average.

What about Joe Louis? The same goes for Joe. A great record against the best in sight, where the best was none too hot.

And rabid fan who cares to change the order we have set up has our complete permission, minus any argument. There are too many arguments clogging up the world today, most of which lead nowhere.

Chapman, Verban Rowe Are Jolted In Rail Collision

B. & O.'s Shenandoah Hits Switch Engine

CHICAGO, July 7 (AP)—About 25 passengers were injured slightly and 200 others—including several major league baseball stars—were shaken up late today in a railroad train collision near Chicago's Grand Central Station.

Pitcher Lynwood (Schoolboy) Rowe and Second Baseman Emil Verban of the Philadelphia National League club were jolted severely but expected to play in tomorrow's All-Star game at Wrigley Field.

The Baltimore and Ohio railroad's "Shenandoah", westbound from New York to Chicago, collided with a switch engine pulling empty Pere Marquette coaches about 400 yards south of the station as The Shenandoah approached at about 30 miles an hour to unload its passengers. The station is just south of the downtown section.

Twenty-five passengers were taken to St. Luke's Hospital. Five were admitted and 20 were released after treatment. Physicians said no one was seriously hurt.

Verban Numbed In Legs

Rowe was knocked unconscious for a brief period and suffered bumps on his arms and legs, and Verban was shaken up and was "numbed in the legs," Verban said, but neither required hospital treatment. Verban said the two would play tomorrow.

Also in the Philadelphia club group were Manager Ben Chapman and Mrs. Chapman. Mrs. Chapman was thrown over a seat but a hospital physician said her injury was slight. Chapman was only shaken up.

Mrs. Chapman, however, remained at the hospital for treatment for shock, a physician said.

Suffers Strained Back

The Phillies' manager was released at the hospital. A hospital spokesman said Chapman had "a strained back" but the injury was not considered serious enough to require hospitalization. Chapman himself could not be reached immediately.

The Shenandoah's Diesel engine, the switch engine and one of the empty coaches left the rails, but none of the Shenandoah coaches was derailed. About 150 feet of track was damaged but traffic was resumed within two hours, the B. and O. said.

The Shenandoah, the B. and O.'s No. 7 train, left New York last night at 6:05 (EST) and made stops at Baltimore, Washington, Pittsburgh and other eastern points. It was due in Chicago at 2:40 p. m. (CST) but was an hour late.

Interstate Loop Will Send $66 To Fleming

John J. Long, president of the Interstate Baseball League, announced yesterday that fans contributed $66 at two of the four games staged on Sunday, June 29, which was designated as "Phil Fleming Day."

Reports were not received from two other games, Long said.

A check for $66 will be forwarded to Fleming at Deshon General Hospital, Butler, Pa., as a birthday gift. The Interstate League vice president will mark his birthday on Thursday.

STARTING PITCHERS—Ewell Blackwell (left) of the Cincinnati Reds, and Spud Chandler, (right) of the New York Yankees, will be the starting pitchers in today's all-star game at Wrigley Field, Chicago, the managers of the respective National and American League clubs announced yesterday.

Chandler To Open Against Blackwell At Wrigley Field

43,000 Are Expected To See Contest Today

By JACK HAND

CHICAGO, July 7 (AP) — Ewell Blackwell, Cincinnati's animated bean pole, tries his sidearm magic on the American League sluggers tomorrow as the National League's starting ace against Spud Chandler of the New York Yankees in the 14th All-Star game at Wrigley Field.

Bolstered by the home run slugging of New York's Walker Cooper and Johnny Mize, Blackwell, a 14-2 winner with 12 straight, and his successors appear to rate an even chance. However, the Americans are a slight favorite on the strength of nine wins in 13 previous meetings.

Neither Manager Eddie Dyer of the Nationals nor Joe Cronin of the Americans would divulge any further pitching selections other than to observe they would "make changes as the course of the game dictated."

Dyer would have a well-rested Harry (The Cat) Brecheen or George Munger of his own St. Louis Cards to follow Blackwell's three-inning stint. Johnny Sain of Boston, who hasn't worked since July 4, is ready for the other three. Warren Spahn of the Braves, Ralph Branca of Brooklyn and Schoolboy Rowe of the Phillies pitched either Saturday night or Sunday and are not expected to see action.

Cronin's nomination of Chandler came as somewhat of a surprise, as many had expected to see Lefty Hal Newhouser of Detroit get the call.

Cronin Picks Chandler

"Chandler is my starter," said Cronin, who piloted the Boston Red Sox against Dyer's St. Louis Cards in the 1946 world series.

Newhouser, who worked two "warmup" relief innings Sunday, is due to see action. Joe Page of the Yanks, who struck out eight men in 3⅔ innings of relief duty yesterday, is a possibility in the late stages if a lefty is needed.

Cronin can pick his own hurlers from Walt Masterson of Washington, who recently pitched a stretch of 34 scoreless innings, Dizzy Trout of Detroit, Jack Kramer of St. Louis, Early Wynn of Washington and Frank Shea of the Yanks. All are well rested.

In any event, the expected capacity crowd of 43,000 expects to see no repeat performance of last year's 12-0 romp by the slugging Americans.

Teddy Williams of Boston, whose two homers helped humiliate the Nationals last summer at Fenway Park, is back again in left field but the senior loop thinks it discovered how to stop Teddy in the 1946 series, The Dyer Shift no doubt will be in operation again.

Americans Have Power

Despite the excitement about the Giants' home run hitting and the imposing homer total of 24 by Mize and 18 by Cooper, the Americans lineup bristles with power, from Williams around the outfield with Joe DiMaggio of the Yanks in center and Washington's efficient Buddy Lewis in right, George McQuinn of the Yanks on first, Joe Gordon of Cleveland on second, Lou Boudreau of Cleveland at short and George Kell of Detroit on third all can hit that long ball, as can Catcher Buddy Rosar of Philadelphia.

Once past Mize and Cooper, the Americans have more distance hitters scattered down their lineup than the National's starting nine of Mize at first, Emil Verban of the Phils at second, Marty Marion of St. Louis at short, Frank Gustine of Pittsburgh at third, Enos Slaughter of St. Louis in left and the Walker Brothers, Harry of the Phils in center and Dixie of the Dodgers in right, Cooper and Blackwell.

Miller Reports "Sore Arm"

Gustine and Mario replace respectively Bob Elliott of Boston, who injured a hand in a game at Brooklyn Saturday, and Eddie Miller of Cincinnati, who reported a "sore arm" although he had played all of the Reds' 75 games.

By HELEN COLLETT

PARSONS, July 7—Amid a setting of pines two hundred years old lies a small stream which to any fisherman would be a dream but from which stream no fish are ever caught.

The natural water stream coming from the mountain and through rocks at the home of Eugene Graham in Canaan Valley holds a temperature the year around of 45 degrees and is only eighteen feet wide and sixty feet long but in it are blue ribbon prizes for any fisherman with trout ranging in length from 11 inches to thirty inches.

The strange hobby of Eugene Grahams dates back as far as his memory with his father pursuing the same hobby of petting fish.

Largest 30 Inches Long

The stream which 25 years ago was dammed with native rock by a brother is only two feet deep and at the present time holds fifteen trout, brown brook and one rainbow trout which is eight years old, sixteen inches long and is king of the brook with no other fish intruding on him. The largest trout in the pond is 30 inches long, and one brown trout that measures only 13 inches long is four inches wide and two inches thick. Another brown trout measures 24 inches. The large brown trout was placed in the pond when 11 inches long after being caught with a hook and line as all of the other large ones were caught.

The rainbow trout and one brook trout are the only two fish that will feed when strangers are watching and the brook trout is the only one that is allowed to feed in front of the rainbow, who was placed in the pond when only seven inches long.

Above the stream is the milk house the father erected fifty years ago and in the small water area the fish are first placed and there petted and tamed. The two brown trout in there now are three and four years old and they eat stale bread crumbs, cottage cheese, worms and cream from the hands of their tamer and will swim into his hands whenever he places his hands in the water.

Above the milk house a small water enclosure the size of a bathtub holds many small trout under four inches long and also two rainbows and brown trout about seven inches long. The enclosure is surrounded with wire to keep the small fish from going under the rocks where the stream heads, and to keep them from working down stream to the larger fish who would soon devour them.

Knows iHstory Of Each Fish

Mr. Graham after spending the working hours with his 26,000 cauliflower plants, two horses, thirty head of sheep and thirty head of cattle on his 329 acres of farm lands returns to feed and play with his fish as his pastime. He can tell the history of each fish, when caught and knows the disposition of each one of them.

Several years ago Mr. Graham had another pond which is more than one half an acre in diameter which he had stocked with 700 trout but they were soon caught by fishermen after dusk, so now he keeps only those in the stream which is beside the house. He says that he spends several hours each week showing fishermen and interested visitors his strange hobby which is also the pride and joy of Tucker county state game protector, Fielding Kyer.

42 Boys Attend Camp Cliffside

Four Weeks' Season Is Now Under Way

The Camp Cliffside Boys' Camp on the South Branch of the Potomac near Springfield, W. Va., has opened for its fourth season with forty-two boys in attendance for the first week of the four week session. The youngsters are busily engaged in the various activities which the program calls for and are all having the time of their lives.

Such sports as swimming, canoeing, softball, basketball, ping pong, horse shoes, fishing, etc., keep them occupied from first call in the morning till taps at night. Eating is another sport that is most popular and when the bugle sounds "mess call' they are all "Johnny on the spot" to sample the offerings of Sterling and Georgia Method, the camp chefs.

Boys who entered camp for the first week include Tommy Gross, Jerry Lancaster, Ramsey Tobias, Harry Little, Louis Spoerl, Mickey McLane, George and John Menke, Bobby Hott, Robert W. and James H. Wilson, Carl Slemmer, Carl Nichel, Billy James, Jimmy Lemmert, Louis Byron, Vaughn Braithwaite, Robert A. Wilson, Richard Dailey, Breighton Wright, Fred Westfield, Francis Santelli, Wylie M. Sportsmen To Meet Game Commission

Baltimore Session Set For Tomorrow

A committee representing the Western Maryland Wildlife Federation, which comprises eleven sportsmen's organizations in Garrett, Allegany and Washington counties, will confer with members of the State Game and Inland Fish Commission at the latter's offices in the Munsey building, Baltimore, tomorrow relative to change designed to improve fish and game conditions in the state.

Recommendations approved at a recent session of the federation here will be presented to the commission and discussed in open meeting.

The federation feels that by contacting each member of the commission personally more can be accomplished than sending resolutions to the state group which is headed by Garner Denmead. Fulcher P. Smith, of Garrett county, represents Western Maryland on the state game commission.

George Walters, of Eckhart, president of the Federation; Fred Crowe, of Frostburg, and Clyde Michaels, Westernport, are among members of the committee who plan to attend the Baltimore session.

Expert Coming
Here Again
GEO. L. HOWE

Well-known expert, of Indianapolis, and ex-U. S. Army Medical Corpsman, will personally demonstrate his method without charge at the Fort Cumberland Hotel, Cumberland, Friday, July 11th from 1 P. M. to 6 P. M.

Mr. Howe says the Howe method contracts the openings in remarkably short time on the average case, regardless of the size or location of the rupture, and no matter how much you lift or strain, and puts you back to work the same day as efficient as before you were ruptured.

The Howe Rupture Shield has no leg strap; waterproof, sanitary, practically indestructible, and can be worn while bathing. Each shield is skillfully molded and fitted to the parts under heat, which gives a perfect fit and satisfaction.

Large and difficult ruptures following operations especially solicited.

RUPTURE
Here Again
GEO. L. HOWE

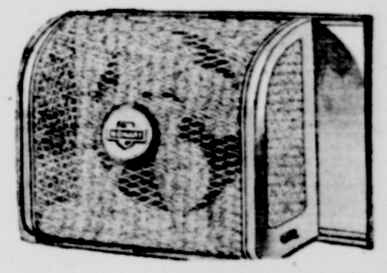

Well-known expert, of Indianapolis, and ex-U. S. Army Medical Corpsman, will personally demonstrate his method without charge at the Fort Cumberland Hotel, Cumberland, Friday, July 11th from 1 P. M. to 6 P. M.

Mr. Howe says the Howe method contracts the openings in remarkably short time on the average case, regardless of the size or location of the rupture, and no matter how much you lift or strain, and puts you back to work the same day as efficient as before you were ruptured.

The Howe Rupture Shield has no leg strap; waterproof, sanitary, practically indestructible, and can be worn while bathing. Each shield is skillfully molded and fitted to the parts under heat, which gives a perfect fit and satisfaction.

Large and difficult ruptures following operations especially solicited.

KEEPING UP WITH

HOLLYWOOD

By LOUELLA PARSONS

HOLLYWOOD, July 6—Laraine Day, who has had enough publicity to last a life time—at least, that's what she feels, considers it was better not to make "Champagne for Everybody" for Sam Coslow, after all the talk that she insisted upon going to see the Brooklyn Dodgers play.

It seemed an awful lot of money to give up, $125,000, but she's getting more than that, for "The Loves of Madeleine" which will be made in Paris—in English, of course. Not only will she get the $125,000 but she'll also receive a percentage. Furthermore, her contract stipulates that all her scenes must be shot within a 30-day period. She reports for work in Paris, November 15.

Laraine Day

I can't help but feel that Laraine was sensible not to do the Coslow picture, since there was so much trouble and so many words bandied back and forth.

Such a wonderful story behind the news that John Hubbard has his doctor's okay to accept the lead opposite Elyse Knox in "Linda Be Good" for Matty Kemp.

After four years of almost complete blindness, Hubbard has recovered his sight, and there is no longer any obstacle in the way of his career.

Just what caused the serious infection of his eyes was a mystery to the finest specialists in this country. But he contracted it while serving as a rifleman with the 88th Infantry Division in Italy.

These past four years have been torture for John who was going so well in Hollywood before optical darkness almost blacked out the world for him. Penicillin, the miracle drug, worked the miracle here.

I know all the men who were in the service will be rooting for Hubbard's comeback.

I hear tell that the hottest bidder for the Helen Hayes' play "Happy Birthday" is Joan Fontaine. Perhaps I should say William Dozier, Joan's bridegroom and head of her company, Rampart Productions. They want it for one of her own movies.

An offer, I understand, has already gone to Anita Loos, the author. And by the way, my girl friend, Anita, continues to stay on and on in New York, having the time of her life. Nice for her, but doggone, Anita, we all miss you here in Hollywood.

Joan, too, has been offered and has accepted an English picture to be made next year by J. Arthur Rank.

The blow Mary Kirk Brown landed on Betty Bunetta in that unscheduled ringside bout at Madison Square Garden knocked Betty out—at least, out of her job as secretary to the police commissioner at Passaic, New Jersey.

No, she wasn't fired. But when a lady gets her picture plastered in so many papers she becomes good publicity bait. Some of the New York merchants thought Betty so photogenic that they offered her modeling jobs. Such is fame!

The moral, I suppose, is that if you are looking for advancement, get involved with someone who's sure-fire copy, like M. K. Brown. However, if Hollywood offered Miss Bunetta a job you would hear the squawk from coast to coast.

Chatter in Hollywood: Pat Dane is not in Reno, Nevada, to get a divorce as all the newspapers said. Neither is she in Las Vegas for that purpose. Very amusing, considering the fact that Tommy Dorsey and Pat tried for weeks to get together on a settlement, that as soon as Pat got it, instead of going to get the divorce, she flew to Mexico to test for the role of Marie Antoinette in "Cagliostro."

Gregory Ratoff, who is directing the picture there put through a long distance telephone call and off Pat went for the job.

Here we go again on the annual box office digest's poll of the box office winners of the year. These are the "cash" selections from the ticket buyers themselves:

Among the men — Bing Crosby and Tyrone Power are tied for top spot, followed by Cary Grant, Fred Astaire, Bob Hope, Clark Gable, Danny Kaye and Frank Sinatra.

For the ladies—Ingrid Bergman leads comfortably. Then, Greer Garson, July Garland, Gene Tierney, Lana Turner, Myrna Loy, Rita Hayworth.

William Wyler leads the directors with "Best Years Of Our Lives" followed by Alfred Hitchcock, Stuart Heisler, Hal Walker, Michael Curtiz, John Farrow, Victor Fleming, Norman McLeod.

Surprises are that Van Johnson and Alan Ladd are below the first eight men.

John Garfield has reservations for Europe for August 15. He expects to be finished with "Gentleman's Agreement" by that time. If he isn't, he'll go later.

He'll head straight for Italy to get started on his pet project, which he has been keeping secret. He will star in his own film production of Ben Johnson's play, "Volpone", the same one which created such a stir last year when it was presented at the actor's lab. John will play the role of Mosca, of course, and the film will all be made in color in Venice, its natural background.

Mrs. Garfield and the children will live in New York while John is in Europe.

It's all up to Lawrence Tierney whether or not Vivi Stokes Taylor finally says "yes." If he behaves himself, stays on the wagon, and gets in no more cafe brawls, the lady of his heart will marry him. He's been courting the socialite divorcee for the past year.

When she heard that reformation had set in, she came to Hollywood to give him every encouragement, so it must be love.

As I said before, if ever a boy had chances by the dozen, it's Tierney.

Maryland Officer Arrives In Greece

Lt. Col. Emmett Stephens, Aberdeen, Md., was included in the second increment of 16 men sent to the Military Advisory Group in Greece.

Others from the Second Army Area in the group which recently arrived in Athens include Maj. Miller A. Christine, Alexandria, Va., Capt. Thomas L. Montgomery, Johnstown, Pa., and M/Sgt. Robert M. Keith. A third group is to be made up soon to join them.

Octavius Brooks Frothingham was an American Unitarian clergyman. His father, Nathaniel Langdon Frothingham, also a Unitarian minister, became the first professor of rhetoric and oratory at Harvard University.

There are four castes among the Hindus: the Brahmins or priests, said to have sprung from the head of Brahma; the warrior, issued from his arms; the agriculturists and traders, from his thighs; and the laborers sprang from ...

In Chicago, in 1843, pigs were barred from the town streets. In 1828, what is now the business center of that huge city, was fenced in as a pasture. As late as 1831 Chicago nail was deposited in a drygoods box.

Radio in Review

By JOHN CROSBY

Opinion-Aire

"In my opinion probably no position taken by the broadcasters is more insincere and insecure than their bland contention that the listener does not want anything he is not now getting, and that any time he does, he has only to ask for it. The public cannot ask for something it does not know exists, or could exist. It did not ask for the novel; it did not ask for the printing press; it did not ask for Shakespeare or Walt Disney or the news magazines. It did not even ask for radio."

John Crosby

In those words, Llewellyn White, author of the book, "Freedom of Radio," summed up his case against radio on Opinion-Aire, the Mutual Broadcasting System program which just went off the air for the summer. It's a telling argument against radio, if not exactly an uncommon one, but it's also an excellent introduction to Opinion-Aire itself. This comparatively new program is easily the brightest new idea on airing controversial opinion since Town Meeting of the Air. In fact, it's the only new idea to come along since Town Meeting, which is 12 years old.

The broadcasters were waiting for some one to demand a new idea, and, of course no one ever did. Opinion-Aire got its start in radio, not because the public demanded it, but because some of the bolder spirits in radio put it there.

The program is conducted like a jury trial. Lining up on either side of a controversial issue are a witness for the prosecution, a witness for the defense, and attorneys for both of them. Each witness is subjected to both direct examination by his own attorney and cross-examination by the opposition attorney. When the attorneys are skillful and the witnesses well informed, the cross examination produces a lot of fireworks and a great deal of information. I've heard only three of these programs, two of them excellent and one pretty bad. The bad one was on the question whether the United States should maintain an information service abroad. It was argued, pro and con, by a quartet of Congressmen, none of whom appeared to know what he was talking about.

The good ones were the program on the subject of the labor bill, which was brilliantly and informatively argued on both sides, and also the one on which Mr. White made the statement above. The debate in this case was on the subject, "Is Radio Doing a Good Job?" Mr. White's contention was that it was doing a good job but hardly the best job. The comedians, he argued, were going stale. There was little or no experiment. News programs leaned too heavily on headlines in place of information. The Hooper poll, he implied, was not a very accurate index of public taste.

Opposing White was Carl Haverlin, who has had twenty-five years of varied experience in radio. Mr. Haverlin came up with the rather strange argument that radio must be doing a good job because over 60,000,000 sets were now in American homes, which would appear to be more of a production triumph than anything else.

He argued that the broadcasters must have been right in choosing radio performers since some of them have maintained their popularity for fifteen years, which some persons might consider an indictment rather than a defense of radio.

Nevertheless Mr. Haverlin won overwhelmingly according to a listener poll. At the end of this program, a jury of twelve men in the studio cast ballots for one side or the other of the debated issue. In addition, a telephone vote is taken in five or six cities while the program is on the air. Ballots may be mailed in by listeners and a tabulation of these is given the following week. In the case of the program on radio, the phone vote was 86 per cent in favor of the job the broadcasters are now doing. Well, in the case of Opinion-Aire, I agree. Incidentally, the program will be back in the fall.

Censors Are Polite On Brazil Beaches

RIO DE JANEIRO, (AP) — This seaside capital city has a new organization—The Discreet Bathing Club — which is campaigning up and down Copacabana beach for more modest bathing suits.

Volunteer agents of the society spend hours on the beach politely asking for more conservative swimming costumes. They even offer to donate garments that meet their standards.

The club chairman told the press: "The aim of the club is to moralize our beaches, especially fighting the use of indecent bathing suits. We don't ask that suits come down to the knees as some people facetiously say, but we don't allow girls in two-piece suits." The club has fifty members.

Footprints Better Than Fingerprints

ADELAIDE, Australia — (AP) — Thieves who robbed two stores in the central Australian town, Alice Springs, wiped finger prints from everything they touched, but left their footprints behind.

An aboriginal police tracker, Peter, concentrated on footprints the white detectives could not see. Peter led detectives to the men camped in the desert.

After the two thieves had been convicted they escaped, but Peter's ability to read footprints resulted in their recapture within two hours.

All-Star Baseball Game To Be Aired Over MBS Today

By C. E. BUTTERFIELD

NEW YORK, July 7—Comes again the annual all-star baseball game with its MBS broadcast on Tuesday. The play by play category also will be in effect, starting at 1:15 Tuesday with a 15-minute word warmup.

Locale of the game is in Chicago, to which Mel Allen of New York and Jim Britt of Boston have hied so that they can turn their voices to developments.

Besides the network relay, details also are to be made available over the armed forces radio service for overseas listening.

Agnes Moorehead is to be the star, along with Everett Sloane, when Studio One of CBS turns another novel into an hour-long radio play at 8:30. Title is "Payment Deferred."

Red Barber, the CBS sports expert, will have the wives of two baseball notables, Mrs. Joe Cronin and Mrs. Eddie Dyer as guests of his 5:30 Daily. The husbands are rival managers of the all-star game.

The second of two Esplanade concerts by the Boston symphony will be available in the Boston symphony's hour on ABC at 8:30. Luise Vosgerchian, Boston pianist, will do the soloing as Arthur Fiedler conducts.

American Forum of MBS at 8:30 is to ask this question of its panel of four:

"Should present army-navy merger bill be passed?" It is another of those radio changes from a previous announcement.

Fire Damages Small Area On Dan's Mt.

A forest fire burned over one-fourth of an acre Saturday on Dan's Mountain near Danville on McMullen Highway, according to William Parr, district forester. Damage was estimated as small. Brook Bodkin, fire warden, directed the blaze battlers.

Parr also announced that H. C. Buckingham, acting state forester; Carl E. Pfeiffer, assistant state forester and Edward B. Ballard, park planning technician, will visit Garrett county Friday. They will go to Herrington Manor for a conference with foresters in that county.

Thousands of farmers throughout the United States have found that contoured strips save fertilizer, make every pound of plant food count.

Radio in Review

By JOHN CROSBY

Opinion-Aire

"In my opinion probably no position taken by the broadcasters is more insincere and insecure than their bland contention that the listener does not want anything he is not now getting, and that any time he does, he has only to ask for it. The public cannot ask for something it does not know exists, or could exist. It did not ask for the novel; it did not ask for the printing press; it did not ask for Shakespeare or Walt Disney or the news magazines. It did not even ask for radio."

John Crosby

In those words, Llewellyn White, author of the book, "Freedom of Radio," summed up his case against radio on Opinion-Aire, the Mutual Broadcasting System program which just went off the air for the summer. It's a telling argument against radio, if not exactly an uncommon one, but it's also an excellent introduction to Opinion-Aire itself. This comparatively new program is easily the brightest new idea on airing controversial opinion since Town Meeting of the Air. In fact, it's the only new idea to come along since Town Meeting, which is 12 years old.

The broadcasters were waiting for some one to demand a new idea, and, of course no one ever did. Opinion-Aire got its start in radio, not because the public demanded it, but because some of the bolder spirits in radio put it there.

The program is conducted like a jury trial. Lining up on either side of a controversial issue are a witness for the prosecution, a witness for the defense, and attorneys for both of them. Each witness is subjected to both direct examination by his own attorney and cross-examination by the opposition attorney. When the attorneys are skillful and the witnesses well informed, the cross examination produces a lot of fireworks and a great deal of information. I've heard only three of these programs, two of them excellent and one pretty bad. The bad one was on the question whether the United States should maintain an information service abroad. It was argued, pro and con, by a quartet of Congressmen, none of whom appeared to know what he was talking about.

The good ones were the program on the subject of the labor bill, which was brilliantly and informatively argued on both sides, and also the one on which Mr. White made the statement above. The debate in this case was on the subject, "Is Radio Doing a Good Job?" Mr. White's contention was that it was doing a good job but hardly the best job. The comedians, he argued, were going stale. There was little or no experiment. News programs leaned too heavily on headlines in place of information. The Hooper poll, he implied, was not a very accurate index of public taste.

"Well, I guess I'd better get back before my friend gets impatient!"

Stock Market Average Goes Up For Eighth Successive Session

NEW YORK, July 7 — (AP) — Strength of rails, liquors and special stocks put the market average up today for the eighth successive session although many tired looking leaders rested in slightly lower ground.

A big jump in rail revenues for the first five months against a deficit in the like 1946 period aided carriers while the lately indifferent distillers were buoyed by forecasts of rising sales. Hopes for a quick settlement of the bogged down coal wage pact inspired bidding.

The Associated Press 60-stock composite was up .2 of a point at 66.3, best level since March 6 last. It was another broad session of 1,022 issues registering, 497 rose and 306 fell.

Publicker Industries added 3⅜ at 29½, Schenley 1¼ at 32⅛, Chesapeake and Ohio 1⅛ at 47.

Declines were shown for Bethlehem, Youngstown Sheet, American Can, Philip Morris and Texas Company.

Forward curb leaners were Raytheon, Technicolor, International Petroleum and Colonial Mills. Turnover here was 280,000 shares versus 330,000 in the preceding session.

Railroad issues continued their upward trend of the past week in today's bond market with gains ranging from fractions to more than two points.

Greatest gainers in the first session since the long July 4 weekend included Central of Georgia first 5s up 4⅛ at 96, and Baltimore and Ohio 6s of '95 up 2⅜ at 75¼.

United States Governments were unchanged to 3-32 higher in over the counter dealings. The victory loan 2½s of December, 1967-72 were unchanged at 102.22 bid.

ORDER OF PUBLICATION

Madeline R. Blank vs. Samuel T. Blank. No. 20141 Equity in the Circuit Court for Allegany County.

The object of this suit is to procure a decree divorcing the plaintiff from the defendant A VINCULO MATRIMONII.

The Bill states that the parties were married on October 11, 1929; the Bill further alleges that the defendant abandoned and deserted the plaintiff on December 1, 1945 and that said abandonment has continued uninterruptedly from that time down to the present time and is for more than eighteen months and is deliberate and final and the separation of the parties beyond any reasonable hope of reconciliation; that no children were born of said marriage; that the plaintiff is a resident of the State of Maryland and has been so all of her life and that the defendant is a resident of the City of Detroit, Michigan and a non resident of the State of Maryland.

It is thereupon this 3rd day of July, 1947 ordered by the Circuit Court for Allegany County that the plaintiff by causing this Order to be inserted in some newspaper published in Allegany County once a week for four successive weeks before the 8th day of August, 1947 giving notice to the said absent defendant of the object and substance of this Bill and warning him to be and appear in this Court in person or by Solicitor on or before the 25th day of August, 1947 to show cause if any he have why a decree ought not to be passed as prayed.

Stock Market Average Goes Up For Eighth Successive Session

NEW YORK, July 7 — (AP) — Strength of rails, liquors and special stocks put the market average up today for the eighth successive session although many tired looking leaders rested in slightly lower ground.

Transfers of 1,050,000 shares compared with 1,250,000 last Thursday.

A big jump in rail revenues for the first five months against a deficit in the like 1946 period aided carriers while the lately indifferent distillers were buoyed by forecasts of rising sales. Hopes for a quick settlement of the bogged down coal wage pact inspired bidding.

The Associated Press 60-stock composite was up .2 of a point at 66.3, best level since March 6 last. It was another broad session of 1,022 issues registering 497 rose and 306 fell.

Publicker Industries added 3⅜ at 29½, Schenley 1¼ at 32⅛, Chesapeake and Ohio 1⅛ at 47.

Declines were shown for Bethlehem, Youngstown Sheet, American Can, Philip Morris and Texas Company.

Forward curb leaners were Raytheon, Technicolor, International Petroleum and Colonial Mills. Turnover here was 280,000 shares versus 330,000 in the preceding session.

Railroad issues continued their upward trend of the past week in today's bond market with gains ranging from fractions to more than two points.

Greatest gainers in the first session since the long July 4 weekend included Central of Georgia first 5s up 4⅛ at 96, and Baltimore and Ohio 6s of '95 up 2⅜ at 75¼.

United States Governments were unchanged to 3-32 higher in over the counter dealings. The victory loan 2½s of December, 1967-72 were unchanged at 102.22 bid.

Route Linking West Side And North End Proposed

Commission Considers Bus Terminal Sites

A plan to link Lee Street between Fayette and Cumberland Streets to provide a direct route between the West Side and North Cumberland was suggested to the Municipal Planning and Zoning Commission yesterday by Ralph L. Rizer, city engineer.

Meanwhile the commission again considered proposals for a new bus terminal and it was pointed out that the Bedford-Centre Street location has been revived as a possible site.

While the commission took no action, the members viewed with interest Rizer's suggestion that the Cumberland Street bridge over the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad be replaced with a tunnel and Lee Street connected between Fayette and Cumberland Streets.

Widening Considered

Widening of Valley Street already is under consideration in connection with flood control plans, and Rizer said that linking of Lee Street and widening of Valley Street would provide a direct route between the West Side and North End and would tend to relieve the congestion on Baltimore Street.

At the present time, Lee Street ends at Payette Street and begins again on Cumberland Street. Building of a tunnel to replace the bridge, which is owned by the railroad, would make it possible to connect the street, Rizer said.

James Alfred Avirett, commission chairman, said Charles G. Holzshu, who owns the Bedford-Centre Street property being considered for a bus terminal, is having prepared new plans which would develop the section as a retail store area along with a bus terminal location.

Under these plans, the terminal would be built in the rear of proposed retail stores which would front on Bedford and Centre Streets. An arcade would run from the corner of Bedford and Centre Streets to the terminal in the rear of the stores.

Complete plans for this location have not yet been submitted but the commission members said they would like to see these plans in as much detail as possible. The property fronts about 125 feet on Bedford Street and approximately 150 feet on Centre Street.

Meanwhile they took no action on plans proposed for use of the Southern Hotel property as a bus terminal site.

Termed Inadequate

The plans as presented provided room for parking four buses at the loading platform and this was termed inadequate. It was pointed out, however, that these plans are being redrawn and that space for buses may be provided.

Chairman Avirett, emphasizing that the commission is looking ahead to the future for a better Cumberland in all of its deliberations, said he believes the Bedford-Centre Street location has better possibilities for development of a retail area than has the North Mechanic Street site of the Southern Hotel.

Avirett said Baltimore Street already is overcrowded and that a business development in the Bedford-Centre Street section would help to relieve the problem and at the same time would enlarge the city's business district.

The question of determining the lines of Wills Creek also was considered at yesterday's meeting and the matter will be referred to the city attorney for his opinion as to who has jurisdiction.

Members of the commission said they feared that dumping in the creek or building in the creek, thus narrowing the channel, would make high water even more dangerous to the city.

The report of Whitman, Requardt and Associates on the proposed crosstown bridge was endorsed by the commission which recommended the plan to the Mayor and Council.

They said they felt the city should now contact the State Roads Commission, the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad and the federal government to determine what share of the cost can be borne by the respective parties.

Budget Cut May Curtail Service At Post Office

The possibility of a definite reduction in some services of the Cumberland Post Office as a result of a cut in the auxiliary and overtime allowances was admitted yesterday by a local postal official.

The announcement of the budget reduction was received last week in instructions from the first assistant postmaster general who reported that "because of circumstances beyond our control," the allowances for auxiliary and overtime for clerks in first and second class post offices and for all city delivery carriers for the quarter ending September 30 will be delayed and may not reach some postmasters until after the beginning of the quarter.

"Generally," the notice added, "all requests for auxiliaries have been cut not less than 20 per cent cent and overtime by 50 per cent." With this understanding, postmasters have been authorized to incur expenditures not to exceed 80 per cent of auxiliary and 50 per cent of overtime requested.

Officials here explained the cut would have no effect upon regular employes of the post office but would necessarily mean a reduction in some services due to lack of funds.

Auxiliary, or extra employes, they said, are employed when regular employes are off due to sick leave, vacations, at rush periods and the limitation of regular employes to a 40-hour week.

Officials here have requested information as to just how the general reduction will affect Cumberland but are still awaiting definite instructions.

In the meanwhile, of course, the reductions have been placed in effect as requested in the general order, they said.

Little Interest Shown In Local Legion Election

Less Than 16 Percent Vote

Only 185 members of Fort Cumberland Post No. 13, American Legion cast ballots yesterday and last night, in the annual election of officers, executive committeemen and delegates and alternates to the department convention. The post has a total paid-up membership of 1,181, according to Russell C. Paupe, adjutant. This indicates that only 15.7 percent of the membership voted.

According to the custom of the post, no announcement is made of the results of the election until the first regular post meeting following the annual election. The post meets tonight at 8 o'clock at the post home.

Candidates for the several offices balloted upon included:

Post Commander — Thomas R. Parrell, John H. Riggleman and Paul C. Weisenmiller.

First Vice-Commander — Walter T. Hensel and William J. McGeady.

Second Vice-Commander — John R. Neff, Bruce F. Richardson, and William H. Treiber.

Adjutant—William H. Buchholtz and Russell C. Paupe.

Finance Officers—John V. Berkard, Richard H. Mathews, and Ralph E. Wilkinson.

The retiring commander, Phil Fleming, automatically becomes a member of the executive committee and holds the office of past commander in the post.

From a ballot containing 39 names, 26 were voted upon as delegates and alternates.

Flying Saucers Reported Here

At least two local people report seeing "flying saucers" over Cumberland.

Mrs. John Hitchins, 238½ Bond Street, said last night that on Friday morning, June 27, at about 5 a. m., she saw a black dics-like object, "definitely not an airplane", fly across the sky and disappear over the Ridgedale section.

She explained she was sitting in her sun parlor looking out the window when the object suddenly appeared, hurtled past and out of sight. She said it was flying high and very fast. Asked to describe it more fully she said it "was sort of egg shaped, large and black, like a bird with its wings folded back." Mrs. Hitchins said she called to her daughter at the time, but when she ran to the window the object was gone.

Mrs. R. G. Yancey, 522 Washington Street, said that late on the night of June 26, she saw a round golden-colored object fly across the sky at an extremely fast pace. She called attention to the object to friends, but it had disappeared by the time they turned to look. She said the disc was large, bright and had a flat-like rounded appearance. It moved rapidly and glowed as it crossed her line of vision.

Both women were reluctant to talk about the discs, explaining that so many people have ridiculed the idea. However, Mrs. Hitchins said she believed it should be reported. Both were reluctant to have their accounts printed, fearing ridicule of their friends, but both vouch for the accuracy of their stories.

Magistrate Will Try Fazenbaker Today

Charged with violating his parole, Alvin Fazenbaker, Westernport, will be given a hearing before Trial Magistrate John Laughlin in Westernport today at 2 p. m.

Fazenbaker was arrested July 3 in Westernport by State Trooper A. M. Spioch on a charge of assaulting William P. Bryant of Westernport. Police said that he had been drinking prior to the alleged attack.

The Westernport man had been handed a deferred sentence in Trial Magistrates' Court in Cumberland on April 5 after he had been involved in a melee outside a Barton beer tavern. Traffic was tied up by several score persons crowding around the altercation. He was found guilty of assaulting a Barton police officer and handed a fine of $25 and costs and was also fined $20 for disturbing the peace. A prison sentence was deferred.

The April incident took place only a few months after Fazenbaker had completed a year's sentence at Keyser as a result of a scuffle in which Chief of Police Dornon of Piedmont died.

Carpenters Union Installs Officers

William H. Moyer, 1313 Virginia Avenue, was installed as president of Carpenters Local 1024, AFL, at a meeting in Allegany Trades Council Hall last night.

Louis Weber, a past president of the Cumberland local, obligated the officers which also included:

Ralph Porter, vice-president; F. Patrick Allender, treasurer and business manager; J. J. Eirich, financial secretary; J. E. Mulenax, recording secretary; C. C. Harper, warden, and Louis Weber, trustee.

The local now has some 230 members and has jurisdiction over Allegany and Garrett Counties in Maryland as well as adjoining counties in West Virginia.

Older Policemen Had Rough Time, Treiber Recalls

Anyone who ever shot a Cumberland policeman in the last 46 years was arrested by Acting Chief of Police John J. Treiber who will retire on July 15, three days after his 71st birthday.

Treiber, who first joined the police department in 1901 and twice served short terms as chief of police, recalled last night that "police had to police in those days."

He covered the toughest beats in town—Frog Eye, and Shantytown—and still has scars of evidence of being shot when he attempted to disarm an automobile thief in front of the Footer Building on South Mechanic Street 15 to 20 years ago. His assailant was arrested two days later in Oakland while robbing a gasoline station.

"That fellow had his gun against my belly and when I pushed down on it, he fired. It hit me in the finger and left leg," Treiber recalls, exhibiting a scar on his left hand.

Topple Into River

The Assistant Chief's first broken arm in line of duty came 30 to 35 years ago when he and a man he was arresting on Blue Bridge toppled into the Potomac River.

"I had to club a good bit to get him to headquarters, but I got him there," Treiber reminisced. "I didn't know my arm was broken until it started to hurt and I went to a doctor.

The other time his arm was broken was years back when he was arresting another man. That time "we both rolled clean to the bottom of the steps."

Chief Treiber recalls that one man he arrested after shooting a policeman to death was lynched.

"Gust Baker was shot and killed and I arrested a colored man on Wineow Street that night. About 3 a. m. I took him over to the county jail and that night they lynched him.

"I arrested the fellow that shot Jack Soyster, another patrolman, too," Treiber recalled, "and I got the man that shot Officer George Burrull in Black's Grove in South Cumberland."

"Back in those days we used the old Daily News cart Jim Hall used to push papers in to the station for a patrol wagon. Some days Jim would look for the cart and couldn't find it. We'd have it pushing somebody in to the station house."

With the exception of one year when he served as a deputy sheriff under the late Harry Irvine, Treiber has been a member of the Cumberland Police Department.

Served As Chief

He was chief once under the late Mayor "Jerry" Kane and again under the late Mayor Thomas W. Koon, serving in that post for about a year each time.

When the Cumberland Fire Department was organized he was offered the position of fire chief, he recalled last night, but turned it down in favor of remaining a lieutenant in the police department. He became assistant chief in 1936.

He recalled last night with some show of pride that he never had asked for advancement.

"When I was policing," Treiber said, "everybody you arrested you had to fight," but last night he extended his appreciation to the citizens of Cumberland and to members of the Police Department "for being good to me.

"And don't forget," he added, "I want to give my best wishes to the new chief and assistant chief."

The cases involve the Kelly Springfield Tire Company, represented by William C. Walsh and Thomas B. Finan, Jr., the Celanese Corporation of America, represented by Charles Z. Heskett, and John T. Fey; and the West Virginia Pulp and Paper Mill Company, represented by Horace P. Whitworth, Sr. Lewis M. Wilson is attorney to the County Board.

"Bob" Meister also were retired by the Mayor and Council on orders introduced by Police Commissioner William V. Keegan.

Roadside Beautification Program Revived By Western Marylanders

Meet July 17 With State Roads Body

Organized in 1939 in a move to beautify roadsides of State highways in Western Maryland, representatives of the Confederation of Western Maryland Communities, Inc., which was idle during the war, will meet with the State Roads Commission in Baltimore July 17 to review its plans and initiate a program of putting them into effect, according to Harold W. Smith, secretary of the Chamber of Commerce and a member of the Confederation.

Smith said he was invited by James H. Gambrill, Jr., of Frederick, president of the Confederation, to attend the meeting along with other representatives and urge the Commission to carry out the plans that have been prepared.

Gambrill pointed out in his letter, that in the fall of 1941 a delegation from the Confederation, representing Allegany, Garrett, Washington and Frederick Counties, called upon the State Roads Commission and asked that body to consider plans for improvement and beautification of roadsides, the work to be done at the end of the war when labor and means would be available.

The Confederation also asked the Commission to have surveys made and landscaping plans prepared so the work could begin as soon as possible after the end of the war, Gambrill recalled, adding that this work was accomplished.

In the meantime, scenic parking areas were established on the top of some mountains along Route 40, and third lanes were added to the highway on some mountain sections, aiding traffic considerably, Gambrill pointed out.

He said the landscaping plans were prepared by the Landscaping Department of the State Roads Commission, the late Leo Downey, district engineer, the state Forestry Department, and himself, and added that a strip map containing these plans should be available in the office of the Commission.

In the meantime, the Junior Women's Civic Club of Cumberland has gone ahead with its project of beautifying highway entrances to Cumberland.

Smith recalled yesterday that Benjamin M. Kamens, this city, was first vice president of the Confederation before it became inactive. Parke W. T. Loy, Hagerstown, was second vice president, and Roger B. Wolfe, Frederick, was secretary-treasurer.

The organization was made up of representatives of service clubs and Chambers of Commerce of the four counties.

Flynn, Gaffney Named Heads Of Police Force

Keegan Says More Changes Pending

More changes, as yet undisclosed, are to be made in the Cumberland Police Department, Police Commissioner William V. Keegan said last night after the Mayor and Council earlier yesterday named Robert Emmett Flynn as chief of police and Frank B. Gaffney assistant chief of police.

Flynn's appointment to succeed Chief of Police Oscar A. Eyerman who retired yesterday ending 30 years of service, and Gaffney's selection to succeed Assistant Chief John J. Treiber, who will be retired July 15 after 45 years on the department, are pending Civil Service examinations.

Two other members of the force also are to be retired and pensioned July 15 under orders introduced at yesterday's council meeting by Commissioner Keegan. They are Desk Sgts. Milford L. Crabtree and L. E. "Bob" Meister.

Two Vacancies

Promotion of Flynn and Gaffney, both lieutenants in the detective bureau leaves two vacancies in that department, and Keegan said replacements are to be made. He added that he does not know when they will take place.

Naming of two desk sergeants to replace Meister and Crabtree will be in the hands of Flynn and Gaffney, according to Keegan, and Flynn said notice of the two vacancies will be posted in the squad room at Police Headquarters and interested officers may make application.

Keegan said that Motorcycle Officer Curtis McA. Kime will be removed from motorcycle duty on advice of the city physician and added that there will be some other changes and promotions in the department, along with some planned changes in hours.

Once the promotions and changes are made, "We'll have a general get-together and understanding," Keegan said.

Both Crabtree and Meister, who have passed the retirement age, applied for extension of time, the commissioner stated, but he pointed out that physical examinations of the two men by City Physician John K. Rozum prompted his decision to place them on the pension list.

Assistant Chief Treiber, who also has passed the retirement age, said he had not applied for an extension of time and had intended to request retirement in August.

All of the moves were made, Keegan said, "with no malice."

Speaking of the retiring men, he stated, "We are sorry to see them go." He expressed the wish there were more benefits under the pension plan.

Exam Date Not Set

Civil service examinations for chief of police and assistant chief probably will not be held for two months, according to Clifford Spiker, a member of the Civil Service Board.

He said the examination will be the first for the two positions conducted by the board. Any member of the force is eligible to take the examination, regardless of age, Spiker said, but a non-member of the force must not have reached his 35th birthday. Citizens of Cumberland who have resided here for three years are eligible to take the exam, he added.

Names of applicants making the 10 highest scores will be submitted to the Mayor and Council.

Sgt. Crabtree joined the force June 22, 1922, and Sgt. Meister on May 6, 1910. The latter is the oldest member in point of consecutive service, having served continuously since his appointment. He previously was employed by the German Brewery.

Sgt. Crabtree, prior to joining the Police Department, was employed by J. C. Orrick Company, wholesalers, and as a street car motorman here.

Flynn, a native of Cumberland and a veteran of 10 years' service on the force, received unsolicited commendation from the Federal Bureau of Investigation, according to Commissioner Keegan, who pointed out that both Flynn and Gaffney completed FBI instruction work.

World War Veteran

A veteran of the First World War, Flynn served with the 13th Balloon Company and was overseas in France for some time. He is a son of the late James and Ellen Bahen Flynn and received his education at the old Allegany County High School and graduated from LaSalle High School in 1916. He later took a special two-year course in Latin and mathematics.

He was secretary to the mechanic superintendent of the Western Maryland Railway for a number of years and later was employed by the Cumberland Brewery. In 1936 he joined the police department as a probationary officer and then was named a member of the detective bureau. He was named a detective lieutenant two years ago.

Flynn is also a graduate of the Federal Bureau of Investigation's National Academy at Washington and the Institute of Applied Science in Chicago. He studied ballistics, fingerprinting and photography at the latter school.

He is a member of Henry Hart Post No. 1411, Veterans of Foreign Wars; Fort Cumberland Post No. 13, American Legion; Cumberland Aerie No. 245, F. O. Eagles, Loyal Order of Moose, Lodge 271, and the Red Men.

Flynn is married to the former Miss Eleanor Smith of this city and they have four children.

Lt. Gaffney came to Cumberland in 1919 as a Maryland State Trooper, following his service in the Navy in World War I. He served with the State Police for two years, then was employed by the Kelly-Springfield Tire Company here, from 1921 until 1935.

He left Kelly-Springfield to join the city police force as a patrolman. In 1937 he attended the twelve-week course of the National Police Academy conducted by the Federal Bureau of Investigation in Washington, D. C. When he returned to Cumberland he was assigned to plain-clothes duty.

Shortly thereafter he was promoted to sergeant, and then became a lieutenant of detectives in 1945. During the second World War, he was a special agent for the Federal Bureau of Investigation for a short time.

Consolidation Coal Sells Properties In 2 Counties

TAKES OWN LIFE—T. Raymond Peterman, 63, veteran printer employed by the Times and Alleganian Company, took his life shortly after noon yesterday at his home at 421 Independence Street by shooting himself after slashing his wrist, and turning on the gas in his bedroom.

Jenkins Brothers Purchase Holdings

The final chapter in the history of the Consolidation Coal Company's Maryland division was written here yesterday, with the recording of a deed transfering all remaining properties of the company in Garrett and Allegany counties, to the Maryland Coal and Realty Company for a consideration of $137,000.

The deed was drawn for the Pittsburgh Consolidation Coal Company and signed for that corporation by G. W. Kratz, vice-president and C. E. Beachley, secretary.

William S. Jenkins, of Frostburg, local attorney, signed as president of the Maryland Coal and Realty Company and his brother Kenneth Jenkins, secretary also signed the agreement. William S. Jenkins said last night two other brothers, Phillip J. Jenkins and Jonathan R. Jenkins are also interested in the corporation.

Jenkins explained that the Maryland Coal and Realty Company has leased all of the property acquired by the Consilidated Fuel Company, of which his father, William E. Jenkins, Frostburg, is president. The Consolidated Fuel Company has been operating most of the mines and property involved under a lease agreement with the Consolidation Coal Company, and will continue to operate as usual, under the new lease agreement with the Maryland Coal and Realty Company.

Much Coal Involved

Included in the transfer were Mines Nos., 1 at Ocean, 3 at Hoffman, 4 and 10 at Eckhart and 17 at Klondyke, in addition to several seams of coal where strip mining is in progress, railroad sidings, water lines, roadways, tipples, bridges, and other mining property. Some of the coal seams involved in the sale extend into Garrett county, so that all remaining Maryland holdings of the old Consolidation Coal Company are included.

Jenkins said the transfer will not affect in any way the operation of the Consolidation Fuel Company, except that it now operates under a new lease agreement with the new holding corporation.

Transfer of such a large portion of the state's coal seams, in a single sale, recalled the long 87-year-old history of the Consolidation Coal Company in Maryland. The Company made a major contribution in the early development of this county and its coal region. At one time more than half the coal in the Georges Creek Region was mined and controlled by Consolidation.

Founded Klondyke

The town of Klondyke was founded by the Company when the mine was opened there, and several other Allegany County towns grew and developed as the Company opened and developed more seams.

According to the history of Allegany County as compiled by Thomas and Williams, the Consolidation Coal Company made a major contribution toward the development of Allegany County and exercised great influence in the county.

The Company is credited with bringing about the construction of the Cumberland and Georges Creek Railroad, of interesting the Pennsylvania Railroad in hauling coal and running passenger trains into Cumberland via State Line near Ellerslie, and for a long period owned the Cumberland and Pennsylvania Railroad. It is also credited with shipping great amounts of coal by the old C and O Canal, and of arousing the interest of the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad in improving its rail facilities to a great extent here.

Largest Employer

During one period, Consolidation Coal Company employed more peo-

Suicide Verdict Issued In Death Of Local Printer

Gunshot Wound Fatal To T. R. Peterman

A verdict of suicide was issued yesterday in the death of Tolbert Raymond Peterman, 63, well known printer, who shot himself to death in a bedroom of his home, 421 Independence Street, early yesterday afternoon after he had slashed one of his wrists and turned on the gas.

Dr. H. V. Deming, deputy county medical examiner, said Mr. Peterman died at 12:30 p. m. of a pulmonary hemorrhage after he shot himself in the left side of the chest with a .38 caliber revolver.

He attributed the suicide to worry, and added that the gas in the room had been turned on before he inflicted a superficial cut on the left wrist with a knife.

Authorities said Mr. Peterman turned on the gas in the small stove in the bedroom, then sat down on the bed after placing a cardboard box on the floor before he cut his wrist.

Falls Upon Bed

The old model revolver dropped into the box as he fell backward across the bed. The bullet entered the left side of the chest, pierced the lungs and lodged just under the skin at the back of the chest, authorities said.

The body was discovered by a neighbor, Carlyle M. Steward, 419 Independence Street, after he was summoned by Mr. Peterman's housekeeper, Mrs. Anna Lowery.

Mrs. Lowery, who has been housekeeper at the home since 1918, was working under the front porch of the home late yesterday morning when she went to the Steward home to borrow a wrecking bar to do some house repairs.

She explained that Mr. Peterman had been down talking to her a few minutes before and had gone upstairs to get a cup of coffee.

When the housekeeper returned home a few minutes later she called to Mr. Peterman but did not receive an answer. She went upstairs to investigate and pounded upon his bedroom door but did not receive an answer so ran to the Steward home for aid, authorities said.

Hears Gurgle

Authorities said Mrs. Lowery told the neighbor "Come quick, something's happened to Ray" adding she had heard a gurgle when she went to the locked door.

Steward investigated and found Mr. Peterman lying on the bed, apparently a victim of the wrist slashing as he did not notice either the gunshot wound or the escaping gas on the first visit.

When police arrived at the home they immediately detected the gas escaping from a small stove in the room. A sweater had been stuck against the hall door, they said, to keep the fumes in the room.

None of the neighbors heard the fatal shot fired, authorities said.

County Investigator Terrance J. Boyle, Deputy Sheriff William "Scotty" Orr and Police Sgt. Raymond R. Johnston assisted in the investigation.

Mr. Peterman served as a corporal in Company G of the National Guard on the Mexican border shortly before World War I.

Was Veteran Printer

Mr. Peterman, a linotype operator for the Times and Alleganian Company had been a printer here for the past 42 years. He was a former composing room foreman on the old Daily News and had been employed by the Times and Alleganian Company for the past nine years.

He was a member of Cumberland Local 244, International Typographical Union.

He was born October 14, 1884, a son of the late Tolbert G. and Mary Miller Peterman.

Surviving are his wife, Mrs. Anna Eppler Peterman; three sons, William E. Peterman, Hollywood, Cal., and John and George; one brother, George Peterman, Liberty Heights, Baltimore, and a sister, Mrs. C. B. Crabtree, Cash Valley.

His son, William, was flying here from California last night and is expected to arrive this morning.

The body is at the Stein Funeral Home.

Gov. Lane Paroles Roscoe Dewey Leslie

Roscoe Dewey Leslie was one of 14 prisoners paroled yesterday from Maryland penal institutions by Gov. William P. Lane, Jr.

According to the sheriff's office here, Leslie was arrested on a burglary charge January 10, last, and was sentenced to a year in the House of Correction at the January term of Court. He was removed from the county jail to the House of Correction on January 24.

Site For Armory Building Sought In Frostburg

FROSTBURG, July 7.—The Mayor and City Council appointed a committee tonight, to attempt to find a location for a temporary Armory building to be erected here for use of a Maryland National Guard unit, now being organized in Frostburg.

Col. Randolph Millholland and Major Howard H. Dickey, both of Cumberland and officers of the 115th Guard Regiment, appeared before the town officials with a delegation of the Frostburg Lions Club. Col. Millholland was spokesman for the group and explained that a site is desired within the corporate limits and as centrally located as possible.

It was explained that numerous local citizens including the Lions Club and other groups are interested in the formation of a Guard Company here, and the unit is to have a strength of 150 men. Col. Millholland said that after the unit is established, the temporary building will be replaced by a permanent State Armory.

The mayor named S. W. Green, chairman, William Dolder, Oliver B. Wittig, Jesse F. Jenkins, commissioner of water and light and Phillip Hartig, city engineer, to locate a site, determine its cost etc., and report back to the council.

Maj. Dickey said he will be in Frostburg Thursday night at the Gunter Hotel, to start a recruiting program for the new Frostburg Company.

Marshall Porter, Eckhart, asked the town officials for the cooperation in the establishment of a dairy plant within the corporate limits. He explained the plant will be for the purpose of processing milk and no live stock will be kept at the plant. The mayor and council told Porter there is no objection to his proposal and assured him of their corporation.

Robert Glodfelty and Edgar Grose, residents of Eckhart, requested the mayor and council mail a copy of City Engineer Hartig's report on a grade proposal for the relocation of Route 40, to the State Roads Commission.

City Clerk Alex C. Close was instructed to advertise for bids on the purchase of an automobile, completely equipped, for use as a police car. Bids must be submitted in writing by July 14.

Route Linking West Side And North End Proposed

Commission Considers Bus Terminal Sites

A plan to link Lee Street between Fayette and Cumberland Streets to provide a direct route between the West Side and North Cumberland was suggested to the Municipal Planning and Zoning Commission yesterday by Ralph L. Rizer, city engineer.

Meanwhile the commission again considered proposals for a new bus terminal and it was pointed out that the Bedford-Centre Street location has been revived as a possible site.

While the commission took no action, the members viewed with interest Rizer's suggestion that the Cumberland Street bridge over the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad be replaced with a tunnel and Lee Street connected between Fayette and Cumberland Streets.

Widening Considered

Widening of Valley Street already is under consideration in connection with flood control plans, and Rizer said that linking of Lee Street and widening of Valley Street would provide a direct route between the West Side and North End and would tend to relieve the congestion on Baltimore Street.

At the present time, Lee Street ends at Fayette Street and begins again on Cumberland Street. Building of a tunnel to replace the bridge, which is owned by the railroad, would make it possible to connect the street, Rizer said.

James Alfred Avirett, commission chairman, said Charles G. Holzshu, who owns the Bedford-Centre Street property being considered for a bus terminal, is having prepared new plans which would develop the section as a retail store area along with a bus terminal location.

Under these plans, the terminal would be built in the rear of proposed retail stores which would front on Bedford and Centre Streets. An arcade would run from the corner of Bedford and Centre Streets to the terminal in the rear of the stores.

Complete plans for this location have not yet been submitted but the commission members said they would like to see these plans in as much detail as possible. The property fronts about 125 feet on Bedford Street and approximately 150 feet on Centre Street.

Meanwhile they took no action on plans proposed for use of the Southern Hotel property as a bus terminal site.

Termed Inadequate

The plans as presented provided room for parking four buses at the loading platform and this was termed inadequate. It was pointed out, however, that these plans are being redrawn and that space for buses may be provided.

Chairman Avirett, emphasizing that the commission is looking ahead to the future for a better Cumberland in all of its deliberations, said he believes the Bedford-Centre Street location has better possibilities for development of a retail area than has the North Mechanic Street site of the Southern Hotel.

Avirett said Baltimore Street already is overcrowded and that a business development in the Bedford-Centre Street section would help to relieve the problem and at the same time would enlarge the city's business district.

The question of determining the lines of Wills Creek also was considered at yesterday's meeting and the matter will be referred to the city attorney for his opinion as to who has jurisdiction.

Members of the commission said they feared that dumping in the creek or building in the creek, thus narrowing the channel, would make high water even more dangerous to the city.

The report of Whitman, Requardt and Associates on the proposed crosstown bridge was endorsed by the commission which recommended the plan to the Mayor and Council.

They said they felt the city should now contact the State Roads Commission, the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad and the federal government to determine what share of the cost can be borne by the respective parties.

Budget Cut May Curtail Service At Post Office

The possibility of a definite reduction in some services of the Cumberland Post Office as a result of a cut in the auxiliary and overtime allowances was admitted yesterday by a local postal official.

The announcement of the budget reduction was received last week in instructions from the first assistant postmaster general who reported that "because of circumstances beyond our control," the allowances for auxiliary and overtime for clerks in first and second class post offices and for all city delivery carriers for the quarter ending September 30 will be delayed and may not reach some postmasters until after the beginning of the quarter.

"Generally," the notice added, "all requests for auxiliaries have been cut not less than 20 per cent cent and overtime by 50 per cent." With this understanding, postmasters have been authorized to incur expenditures not to exceed 80 per cent of auxiliary and 50 per cent of overtime requested.

Officials here explained the cut would have no effect upon regular employes of the post office but would necessarily mean a reduction in some services due to lack of funds.

Auxiliary, or extra employes, they said, are employed when regular employes are off due to sick leave, vacations, at rush periods and the limitation of regular employes to a 40-hour week.

Officials here have requested information as to just how the general reduction will affect Cumberland but are still awaiting definite instructions.

In the meanwhile, of course, the reductions have been placed in effect as requested in the general order, they said.

Little Interest Shown In Local Legion Election

Less Than 16 Percent Vote

Only 185 members of Fort Cumberland Post No. 13, American Legion cast ballots yesterday and last night, in the annual election of officers, executive committeemen and delegates and alternates to the department convention. The post has a total paid-up membership of 1,181, according to Russell C. Paupe, adjutant. This indicates that only 15.7 percent of the membership voted.

According to the custom of the post, no announcement is made of the results of the election until the first regular post meeting following the annual election. The post meets tonight at 8 o'clock at the post home.

Flying Saucers Reported Here

At least two local people report seeing "flying saucers" over Cumberland.

Mrs. John Hitchins, 238½ Bond Street, said last night that on Friday morning, June 27, at about 5 a. m., she saw a black dics-like object, "definitely not an airplane", fly across the sky and disappear over the Ridgedale section.

She explained she was sitting in her sun parlor looking out the window when the object suddenly appeared, hurtled past and out of sight. She said it was flying high and very fast. Asked to describe it more fully she said it "was sort of egg shaped, large and black, like a bird with its wings folded back." Mrs. Hitchins said she called to her daughter at the time, but when she ran to the window the object was gone.

Mrs. R. G. Yancey, 522 Washington Street, said that late on the night of June 26, she saw a round golden-colored object fly across the sky at an extremely fast pace. She called attention to the object to friends, but it had disappeared by the time they turned to look. She said the disc was large, bright and had a flat-like rounded appearance. It moved rapidly and glowed as it crossed her line of vision.

Both women were reluctant to talk about the discs, explaining that so many people have ridiculed the idea. However, Mrs. Hitchins said she believed it should be reported. Both were reluctant to have their accounts printed, fearing ridicule of their friends, but both vouch for the accuracy of their stories.

Magistrate Will Try Fazenbaker Today

Charged with violating his parole, Alvin Fazenbaker, Westernport, will be given a hearing before Trial Magistrate John Laughlin in Westernport today at 2 p. m.

Fazenbaker was arrested July 3 in Westernport by State Trooper A. M. Spioch on a charge of assaulting William P. Bryant of Westernport. Police said that he had been drinking prior to the alleged attack.

The Westernport man had been handed a deferred sentence in Trial Magistrates' Court in Cumberland on April 5 after he had been involved in a melee outside a Barton beer tavern. Traffic was tied up by several score persons crowding around the altercation. He was found guilty of assaulting a Barton police officer and handed a fine of $25 and costs and was also fined $20 for disturbing the peace. A prison sentence was deferred.

The April incident took place only a few months after Fazenbaker had completed a year's sentence at Keyser as a result of a scuffle in which Chief of Police Dornon of Piedmont died.

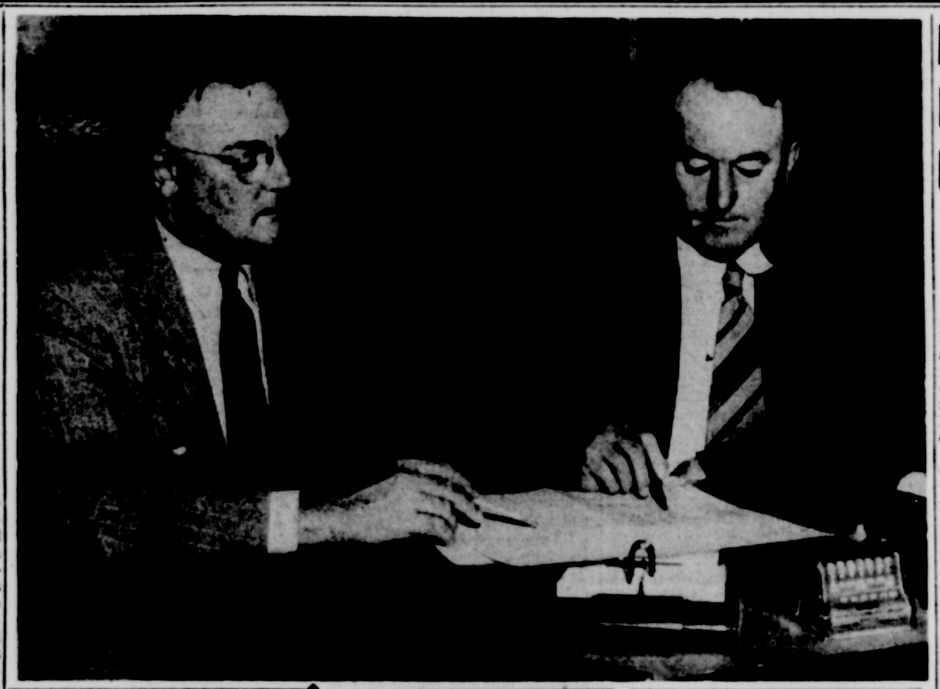

Carpenters Union Installs Officers

William H. Moyer, 1313 Virginia Avenue, was installed as president of Carpenters Local 1024, AFL, at a meeting in Allegany Trades Council Hall last night.

Louis Weber, a past president of the Cumberland local, obligated the officers which also included:

Ralph Porter, vice-president; F. Patrick Allender, treasurer and business manager; J. J. Eirich, financial secretary; J. E. Mulenax, recording secretary; C. C. Harper, warden, and Louis Weber, trustee.

The local now has some 230 members and has jurisdiction over Allegany and Garrett Counties in Maryland as well as adjoining counties in West Virginia.

Older Policemen Had Rough Time, Treiber Recalls

Anyone who ever shot a Cumberland policeman in the last 46 years was arrested by Acting Chief of Police John J. Treiber who will retire on July 15, three days after his 71st birthday.

Treiber, who first joined the police department in 1901 and twice served short terms as chief of police, recalled last night that "police had to police in those days."

He covered the toughest beats in town—Frog Eye, and Shantytown—and still has scars of evidence of being shot when he attempted to disarm an automobile thief in front of the Footer Building on South Mechanic Street 15 to 20 years ago. His assailant was arrested two days later in Oakland while robbing a gasoline station.

"That fellow had his gun against my belly and when I pushed down on it, he fired. It hit me in the finger and left leg," Treiber recalls, exhibiting a scar on his left hand.

Topple Into River

The Assistant Chief's first broken arm in line of duty came 30 to 35 years ago when he and a man he was arresting on Blue Bridge toppled into the Potomac River.

"I had to club a good bit to get him to headquarters, but I got him there." Treiber reminisced. "I didn't know my arm was broken until it started to hurt and I went to a doctor.

The other time his arm was broken was years back when he was arresting another man. That time "we both rolled clean to the bottom of the steps."

Chief Treiber recalls that one man he arrested after shooting a policeman to death was lynched.

"Gust Baker was shot and killed and I arrested a colored man on Wineow Street that night. About 3 a. m. I took him over to the county jail and that night they lynched him.

"I arrested the fellow that shot Jack Soyster, another patrolman, too," Treiber recalled, "and I got the man that shot Officer George Burrull in Black's Grove in South Cumberland."

"Back in those days we used the old Daily News cart Jim Hall used to push papers in to the station for a patrol wagon. Some days Jim would look for the cart and couldn't find it. We'd have it pushing somebody in to the station house."

With the exception of one year when he served as a deputy sheriff under the late Harry Irvine, Treiber has been a member of the Cumberland Police Department.

Served As Chief

He was chief once under the late Mayor "Jerry" Kane and again under the late Mayor Thomas W. Koon, serving in that post for about a year each time.

When the Cumberland Fire Department was organized he was offered the position of fire chief, he recalled last night, but turned it down in favor of remaining a lieutenant in the police department. He became assistant chief in 1936.

He recalled last night with some show of pride that he never had asked for advancement.

"When I was policing," Treiber said, "everybody you arrested you had to fight," but last night he extended his appreciation to the citizens of Cumberland and to members of the Police Department "for being good to me.

"And don't forget," he added, "I want to give my best wishes to the new chief and assistant chief."

Meet July 17 With State Roads Body

Organized in 1939 in a move to beautify roadsides of State highways in Western Maryland, representatives of the Confederation of Western Maryland Communities, Inc., which was idle during the war, will meet with the State Roads Commission in Baltimore July 17 to review its plans and initiate a program of putting them into effect, according to Harold W. Smith, secretary of the Chamber of Commerce and a member of the Confederation.

Smith said he was invited by James H. Gambrill, Jr., of Frederick, president of the Confederation, to attend the meeting along with other representatives and urge the Commission to carry out the plans that have been prepared.

Gambrill pointed out in his letter, that in the fall of 1941 a delegation from the Confederation, representing Allegany, Garrett, Washington and Frederick Counties, called upon the State Roads Commission and asked that body to consider plans for improvement and beautification of roadsides, the work to be done at the end of the war when labor and means would be available.

The Confederation also asked the Commission to have surveys made and landscaping plans prepared so the work could begin as soon as possible after the end of the war. Gambrill recalled, adding that this work was accomplished.

In the meantime, scenic parking areas were established on the top of some mountains along Route 40, and third lanes were added to the highway on some mountain sections, aiding traffic considerably, Gambrill pointed out.

He said the landscaping plans were prepared by the Landscaping Department of the State Roads Commission, the late Leo Downey, district engineer, the state Forestry Department, and himself, and added that a strip map containing these plans should be available in the office of the Commission.

In the meantime, the Junior Women's Civic Club of Cumberland has gone ahead with its project of beautifying highway entrances to Cumberland.

Smith recalled yesterday that Benjamin M. Kamens, this city, was first vice president of the Confederation before it became inactive. Parke W. T. Loy, Hagerstown, was second vice president, and Roger B. Wolfe, Frederick, was secretary-treasurer.

The organization was made up of representatives of service clubs and Chambers of Commerce of the four counties.

Flynn, Gaffney Named Heads Of Police Force

Keegan Says More Changes Pending

More changes, as yet undisclosed, are to be made in the Cumberland Police Department, Police Commissioner William V. Keegan said last night after the Mayor and Council earlier yesterday named Robert Emmett Flynn as chief of police and Frank B. Gaffney assistant chief of police.

Flynn's appointment to succeed Chief of Police Oscar A. Eyerman who retired yesterday ending 30 years of service, and Gaffney's selection to succeed Assistant Chief John J. Treiber, who will be retired July 15 after 45 years on the department, are pending Civil Service examinations.

Two other members of the force also are to be retired and pensioned July 15 under orders introduced at yesterday's council meeting by Commissioner Keegan. They are Desk Sgts. Milford L. Crabtree and L. E. "Bob" Meister.

Two Vacancies

Promotion of Flynn and Gaffney, both lieutenants in the detective bureau leaves two vacancies in that department, and Keegan said replacements are to be made. He added that he does not know when they will take place.

Naming of two desk sergeants to replace Meister and Crabtree will be in the hands of Flynn and Gaffney, according to Keegan, and Flynn said notice of the two vacancies will be posted in the squad room at Police Headquarters and interested officers may make application.

Keegan said that Motorcycle Officer Curtis McA. Kime will be removed from motorcycle duty on advice of the city physician and added that there will be some other changes and promotions in the department, along with some planned changes in hours.

Once the promotions and changes are made, "We'll have a general get-together and understanding," Keegan said.

Both Crabtree and Meister, who have passed the retirement age, applied for extension of time, the commissioner stated, but he pointed out that physical examinations of the two men by City Physician John K. Rozum prompted his decision to place them on the pension list.

Assistant Chief Treiber, who also has passed the retirement age, said he had not applied for an extension of time and had intended to request retirement in August.

All of the moves were made, Keegan said, "with no malice."

Speaking of the retiring men, he stated, "We are sorry to see them go." He expressed the wish there were more benefits under the pension plan.

Exam Date Not Set

Civil service examinations for chief of police and assistant chief probably will not be held for two months, according to Clifford Spiker, a member of the Civil Service Board.

He said the examination will be the first for the two positions conducted by the board. Any member of the force is eligible to take the examination, regardless of age, Spiker said, but a non-member of the force must not have reached his 35th birthday. Citizens of Cumberland who have resided here for three years are eligible to take the exam, he added.

Names of applicants making the 10 highest scores will be submitted to the Mayor and Council.

Sgt. Crabtree joined the force June 22, 1922, and Sgt. Meister on May 6, 1910. The latter is the oldest member in point of consecutive service, having served continuously since his appointment. He previously was employed by the German Brewery.

Sgt. Crabtree, prior to joining the Police Department, was employed by J. C. Orrick Company, wholesalers, and as a street car motorman here.

Flynn, a native of Cumberland and a veteran of 10 years' service on the force, received unsolicited commendation from the Federal Bureau of Investigation, according to Commissioner Keegan, who pointed out that both Flynn and Gaffney completed FBI instruction work.

World War Veteran

A veteran of the First World War, Flynn served with the 13th Balloon Company and was overseas in France for some time. He is a son of the late James and Ellen Bahen Flynn and received his education at the old Allegany County High School and graduated from LaSalle High School in 1916. He later took a special two-year course in Latin and mathematics.

He was secretary to the mechanic superintendent of the Western Maryland Railway for a number of years and later was employed by the Cumberland Brewery. In 1936 he joined the police department as a probationary officer and then was named a member of the detective bureau. He was named a detective lieutenant two years ago.

Flynn is also a graduate of the Federal Bureau of Investigation's National Academy at Washington and the Institute of Applied Science in Chicago. He studied ballistics, fingerprinting and photography at the latter school.

He is a member of Henry Hart Post No. 1411, Veterans of Foreign Wars; Fort Cumberland Post No. 13, American Legion; Cumberland Aerie No. 245, F. O. Eagles, Loyal Order of Moose, Lodge 271, and the Red Men.

Flynn is married to the former Miss Eleanor Smith of this city and they have four children.

Lt. Gaffney came to Cumberland in 1919 as a Maryland State Trooper, following his service in the Navy in World War I. He served with the State Police for two years, then was employed by the Kelly-Springfield Tire Company here, from 1921 until 1935.

He left Kelly-Springfield to join the city police force as a patrolman. In 1937 he attended the twelve-week course of the National Police Academy conducted by the Federal Bureau of Investigation in Washington, D. C. When he returned to Cumberland he was assigned to plain-clothes duty.

Shortly thereafter he was promoted to sergeant, and then became a lieutenant of detectives in 1945. During the second World War, he was a special agent for the Federal Bureau of Investigation for a short time.

Consolidation Coal Sells Properties In 2 Counties

Jenkins Brothers Purchase Holdings

The final chapter in the history of the Consolidation Coal Company's Maryland division was written here yesterday, with the recording of a deed transfering all remaining properties of the company in Garrett and Allegany counties, to the Maryland Coal and Realty Company for a consideration of $137,000.

The deed was drawn for the Pittsburgh Consolidation Coal Company and signed for that corporation by G. W. Kratz, vice-president and C. E. Beachley, secretary.

William S. Jenkins, of Frostburg, local attorney, signed as president of the Maryland Coal and Realty Company and his brother Kenneth Jenkins, secretary also signed the agreement. William S. Jenkins said last night two other brothers, Phillip J. Jenkins and Jonathan R. Jenkins are also interested in the corporation.

Jenkins explained that the Maryland Coal and Realty Company has leased all of the property acquired by the Consilidated Fuel Company, of which his father, William E. Jenkins, Frostburg, is president. The Consolidated Fuel Company has been operating most of the mines and property involved under a lease agreement with the Consolidation Coal Company, and will continue to operate as usual, under the new lease agreement with the Maryland Coal and Realty Company.

Much Coal Involved

Included in the transfer were Mines Nos., 1 at Ocean, 3 at Hoffman, 4 and 10 at Eckhart and 17 at Klondyke, in addition to several seams of coal where strip mining is in progress, railroad sidings, water lines, roadways, tipples, bridges, and other mining property. Some of the coal seams involved in the sale extend into Garrett county, so that all remaining Maryland holdings of the old Consolidation Coal Company are included.

Jenkins said the transfer will not affect in any way the operation of the Consolidation Fuel Company, except that it now operates under a new lease agreement with the new holding corporation.

Transfer of such a large portion of the state's coal seams, in a single sale, recalled the long 87-year-old history of the Consolidation Coal Company in Maryland. The Company made a major contribution in the early development of this county and its coal region. At one time more than half the coal in the Georges Creek Region was mined and controlled by Consolidation.

Founded Klondyke

The town of Klondyke was founded by the Company when the mine was opened there, and several other Allegany County towns grew and developed as the Company opened and developed more seams.

According to the history of Allegany County as compiled by Thomas and Williams, the Consolidation Coal Company made a major contribution toward the development of Allegany County and exercised great influence in the county.

The Company is credited with bringing about the construction of the Cumberland and Georges Creek Railroad, of interesting the Pennsylvania Railroad in hauling coal and running passenger trains into Cumberland via State Line near Ellerslie, and for a long period owned the Cumberland and Pennsylvania Railroad. It is also credited with shipping great amounts of coal by the old C and O Canal, and of arousing the interest of the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad in improving its rail facilities to a great extent here.

Largest Employer

During one period, Consolidation Coal Company employed more peo-

Suicide Verdict Issued In Death Of Local Printer

Gunshot Wound Fatal To T. R. Peterman

A verdict of suicide was issued yesterday in the death of Tolbert Raymond Peterman, 63, well known printer, who shot himself to death in a bedroom of his home, 421 Independence Street, early yesterday afternoon after he had slashed one of his wrists and turned on the gas.

Dr. H. V. Deming, deputy county medical examiner, said Mr. Peterman died at 12:30 p. m. of a pulmonary hemorrhage after he shot himself in the left side of the chest with a .38 caliber revolver.

He attributed the suicide to worry, and added that the gas in the room had been turned on before he inflicted a superficial cut on the left wrist with a knife.

Authorities said Mr. Peterman turned on the gas in the small stove in the bedroom, then sat down on the bed after placing a cardboard box on the floor before he cut his wrist.

Falls Upon Bed

The old model revolver dropped into the box as he fell backward across the bed. The bullet entered the left side of the chest, pierced the lungs and lodged just under the skin at the back of the chest, authorities said.

The body was discovered by a neighbor, Carlyle M. Steward, 419 Independence Street, after he was summoned by Mr. Peterman's housekeeper, Mrs. Anna Lowery.

Mrs. Lowery, who has been housekeeper at the home since 1918, was working under the front porch of the home late yesterday morning when she went to the Steward home to borrow a wrecking bar to do some house repairs.

She explained that Mr. Peterman had been down talking to her a few minutes before and had gone upstairs to get a cup of coffee.

When the housekeeper returned home a few minutes later she called to Mr. Peterman but did not receive an answer. She went upstairs to investigate and pounded upon his bedroom door but did not receive an answer so ran to the Steward home for aid, authorities said.

Hears Gurgle

Authorities said Mrs. Lowery told the neighbor "Come quick, something's happened to Ray" adding she had heard a gurgle when she went to the locked door.

Steward investigated and found Mr. Peterman lying on the bed, apparently a victim of the wrist slashing as he did not notice either the gunshot wound or the escaping gas on the first visit.

When police arrived at the home they immediately detected the gas escaping from a small stove in the room. A sweater had been stuck against the hall door, they said, to keep the fumes in the room.

None of the neighbors heard the fatal shot fired, authorities said.

County Investigator Terrance J. Boyle, Deputy Sheriff William "Scotty" Orr and Police Sgt. Raymond R. Johnston assisted in the investigation.

Mr. Peterman served as a corporal in Company G of the National Guard on the Mexican border shortly before World War I.

Was Veteran Printer

Mr. Peterman, a linotype operator for the Times and Alleganian Company had been a printer here for the past 42 years. He was a former composing room foreman on the old Daily News and had been employed by the Times and Alleganian Company for the past nine years.

He was a member of Cumberland Local 244, International Typographical Union.

He was born October 14, 1884, a son of the late Tolbert G. and Mary Miller Peterman.

Surviving are his wife, Mrs. Anna Eppler Peterman; three sons, William E. Peterman, Hollywood, Cal., and John and George; one brother, George Peterman, Liberty Heights, Baltimore, and a sister, Mrs. C. B. Crabtree, Cash Valley.

His son, William, was flying here from California last night and is expected to arrive this morning.

The body is at the Stein Funeral Home.

Gov. Lane Paroles Roscoe Dewey Leslie

Roscoe Dewey Leslie was one of 14 prisoners paroled yesterday from Maryland penal institutions by Gov. William P. Lane, Jr.

According to the sheriff's office here, Leslie was arrested on a burglary charge January 10, last, and was sentenced to a year in the House of Correction at the January term of Court. He was removed from the county jail to the House of Correction on January 24.

Site For Armory Building Sought In Frostburg

FROSTBURG, July 7.—The Mayor and City Council appointed a committee tonight, to attempt to find a location for a temporary Armory building to be erected here for use of a Maryland National Guard unit, now being organized in Frostburg.

Col. Randolph Millholland and Major Howard H. Dickey, both of Cumberland and officers of the 115th Guard Regiment, appeared before the town officials with a delegation of the Frostburg Lions Club. Col. Millholland was spokesman for the group and explained that a site is desired within the corporate limits and as centrally located as possible.

It was explained that numerous local citizens including the Lions Club and other groups are interested in the formation of a Guard Company here, and the unit is to have a strength of 150 men. Col. Millholland said that after the unit is established, the temporary building will be replaced by a permanent State Armory.

The mayor named S. W. Green, chairman, William Dolder, Oliver B. Wittig, Jesse F. Jenkins, commissioner of water and light and Phillip Hartig, city engineer, to locate a site, determine its cost etc., and report back to the council.

Maj. Dickey said he will be in Frostburg Thursday night at the Gunter Hotel, to start a recruiting program for the new Frostburg Company.

Marshall Porter, Eckhart, asked the town officials for the cooperation in the establishment of a dairy plant within the corporate limits. He explained the plant will be for the purpose of processing milk and no live stock will be kept at the plant. The mayor and council told Porter there is no objection to his proposal and assured him of their corporation.

Robert Glodfelty and Edgar Grose, residents of Eckhart, requested the mayor and council mail a copy of City Engineer Hartig's report on a grade proposal for the relocation of Route 40, to the State Roads Commission.

City Clerk Alex C. Close was instructed to advertise for bids on the purchase of an automobile, completely equipped, for use as a police car. Bids must be submitted in writing by July 14.
